Pomona police use tear gas, flush 2 robbery suspects

Police used tear gas early today to drive two robbery suspects from beneath a house in west-central Pomona after a service station was held up nearby earlier by two armed men.

The pair, James Scott Jr., 22, Pomona, and Eddie Lee Holland, 23, Banning, were driven from under a house at Sixth and Myrtle streets shortly before 7 a.m. They were booked on suspicion of robbery after being given showers and a change of clothing because of the gassing they had experienced.

The robbery occurred at 3:30 a.m. at the USA service station at Buena Vista Avenue and Mission Boulevard. Officers, answering the robbery call, saw two men fleeing. They pursued the pair through several backyards, but lost sight of them. Other police were called in and the neighborhood was cordoned off, while officers waited until daylight to make a search for the robbers.

While the police helicopter hovered overhead, officers on foot conducted a house-by-house, yard-by-yard search of the area south of Mission between Buena Vista and Sixth Street. They had completed the search without success when Officer Michael Bouse noticed a crawl hole under one house. When he peered through the opening, he saw someone inside.

The men beneath the house, Scott and Holland, refused orders to come out, even when police placed tear gas equipment in front of the hole where they could see it. After a final warning that gas would be used if they did not exit, officers tossed a tear gas grenade under the house.

Sgt. Charles Denbow said Scott came out "like a shot," but Holland could not find the crawl hole. He lost consciousness under the house and Bouse and Officer James Newsom, wearing gas masks, crawled inside

About a dozen Pomona officers were involved in the incident, in addition to one officer from La Verne and two from Claremont who assisted. Police said they recovered the money taken in the service station holdup, but said the men were unarmed when arrested.

Pomona firemen used fans to blow the gas from the house, which was empty throughout the siege. Officers who took part in the search had to shower and change clothing afterward and an exhaust was set up in the jail because of fumes from their clothing.

Scott and Holland were given assistance by paramedics after their arrest but did not require further medical attention.

Nuclear plant safeguard package OK'd

Gov. Brown expected to sign legislation

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Legislation creating the toughest safeguards in the nation for nuclear power plants is on the desk of California Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. He has vowed to sign it into law.

The legislature sent the three-bill package to the governor on Tuesday,

HOW VOTE WENT

a week before Californians vote on a controversial — and even tougher — Nuclear Power Plants Initiative.

Final passage came despite claims that the bills' supporters were using the much stricter initiative — Proposition 15 — as a lever to get them passed.

The bills won't take effect if the initiative — which requires action by all plants, present and planned — passes. The legislation allows existing plants and those being built now to continue unfettered by new regulations.

Assemblyman Charles Warren, a Los Angeles Democrat whose Resources, Land Use and Energy Committee wrote the legsilation, said it provides for "unprecedented" controls on nuclear power and is a model for the nation. It permits the legislature to ban new power plants if either house, by simple majority vote, decides nuclear development is unsafe.

Brown, campaigning for the Democratic presidential nomination, gave the bills an endorsement before a critical Senate hearing two weeks ago and repeatedly has stated he will sign the measures. Brown is uncommitted on Prop. 15.

He is expected to sign the bills Thursday or Friday.

Brown's father, former Gov. Edmund "Pat" Brown, supported the bills, saying he hoped they would "insure defeat of the initiative."

Many legislators shared the senior Brown's position, and only a handful endorsed the proposition. Others said they would vote for both the bills and the initiative — the stand of supporters of Prop. 15 who have said the bills are only a step in the right direction.

Sen. Alfred Alquist, a San Jose Democrat who carried the bills on the Senate floor, said he hoped the bills would "influence" voters to reject the initiative.

The bills, passed by the Senate with two votes to spare, would:

—Permit the legislature to hold up new construction of nuclear plants if it decides that fuel recycling and waste storing methods are unsafe.

—Require a study of the feasibility of building reactors underground, and possibly make it a requirement of new construction if it is found a worthy safeguard against the spread of radiation from a core meltdown.

The three licensed nuclear plants in California, plus four other reactors under construction, are exempt from the legislation.

Senate amendments will probably exempt planned plants of two reactors each in the southern San Joaquin Valley and in the desert near Blythe from any future state requirement of underground construction.

The initiative would require the legislature to determine that nuclear power is safe — that it find in 1979 that safety questions could be met by 1981 — or new plants would be banned and old ones phased out.

Brown claims victory

Rhode Island offers biggest surprise in latest primary vote

By DAVE GOLDBERG
Associated Press Writer

Rhode Island Democrats have thrown additional question marks into the Democratic race for president by giving Jerry Brown what he says is a victory that makes him the pre-eminent challenger to front-runner Jimmy Carter.

On a primary day in which the voters continued to send out mixed signals and five of the six major candidates involved claimed some sort of victory, the most noted result was in Rhode Island.

There a small turnout of voters gave an uncommitted slate 32 per cent of the vote to 30 per cent for Carter, the former Georgia governor, and 28 per cent for Idaho Sen. Frank Church.

Brown, the California governor, had urged voters to vote uncommitted, and when they did, he said they were really voting for him.

In other results from Tuesday's primaries, Ronald Reagan defeated President Ford in Republican voting in Montana and South Dakota but Ford gained a 2-1 victory in Rhode Island and swept all 19 delegates there. That gave the President a 28-11 edge in delegates for the day, although Montana has still to select its slate of 20 at a convention.

Carter, meanwhile, was winning in South Dakota with a 41-34 per cent edge over Arizona Rep. Morris K. Udall, who had hoped to win his first primary and instead finished second for the eighth time. And Church captured Montana easily with over 60 per cent of the vote to 24 per cent for Carter.

Here are Tuesday's numbers:

Rhode Island

With the vote complete:

Ford 9,341 or 66 per cent and all 19 delegates.

Reagan 4,419 or 31 per cent.

The rest were uncommitted.

In the Democratic race:

The uncommitted line on the ballot drew 19,066 or 32 per cent and won nine delegates in the separate competition.

Carter 18,171 or 30 per cent and seven delegates.

Church 16,767 or 28 per cent and six delegates.

South Dakota

With 99 per cent of the precincts counted:

Reagan 42,952 or 51 per cent and 11 delegates.

Ford 36,858 or 44 per cent and 9 delegates.

Among the Democrats:

Carter 24,853 or 41 per cent and 9 delegates.

Udall 20,229 or 34 per cent and 7 delegates.

The uncommitted line was drawing 13 per cent of the vote there and there was one uncommmitted delegate. The rest of the vote was scattered.

Montana

With 76 per cent of the vote in:

Reagan 37,514 or 63 per cent

Ford 21,137 or 35 per cent.

The rest was uncommitted.

The 20 Republican delegates will be selected later at a state convention.

On the Democratic side, it was:

Church 44,622 or 60 per cent and 11 delegates.

Carter 18,445 or 25 per cent and 4 delegates.

ROCK UNDAMAGED

Crater in sand is measured after an explosion next to Plymouth Rock in Plymouth, Mass., late Tuesday night. The blast caused no apparent damage to the historic rock, that tradition says is where the first Pilgrims stepped ashore. Light part of rock is dry area that was untouched by Tuesday night's rainfall.

Blast doesn't damage historic Plymouth Rock

PLYMOUTH, Mass. (AP) — An explosive attack on historic Plymouth Rock caused no more than powder burns and didn't budge the granite boulder that tradition says is where the first Pilgrims stepped ashore.

The blast Tuesday night dug a hole in the sand on the ocean side of the rock, which is on the beach under a masonry canopy.

Police Chief Ernest Leonardi said the hole was about 3 feet long, 18 inches wide and 7 inches deep. By early today, the sand had been raked and only a small depression remained.

The rock was not damaged and no one was hurt. "It appeared that it was dynamite, and probably was tossed in there," the chief said.

No one claimed responsibility for the blast and there were no immediate suspects, Leonardi said.

State police sent their bomb squad to the scene, where it was joined by agents of the FBI and the Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms unit of the U.S. Treasury Department.

Last Saturday, fire damaged a gift shop on shore at the replica of the brig "Beaver" moored in Boston harbor. Someone claiming to be from a militant antibusing group called a newspaper to take responsibility and said other attacks on Bicentennial targets were planned.

The "Beaver" carried some of the tea colonists dumped in Boston Harbor in 1773.

Authorities said today they had no information that such a group had planted explosives at the rock. Asked whether there was a link to the Boston fire, a state police spokesman said, "As far as we know, negative."

Trooper Robert Jubinville of the state police said one of his agency's experts recovered an 18-inch fuse at the scene.

A Plymouth police officer, who declined to give his name, said the explosion occurred at low tide. The subsequent incoming tide washed away many footprints on the beach in front of the rock, the officer said.

The rock, about four feet by six feet and three feet high and bearing the chiseled date 1620, is surrounded by a stone and concrete wall on three sides, over which visitors can look down on it. It is protected by open iron bars on the ocean side.

The tide can flow through the bars but does not usually reach the rock except when abnormally high, or in severe storms, residents said.

Over false alarm

Fireman dies, 6 others hurt as trucks collide

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Two fire trucks responding to what proved to be a false alarm collided at an intersection here, killing one fireman and injuring six others, authorities said.

Fireman Joe E. Tarwater, 37, died after he was catapulted through a fire truck windshield Tuesday, said Clyde Parker, a deputy fire chief.

Five of the injured firemen were treated at hospitals and released, and a sixth was listed in good condition.

Parker said an aerial ladder truck heading along a major city thoroughfare to the scene of the alarm slammed into the side of a pumper crossing the same thoroughfare while responding to the alarm.

A witness, Charlotte Robnett, 25, of Knoxville, said she was driving behind the fire chief's car which preceded the ladder truck.

"The fire chief and I made the red light. The fire truck didn't," she said. "The ladder truck hit the other fire truck.

"I then got out of my car and tried to help the fireman who went through the windshield," said the woman, an employe of a home-visiting nurse service.

Tarwater, who had been with the department 2½ years, was thrown about 200 feet, firemen said.

The trucks, from different fire stations, were responding to an address about three blocks from the accident scene.

A fire department dispatcher said a woman at the address said she turned in the alarm after receiving a telephone call — apparently from a prankster — telling her that her house was on fire.

Canada's Brink's robbery solved

Mom, 3 sons, 2 daughters are among eight arrested

MONTREAL (AP) — "The Brink's case is solved," said police director Rene Daigneault after announcing the arrest of eight persons and the recovery of more than $100,000 he said was stolen in the $2.8 million holdup nine weeks ago.

"We know it was the money that came from the Brink's holdup because of the serial numbers and the way they were wrapped," said Daigneault.

He said one or two suspects may have been missed in the raids Tuesday in Montreal and the Laurentian Mountains, "but we'll get them in the long run."

Police killed one alleged member of the gang, John Slawvey, on May 15 during a raid.

A number of weapons and equipment for monitoring police broadcasts were seized during the raids, the police said.

Those arrested included a 60-year-old woman, her three sons and two daughters. The mother, one of her sons and the two daughters were picked up at the mother's home in eastern Montreal, their lawyer said, while the other two brothers were arrested at a summer cottage in the Laurentians 130 miles north of Montreal.

Inspector Jean-Claude Rondou said the police believe some of the holdup money was spent on a car and the cottage in the mountains.

"I guess quite a lot of money was spent. We now are trying to gather evidence to prove this," he said.

The robbery was the biggest in North American history. Five men, covered by a heavy machine gun in a van, hijacked a Brink's money truck from alongside a bank in the Montreal financial district. The truck, the van and the machine gun were found later, and the police said the gun was inoperative.

The robbery resulted in a small war between the special police unit investigating it and a gang on which the police were concentrating. Investigating policemen were attacked four times during one week in April, and one of them was beaten unconscious. Four persons have been charged in connection with the attacks.

British pound still plunging

LONDON (AP) — The British pound plunged more than 3½ cents today to a new low of $1.719. It closed Tuesday night at $1.7543.

It was one of the sharpest drops in the pound's long decline. Normally the pound changes value by no more than a small fraction of a cent in a trading day.

Trapped workers are rescued from burning building

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Several office workers were rescued from a burning threestory building, some from the roof-top and others through open windows, fire officials say. No one was injured.

Twenty-two persons were working in the building, and some fled out the front door.

Tunney turns to attack of foe Hayden

Meanwhile, GOP's Bell claims he's displaced Finch in poll

By BOB EGELKO
Associated Press Writer

Sen. John Tunney is stepping up the attack on his Democratic rival, Tom Hayden, labeling him a big spender who is soft on drugs and defense.

The Democratic senator, who had all but ignored Hayden for most of the campaign, used such terms as "radicalism" and "violence and deceit" in talking about Hayden Monday, and continued the theme Tuesday.

Meanwhile, representatives of both men continued negotiating on terms of their debate, scheduled for Los Angeles Saturday. And four Republican contenders moved into the last week of their primary campaigns.

At an airport news conference in Los Angeles, Tunney said the defense budget cuts that Hayden wants would make the United States vulnerable to Soviet attack, and he said spending programs Hayden backs — such as national health insurance -- would cost the average taxpayer $1,000.

But Tunney saved his strongest language for the issue of drugs, which hadn't been mentioned previously by either candidate.

Citing a statement in Hayden's campaign platform that criminal sanctions for drugs had been "counterproductive," Tunney said Hayden favored decriminalizing all drugs, and added:

"I don't want to see my children shooting up on the street corner, and I don't think that's what the people of California want either."

Hayden, in a telephone interview, agreed that his platform statement was "vague," but said he opposed removing criminal sanctions for any drugs except marijuana.

"The kind of sanctions we have now are counterproductive — the pushers get stronger, and organized crime is involved," Hayden said.

At a Sacramento news conference earlier in the day, Hayden had some sharp words for Tunney's attack Monday on "the radicalism of the '60s."

"If John wants to debate the '60s, let's start off with his (former) description of himself as flaming hawk...and why it took six years for him to become a lukewarm dove," Hayden said.

On the Republican side, Congressman Alphonzo Bell said a Corey Research Survey poll shows him ahead of former Lt. Gov. Robert Finch, who has been running second in statewide polls behind S.I. Hayakawa, former San Francisco State College president.

Bell, meanwhile, was criticized by another GOP contender, former Lt. Gov. John Harmer, who called him "one of the most liberal congressmen in the history of the Republican party."

Harmer said Bell had voted four times in favor of mandatory busing for integration, and said there "really isn't a dime's worth of difference between Bell and Tunney."

Finch and Los Angeles County Sheriff Peter Pitchess, who endorsed him, held a news conference to criticize the "diamond lane" car pool experiment on the Santa Monica Freeway.

The state Department of Transportation project reserves one lane of the freeway in each direction to cars carrying three or more persons. Finch said it's an example of the excesses of regulation.

The project, he said, "was created in controversy and has rapidly reduced itself to unintelligible gibberish when it comes to getting facts."

Hayakawa campaigned Tuesday in Newport Beach and Palm Springs.

Firefighters fear 'worst possible' year for state

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — As firefighters struggle to contain California's first major wildfire this year, conservationists are preparing for a summer they fear could end with more than a million acres burned.

About 12,000 acres of watershed went up in smoke at the Los Padres National Forest 250 miles south of here after a careless camper threw a cigarette into the drought-dry brush last Saturday.

By Tuesday night, the forward spread of the fire had been stopped. Ed Waldapfel, a U.S. Forest Service information officer, said three more miles of a 24-mile fire line, carved out of the dense underbrush with axes and shovels, were completed Tuesday. That left a gap of only one mile to close, and that should be done by nightfall today when the fire is expected to be contained, Waldapfel said.

Officials warn that campgrounds may have to be restricted or even closed if too many fires begin at once.

"We are getting ourselves prepared for the worst possible season," said Tom Harlan, another forest service information officer. "It could be the worst in 50 years, based on the weather conditions we've had."

Only a third to half the normal amount of rain and snow fell this winter over much of the state, leaving reservoirs and lakes low and forests dry.

Officials are comparing this year with 1924, when winter rainfall was similarly low. That year, fires blackened 976,000 acres of state forest land. One fire roared down the Berkeley hills, destroying 85 blocks of homes before it was extinguished, said Jack O'Neal, spokesman for the California Division of Forestry in Sacramento.

By May 15 of this year, almost 4,000 acres of state forest land had been burned in more than a thousand fires. Last year at this time, there had been only 365 fires covering 335 acres.

"We're running with three times as many fires this year and 10 times as much acreage burned," O'Neal said. "At this rate, we'll have 940,000 acres gone by the end of the year."

Those figures cover only state-supervised lands — not national forests such as Los Padres.

3 medical groups back right-to-die legislation

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Legislation allowing a physician to remove life-support systems from a patient who has asked to be allowed to die has picked up support from major medical groups, its author says.

The California Medical Association, California Nursing Association and California Conference of Local Health Officers have endorsed the measure, Assemblyman Barry Keene, D-Eureka, said Tuesday.

But a group of Catholic hospitals and right-to-life groups are still fighting the bill, which is on the Assembly floor.

Termed the "natural death act" by Keene, it would allow a hopelessly ill patient to authorize a doctor in advance not to use extraordinary life-saving measures if the only purpose is to delay the moment of death.

A doctor could then let such a patient die without being subject to criminal prosecution or lawsuit.

The bill is AB 3060.

Prison escapee captured after kidnaping, wild escape effort

HOWELL, Mich. (AP) — A reformatory escapee was in custody and his teen-age hostage safe today after a wild, high-speed race across southern Michigan in a commandeered squad car with up to 20 police cars and a helicopter in hot pursuit.

The high-speed chase began Tuesday with the 16-year-old hostage at the wheel of her family car and then the police car. It ended five hours and 100 miles later when the Ionia Reformatory inmate ran a second police car — given in exchange for the girl's release — into a ditch, flipping it end over end.

The escapee, David M. Closser, 19, of Livonia, was in fair condition at a hospital in this central Michigan town with a concussion and possibly a fractured back, authorities said.

The hostage, Connie Allen of Ionia, was released unharmed several miles east of here, minutes before Closser's capture, authorities said.

"She was in shock from the more than four-hour ordeal, but otherwise okay," a spokesman at State Police headquarters in Lansing said.

Closser, armed with a deer rifle, had forced the girl to drive at speeds of up to 100 miles per hour along eastbound Interstate 96. She swerved up onto the median twice to avoid roadblocks before officers brought the car to a halt by shooting out the tires, police said.

Closser, serving two prison terms for breaking and entering and one for auto theft, was apprehended late Tuesday night, nearly 10 hours after his escape.

The pursuit led from Ionia in western Michigan to the outskirts of Grand Rapids 30 miles to the west, where Closser doubled back toward Ionia and fueled up at a Portland gas station before taking off again in the direction of his suburban Detroit home.

The chase began shortly after noon when Closser, who was only three months away from parole, made his getaway from a dormitory outside the reformatory. He had been transferred to the dormitory Monday.

State Police at Ionia said Closser made his way to the nearby home of Ernest Allen, tied up members of the family, took the family rifle and forced the teen-ager to accompany him as he stole the family car and the pair took off. A neighbor stopped by the Allen house, saw the family tied up and called police.

The pursuit began as a police cruiser spotted the Allen car and chased it to Portland, where the getaway car became mired in a field. As the officer got out of his car, Closser aimed the rifle at him and forced the officer to turn over his State Police cruiser.

State reducing aid

L.A. County faces health service cuts

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Despite big hikes facing county taxpayers, officials say they may still be forced to cut county health services by $36 million.

County Assessor Philip E. Watson said Tuesday the county's assessed valuation was likely to rise by an average of 12.25 per cent, up from the 10 per cent increase predicted when the county drafted its proposed budget in April.

Although the increase eases pressure on county officials strapped for cash to maintain services, the state informed the county Tuesday it would face cuts of $36 million in state-supported programs. These include Medi-cal, crippled children's services and homemaker aid for the disabled.

Chief Administrative Officer Harry Hufford said the increased assessments gives the county the alternative of restoring some of the cuts or lowering the tax rate.

The state budget allows for a $600 million surplus, and county officials have indicated they want part of that.

The newly-formed Human Services Coalition already has begun protests of the proposed cuts. A county budget meeting is scheduled for next Wednesday.

Americans abusing freedom too much, Solzhenitsyn says

STANFORD (AP) — Nobel Laureate Alexander Solzhenitsyn has admonished Americans to seek inner freedom and not merely the license to act free of legal restraints.

"He who truly understands freedom is not the man who hurries to exploit his legal rights for mercenary advantage, but one who has a conscience to constrain him even in the face of legal justification," the Russian author said Tuesday in accepting the American Friendship Award from the American Freedom Foundation.

Solzhenitsyn has lived in the United States for more than a year, after being exiled from Russia for criticizing Soviet policy.

"It would be easy to criticize totalitarianism," he said, "but much more beneficial to take a hard look at ourselves."

He criticized the American press, however, for being "too concerned with gossip," unions for "disrupting the lives of people," pacifists for "not defending what they believe," and teenagers for "wasting time."

He criticized certain types of American freedoms, saying "the sum total of all the rights of freedom is still a long way from the freedom of man and society."

In a long littany, the author cited:

"Freedom to litter compulsorily with commercial rubbish the mail boxes, the eyes, ears and brains of the people...

"Freedom for editors and film producers to start the younger generation off with seductive miscreations...

"Freedom for exonerating speeches, when the lawyer himself knows the guilt of the accused. Freedom to exalt the legal right of insurance protection so that even 'good Samaritanism' can lead to extortion.

"Freedom to divulge the defense secrets of one's country for personal political ends.

"Freedom for politicians indiscriminately to bring about whatever pleases the voter today, but not what farsightedly provides for his safety and well being.

"Freedom for terrorists to escape punishment, so that pity for them becomes a death sentence for all the rest of society..."

10-cent tax hike in schools budget OK'd in Cucamonga

By DAVID READER
PB Correspondent

A tentative budget of $2.5 million, an increase of about $300,000 from last year, was approved Tuesday night by the Central School board of Cucamonga for the year starting in July.

The expenditures call for a 10-cent tax increase setting the levy for next year at $2.52 per $100 of assessed valuation.

The tentative budget is the first of three that the board must act upon. In July, the board is to approve a publication budget, and finally adopt a final budget for the coming school year in August.

The tentative budget made allowances for a projected five per cent increase in school enrollment, and the hiring of new teachers to meet the enrollment increases. Salary figures for district employes were based upon the current salary schedule.

In order to comply with federal and state legislation, the board adopted a hot lunch program for students. Currently, the district only provides milk to students, but the new laws now made it mandatory that by July 1, 1977, needy students be given one meal a day free of charge or at a reduced price. The program is to be offered to those who can pay fully for a lunch, as well as on a reduced price and free basis.

The neighboring Cucamonga School District will be contracted to supply the hot lunches beginning as soon as possible during the upcoming school year. Central must contract out for the lunches because it does not have the kitchen facilities to handle a full-scale program.

A library materials policy was adopted by the board, with school principals assuming responsibility for the selection of library books at their respective schools. Teachers and librarians are to make book purchase recommendations to the principals.

In other action, the board:

— Agreed to renew a contract with the Rialto School District for data processing services at the rate of $1,000 per year.

— Authorized Supt. Don Sperry to maintain district membership in the California School Board Association at the cost of $561.75 for the coming year.

Food prices in sharpest increase in over a year

By The Associated Press

Supermarket shoppers got hit during May with the sharpest and most widespread price increases in well over a year, an Associated Press marketbasket survey shows.

The price boosts spread across the aisles, but hit hardest at the meat counter. Pork chops and frankfurters in particular rose sharply.

The AP drew up a random list of 15 commonly purchased food and non-food items, checked the price at one supermarket in each of 13 cities on March 1, 1973, and has rechecked on or about the start of each succeeding month.

The latest survey, with the checks made just before the start of the holiday weekend, showed the market-basket total increased at the checklist store in every city. The average boost was 4.2 per cent.

The last time the marketbasket bill went up in every city was in July 1974 when the average increase was 4 per cent. The latest boost was the steepest percentage rise since November 1974 when the marketbasket bill was up at the checklist store in 12 cities and the over-all average increase was 5.6 per cent.

The 1974 increases were caused mainly by soaring sugar prices; the May 1976 increases in many areas covered more basic items, including orange juice, butter, eggs and coffee as well as some meats.

Comparing current prices with those at the start of June 1975, the AP survey showed that the market-basket total at the checklist stores was an average of 7.6 per cent higher than it was 12 months earlier.

Government officials have been warning that food prices, which remained stable during the first quarter of 1976, would start rising again. But they also have said that the rate of increase will be less than in 1975 when food prices went up 8.5 per cent.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture, in a report last month, said: "Although larger supplies relative to last year may continue to have a dampening effect, retail food prices are expected to turn up again this spring and may continue to rise through the summer. But sharp increases like those of last summer are not likely, and by fall there may be some softening."

The AP survey showed that pork prices, which rose to record highs last fall and then declined slightly as supplies increased temporarily, are on the increase again. The price of a pound of pork chops increased during May at the checklist store in nine of the cities checked and was unchanged in the remaining cities. Increases generally ranged from 10 to 30 per cent.

The high level of pork prices can be traced to the 1974 corn crop, which was smaller than expected. Farmers, unable to afford the high cost of grain, cut back the size of their herds.

Large crops have helped lower grain prices, and farmers are rebuilding their herds, but it will take time before the animals reach market. The USDA reported, for example, that as of March 1, the number of hogs being sent to market was about the same as last year. But the number kept for breeding was up 10 per cent — an indication of increased supplies and lower prices in the future.

Coming months also may bring decreases in beef prices. The American National Cattlemen's Association said its 19 city survey showed average retail beef prices in mid-May were 15 cents a pound higher than a month earlier. The increases reflected higher prices paid to farmers, but Wray Finney, the association president, noted: "More recently there has been a decrease in cattle prices as supplies of all types of meat have increased again."

The AP survey showed that during May, the price of a pound of meat frankfurters went up at the checklist store in seven of the cities checked. The price was down in four cities and unchanged in two.

A look at the over-all number of items in the AP survey showed more increases during May than during April. Here are the percentages of increases and decreases:

	Apr.	May
Up	19.5	26.7
Down	22.6	13.8
Unchanged	54.3	55.4
Unavailable	3.6	4.1

House panel votes sex scandal probe

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House ethics committee quickly and overwhelmingly voted today to "proceed immediately with a full investigation" of the Wayne Hays payroll-sex scandal.

With one member absent, the committee voted 11-0 to approve a motion to proceed immediately on a request from 28 House members that the Hays scandal be probed. There was no debate before the vote.

Committee Chairman John J. Flynt Jr., D-Ga., said Hays will be invited to appear before the committee. Asked whether Elizabeth Ray also would be called as a witness, Flynt said: "I don't know that Miss Ray will be the first witness."

Pressed by reporters to explain, Flynt said, "We have not subpoenaed her, if that's what you mean."

Miss Ray, 33, claims Hays put her on the staff of his House Administration Committee to be his mistress. Hays, 65, has admitted having a "personal relationship" with her but denies she was hired to provide him with sex.

Indictments charge gasoline price fix

BALTIMORE (AP) — An 18-month investigation by a federal grand jury has ended in the indictment of seven independent oil companies on charges they illegally fixed the price of gasoline they sell in mid-Atlantic states.

The seven-page indictment, which also names a trade association and four individuals, was presented Tuesday to U.S. Dist. Judge Joseph H. Young.

Under the antitrust conspiracy charges, the individual defendants face up to a year in prison and $50,000 fines, while the corporations and the association could get fines of $50,000 each.

The indictment said the seven gas firms allegedly conspired from 1967 to November 1974 to use the Society of Independent Gasoline Marketers of America as a clearing house through which they exchanged gas-pricing information. The effect of that, said the indictment, was to raise and maintain gas prices at non-competitive levels.

The companies indicted were Crown Central Petroleum Corp. of Baltimore, Amerada-Hess Corp. of New York, Ashland Oil Inc. of Ashland, Ky., Continental Oil Co. of Stamford, Conn., and its subsidiary, Kayo Oil Co. of Chattanooga, Tenn, the Meadville Corp. of Ardmore, Pa., and the Petroleum Marketing Corp. of McLean, Va.

Also indicted were Robert R. Cavin, executive director of SIGMA; Norman Goldberg, senior vice president of Amerada-Hess; Charles J. Luellen, group vice president of Ashland Oil, and W.H. Burnap, executive vice president of Petroleum Marketing.

In a statemnt issued Tuesday, Ashland denied the allegations, saying, "These charges are particularly ridiculous to a company which has always used low gasoline prices as its principal marketing tool."

2 girls on bike hurt

Two Upland girls were injured Tuesday evening when a small trailbike they were riding struck the rear end of a car in an alley behind apartments north of Buffington Avenue in Upland, police reported.

Susan Newman, 13, of 1938 Abbey Way, a passenger on the trailbike driven by Susan Marie Smith, 14, of 1541 O'Malley St., Upland, was listed in good condition this morning with a fractured leg at San Antonio Community Hospital. Miss Smith was also injured in the accident and treated at the hospital.

Police said the trailbike struck the rear end of a car driven by Thodore Williamson, Jr., 49, of 1842 N. Albright St., Upland.

Williamson was not injured.

Student dies in classroom

Russell Collister, 19-year-old Claremont High School student suffering from muscular dystrophy, collapsed and died suddenly Tuesday morning in a reading skills class.

The victim, who lived in Charter Oak at 5051 Lyman Ave., was pronounced dead at Pomona Valley Community Hospital. Authorities said he had been under the constant care of a physician and was a member of the school's special class for orthopedically-handicapped students.

Moon swings big bat before small Yankee Stadium crowd

NEW YORK (AP) — Lower than-expected attendance, rain, unruly guests inside and protestors outside failed to halt Sun Myung Moon's "God Bless America Festival" in Yankee Stadium or to muffle his message that he has come from Korea to save the world.

"God sent me to America as a doctor, as a firefighter," Moon boomed in Korean while Bo Hi Pak, a former South Korean colonel, yelled the English translation. "The treatment may be painful, but it must begin at once."

Well-orchestrated cadres applauded vigorously as the self-styled minister made his points.

"In the 1950s, America seemed to be the hope of the world," he said. "The symbol of America was the City of New York. Today, however, the world has lost faith in America, and New York has become a jungle of immorality and depravity, a city transformed under the attack of evil ... "

He warned that if America continues along the same paths, the Communists will win control.

Less than ... rich and poor.

The 55,000-seat ballpark was about half-filled. Moon's organizers, who had made a heavy push with advertising and sidewalk solicitiations to distribute free tickets, had been predicting a draw of 200,000.

Inside the stadium, there were designated sections for Moon's followers and their families, for representatives of communist-controlled countries and special guests from the Orient. The audience also had preachers of various faiths and United Nations delegates.

During the festivities, hundreds of teen-agers in small bands set off smoke bombs and firecrackers and fought with each other as they ran amok through the stadium. Gangs tore away decorations around the stadium, threw refuse and dumped liquids from the upper tiers.

Outside, five persons were arrested, two of them in incidents involving guns.

Groups of protesting parents picketed outside the stadium, carrying placards warning others to save their children from the influence of Moon. A bus containing followers of Hare Krishna, another religious sect, circled the stadium, its occupants chanting.

Meanwhile, a 22-year-old follower of Moon died of injuries suffered when he was robbed and beaten while passing out leaflets at the Fort Greene housing project in Brooklyn last Thursday night.

Masara Wasanula, a resident of Moon's recently purchased Hotel New Yorker in Manhattan, died Tuesday night in Kings County Hospital.

Police say 18-year-old Jeffrey Walker, of Brooklyn, has been charged with murder in the beating.

Job quotas based on sex ruled invalid

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Virginia Commonwealth University's preferential hiring of women and the institution's employment quotas based on sex constitute reverse discrimination and are unconstitutional, a federal judge says.

U.S. Dist. Judge D. Dorich Warriner ruled Tuesday in a suit filed by Dr. James Albert Cramer, who contended he was passed over in 1974 for two permanent teaching jobs at VCU which were later given to women.

Warriner said Cramer was correct in his complaint that he had been victimized by VCU's "affirmative action program," aimed at eliminating past discrimination based on race or sex.

The judge said the programs violate the equal protection clause of the U.S. Constitution and the Civil Rights Act of 1964, which bans discriminatory hiring practices.

"There will never be sex or racial peace until the idea of sex or racial discrimination is dead and buried. The primary, the only, beneficiaries of 'affirmative action' plans and their siblings are the thousands of persons engaged in the civil rights business, bureaucrats, lawyers, lobbyists and politicians," the judge said.

Doctor wins unprecedented case

'Malpractice' suit against attorneys

CHICAGO (AP) — A physician who accused a woman and her lawyers of maliciously filing a malpractice suit against him has won an $8,000 award from a jury for damages from the suit.

"A doctor has to answer for his actions, so why not lawyers?" said Dr. Leonard Berlin, who filed a countersuit after he was named in a $250,000 malpractice suit last September. "Nobody denies that medical malpractice occurs. But that wasn't the issue here,"

Circuit Court Judge David A. Canel said the verdict Tuesday "means that lawyers shouldn't be filing lawsuits unless they have enough evidence to substantiate the lawsuit."

A spokesman for the American Medical Association said the outcome of the case was "very unusual, perhaps unprecedented. It certainly could turn around malpractice suits in this country."

Richard Morris, an American Bar Association spokesman, agreed. "It's pretty unique. This case may make everybody look at it (filing malpractice suits) a little differently."

The award came at the conclusion of a three-day trial in which Berlin, a radiologist in Skokie who has practiced medicine for 17 years, claimed that Harriet Nathan, her husband and her two lawyers "wantonly and wilfully" involved him in litigation without reasonable cause.

The suit also accused the lawyers, Fred Benjamin and Stuart Shapiro, of "falling below the legal standards of the community by failing to properly investigate the case."

The malpractice suit, also filed against the Skokie Valley Community Hospital and orthopedic surgeon William Meltzer, charged that Berlin failed to properly X-ray Mrs. Nathan's hand after she fractured a finger playing tennis. The whole original suit was withdrawn voluntarily at the beginning of the trial.

In a telephone interview, Mrs. Nathan, 42, said she would appeal the verdict. "I am confident the higher courts will reverse this entire matter. (Berlin's) suit was the man's personal vendetta against me for daring to question that he did the right thing about my hand."

Mrs. Nathan said her hand "is permanently disabled. I cannot move the right side of my hand. I cannot grasp anything."

The malpractice suit was dropped, she said, because her lawyers were unable to find doctors to "support what we had claimed. They (doctors) want to protect their profession."

Berlin countered that Mrs. Nathan "had excellent treatment" and denied the accusation that doctors stick together. "It's just as hard to find lawyers to testify against each other," he said. "But in this case, two prominent attorneys testified on my behalf against members of their profession."

Neither Meltzer, who is a doctor for the Chicago White Sox professional baseball team, nor the hospital joined Berlin in the countersuit. But Berlin said, "Maybe this decision will give doctors the courage to take such cases to court."

Berlin estimated his legal expenses at $5,000. But the countersuit was "a matter of principle," he said. "It would have been easier, and probably cheaper, to settle out of court. But it was worth the battle."

King Carlos welcomed with 21-gun salute

WASHINGTON (AP) — With a 21-gun salute, King Juan Carlos I of Spain was welcomed to the White House today as the first Spanish head of state ever to visit the United States.

President Ford, who received the 38-year-old monarch at a red carpet ceremony on the White House lawn, expressed confidence in the king's ability to meet the challenges Spain faces in the post-Franco era. Juan Carlos has been trying to fashion a more progressive regime in Spain after more than 40 years of hard-line rule under Francisco Franco.

Later in the day, the king was to address a joint meeting of Congress.

Ford sees GOP losing ground if Reagan wins

WASHINGTON, D.C. — President Ford is trying to drive home a political message: Ronald Reagan's selection as Republican Party nominee would worsen GOP prospects for capturing the Presidency and damage party efforts to win Congressional seats.

In a meeting with a small group of California reporters Tuesday, Ford said "I'm absolutely convinced that I can do a better job of helping elect Republican members of the House and Senate."

The President has repeatedly contended he would have a better chance of winning in November than Reagan and hit on that theme again. In response to a question Ford also claimed to be able to attract more votes for Congressional candidates.

Ford supported his claim to being more helpful to GOP Congressional candidates by pointing out California lost two Republican senators and several congressmen while Reagan was governor.

During the 45-minute interview—one of several the President has granted in an effort to bolster his uphill battle for votes in the winner-take-all California primary—Ford stopped short of saying that Reagan could not win in November.

"I just believe I have a far, far better chance of winning in November than any other Republican nominee," Ford said.

He credited Reagan's current strength during the primaries to the former California governor's "skillful campaigning" and to the fact Reagan is "well financed and has all the time to campaign."

The President also admitted the anti-Washington sentiment in the country has contributed to Reagan's success.

Ford said he was making headway in the race for California's 167 delegates, but added, "It is too close to call at this point."

Ford also said he would seek Reagan's "counsel and advice" when he wins the nomination next August. He repeated earlier statements that he hasn't "crossed anyone off" his list of potential vice presidential running mates.

"I don't exclude any Republican. As far as I'm concerned I consider all options open."

Ford also took the opportunity to blast the Democratic Congress for being "on record in favor of more spending, more debt and against a further tax cut."

He was referring to a recently passed budget ceiling which would be $18 billion more than the President has requested. The measure also would not extend a proposed tax cut.

The Humphrey-Hawkins for Employment Bill also was the subject of the President's criticism during the interview.

"There are two very precise defects in the bill. One, it increases inflation, and two, the Humphrey-Hawkins measure would, in effect, put an embargo on agricultural shipment abroad," Ford said.

Aid sought for S.B. County drug force

The San Bernardino County Sheriff's Department has applied for federal matching funds of $228,292 to continue operating the San Bernardino County Regional Narcotic Enforcement Task Force for the next year.

The matching fund grant was applied for through the California Committee on Criminal Justice, administrator of the federal law enforcement fund in California.

The Narcotic Task Force, made up of selected police officers from different law enforcement agencies in San Bernardino County, has been operating successfully in the county area for the past four years. The task force investigates drug and drug-related crimes.

The unit makes available to the Sheriff's Office and police departments of the county a mobile force of highly trained and well-equipped officers who can respond in total or in part, without the loss of its command integrity.

Since the task force began operations, one of its chief officers was killed and several others wounded in the line of duty.

L.A. municipal judge

Seeking Superior Court post

Los Angeles Municipal Court Judge David J. Aisenson is among five persons seeking the Superior Court post of Pomona Judge Robert M. Takasugi who recently was named to the federal bench in Los Angeles.

Takasugi's name remains on the June 8 primary ballot despite the fact that he is expected to be sworn as a U.S. District Court judge July 1. If Takasugi is elected in the primary, it will be up to Gov. Brown to fill his vacant post by appointment, and the governor need not name the runnerup.

Aisenson said that it was never his intention to challenge Takasugi for the office. "My candidacy for the post," he said, "was based on reports that Judge Takasugi was in line for the federal appointment and would not seek to retain his present position in the state court."

Aisenson, 52, is a native of New York City but has lived in Los Angeles for 40 years. He is a graduate of Fairfax High School and UCLA. Immediately after receiving his law degree from Southwestern University in 1955, he passed the California bar examination and was admitted to the practice of law.

During World War II, Aisenson served in the Pacific with the Army Air Corps as a flying radio operator. He had been in private practice in the San Fernando Valley for a year when he was appointed a deputy district attorney in 1956.

In 1962 the judges of the Superior Court elected him a commissioner and in 1966 he was elected to the Municipal Court — one of the few judges chosen by voters without previous gubernatorial appointment.

Aisenson and his wife, Cleota, have four children. They live in Granada Hills.

JUDGE DAVID J. AISENSON

Pomona chamber backs 8 ballot issues, opposes 6

Pomona Chamber of Commerce has announced support of eight propositions on the June 8 ballot and opposition to six others, including Proposition 15, the nuclear power plant intiative.

The chamber's board of directors voted to oppose Proposition 15 because of increasing enery needs from all sources.

Other positions taken by the chamber are:

—Opposed to Proposition 4, the community college bond act, because it would require the individual district to raise matching funds, which would be difficult for small districts.

—Oppose Proposition 5, which would allow the legislature to raise taxes on businesses with only a majority vote rather than a two-thirds vote.

—Oppose Proposition 7, historically property taxation, because it is ambiguous.

—Oppose Proposition 11, because it would divert state gas tax funds for other than highway purposes.

—Oppose Proposition 13, the senior citizens property tax assistance measure, because the board felt it would not actually provide the benefits claimed.

—Support Propositions 1, 2, 3, 6, 9, 10, 12 and 14.

The chamber took no position on Proposition 8.

Egyptians betting on peace

Suez Canal shows signs of assuming old role

ISMAILIA, Egypt (AP) — A year after its reopening, the Suez Canal has yet to regain its old role as a major highway of international trade but the graphs are beginning to point upward.

Egyptians regard the canal as visible evidence that they genuinely seek peace with Israel.

The dozens of ships using the 103-mile waterway every day and the rebirth of the cities along its banks make it difficult, Egyptians say, to envisage the whole enterprise being jeopardized in another war.

Officials of the Suez Canal Authority report that after an initial period of "experimentation and testing," shippers now are showing more confidence that the canal is safe and likely to stay open.

"The monthly increases in traffic are a good sign that the canal is gaining importance as a link between East and West," said the chairman of the authority, Mashour Ahmed Mashour.

In the first month of renewed operation, an average of 11 ships a day went through the canal. The present average is 46 ships a day, and the canal may increase traffic from two to three convoys a day next month.

The canal was closed on June 5, 1967, on the first day of the six-day war which brought the Israelis to its eastern bank. President Anwar Sadat reopened it last June 5.

By then the Israelis had pulled back from the canal and under an agreement last September withdrew to the central Sinai Peninsula, out of artillery range of the waterway. Americans operate electronic monitoring stations to ensure that neither side launches an attack.

As another Egyptian bet on peace, the agreement gave Israel the right to send cargo through the canal on foreign ships for the first time in more than 20 years. Canal officials say there has been about one such passage a month since the canal reopened.

Despite all the reassurances, business in the canal picked up slowly. Canal authority figures show that in the 12 months since it reopened, traffic amounted to 234.2 million tons, in contrast to 548 million tons in 1966, its last full year of operation.

"But the first six months were a period of test," said Ahmed Ammar, the canal's director of research and development. "It is as if we had new merchandise, a new canal. Shipowners were hesitant, they wanted to see if everything worked, if the canal was safe."

Initial reluctance to use the canal may have stemmed from the fact that engineers removed 42,000 live explosives from the bottom and 700,000 mines from its banks. Naval units from the United States, the Soviet Union, France, Britain and Egypt took part in a year-long clearing effort.

Ballast is weight added to empty ships to help them maintain proper draft or trim.

"Our aim is to attract the maximum amount of tonnage through the canal, and our rates are based accordingly," said Mashour.

"We did not expect tankers in ballast in the first six months, but the first came in September and they are increasing."

Dry goods headed for the booming countries of the Persian Gulf have increased greatly over 1966, he said. But the lucrative part of the canal business lies with the tankers, he maintained.

The authority has embarked on a program that will widen and deepen the canal so that 150,000-ton tankers can go through loaded by early 1979, representing half the world's fleet. He indicated the canal in 1980 would be handling around 720 million tons of traffic.

Claremont expecting up to 20% boost in property evaluations

By GEORGE MacLAREN
PB Staff Writer

Property valuations may be reassessed as high as 20 per cent this year, Claremont City Manager Norman King reported Tuesday night as the City Council studied a proposed $4,613,618 budget which King said is $84,463 "out of balance."

King said that there has been no assessed valuation increase in Claremont for at least four years, while in the area north of Foothill Boulevard that has been the case for about nine years.

King said that the city would not know until about mid-July what reassessment the county has put on Claremont property.

King warned that the proposed budget does not provide for any salary and fringe benefit increases, "although certain salary increases are necessary and must be included at a later date."

As presently proposed, the budget calls for no increase in the tax rate of $2.3195 per $100 assessed valuation, but King suggested that it could increase as much as 15 cents per $100 assessed valuation if the financial picture doesn't brighten within the next three months.

King said that the proposed budget would in its deficit state fund a continuation of essentially the same level of services as this year.

For the first time since 1973 the city staff is proposing a sanitation fee increase which will raise $70,000.

The proposed budget includes the receipt of revenue sharing at full yearly funding, but King warned that if Congress fails to pass revenue sharing this month, $65,000 would have to be pared from the budget.

King said that a major reason for the deficit and the city's inability to keep pace with service requirements is that the city spent $80,000 this year from prior-year balances to fund operating expenses.

"This means that the city is in a deficit position as we enter 1976-77, even before inflation and new service costs are projected."

King stressed that three "uncontrollable" items totaling $120,000 have added greatly and unexpectedly to the city's dilemma. Liability insurance is costing the city $60,000 more than last year, workers' compensation insurance $30,000 more, and Public Employes Retirement System $30,000 more.

King called the $120,000 "the harvest of a fundamental shift in social philosophy spurred on by our generous state legislature and some courts who have opened up Pandora's box to certain groups of municipal employes and citizens by transforming what were previously private costs borne by individuals to public costs borne by the general taxpayer."

King said that inflation continues to raise such prices as those for gasoline which this year cost the city $8,000 more than last year, utilities $16,000 more, and postage up $1,600.

Councilwoman Claire McDonald went along with King's suggestion that an alternative to a new street sweeping fee would be a reduced level of service which would save from $20,000 to $30,000.

People have it their way: no burgers at all

By ED PRATHER
PB Staff Writer

It was hamburgers versus homeowners Tuesday night in the Pomona City Council Chambers and the homeowners had it their way.

By a split vote the Pomona City Council overruled a decision of the city's Planning Commission to permit a Jack In The Box restaurant on the northwest corner of Foothill Boulevard and Lynoak Drive.

About 25 Claremont residents, who reside just across the Pomona City Limits from the site, were on hand to appeal the commission's decision. A petition signed by nearly 100 persons was presented.

"How far are we willing to go to accommodate business interests at the expense of the people who live nearby," questioned Ben Campbell, of 1476 Mural Drive.

"Nothing else but profit matters to these big corporations. At some point we have to decide what our standards are," he said.

Campbell and most of the other residents addressing the council complained that the intersection is already heavily congested with traffic, which would be compounded by the drive-in hamburger shop.

They also complained that a Jack In The Box would bring added noise, litter, lights and odors to their neighborhood at all times of the day and night.

"We recognize the need for additional tax revenue and we support you, but the kind of business that should be there won't detract from the neighborhood," said Campbell.

"This is a people issue," said Don Havens, adding his home was closest to the site.

It appeared the people might lose the issue when Councilman Adrian Wright's motion to reverse the Planning Commission decision died for lack of a second, but he was joined later by Councilman Charles Bader and Mayor Ray Lepire on a subsequent motion.

Speaking in support of the restaurant were Pomona real estate agent Sanford Newton and the real estate manager for Jack In The Box, Kenneth Dingler.

Newton noted that the zoning was correct for the restaurant and Foothill Boulevard was historically a commercial area where such developments were appropriate.

Dingler said Jack In The Box would do everything possible to "be a good neighbor" and prevent any deterioration of the area.

The majority vote by the council, however, turned on the issue of the future potential of Foothill Boulevard, with both Wright and Lepire stating that land on the boulevard was "a premium" and that something better was warranted.

Council members Benjamin Ochoa and Georgia Grove voted to approve the restaurant on the basis that the city needed the tax revenues and employment generated by the business.

In other action, the council unanimously rejected a request from the Los Angeles County Board of Supervisors that Pomona, along with every other city in the county, consider contributing $4.92 per capita to the Southern California Rapid Transit District to subsidize the 25-cent bus fare.

Bader called the proposal "ludicrous." It would cost Pomona about $429,000 or about 23-cents on the local property tax rate.

Montclair chooses its Citizen of Year

George C. Klotz, coordinator of the Montclair birthday and Bicentennial celebration, has been named Citizen of the Year for 1975-76 by the City of Montclair and the Montclair Chamber of Commerce.

Klotz was feted at the 17th annual chamber installation luncheon Tuesday at the Holiday Inn in Ontario by city and business officials.

Mayor Harold Hayes said, in making the presentation, that Klotz had given outstanding service and contributions to the city and was a credit to the local business community. The honor, Hayes said, was "in appreciation of dedicated and inspiring service."

The mayor also paid tribute to Ben Baker, director of music and bands at Montclair High School, with a special award. Baker, who suffered a heart attack during the Montclair birthday-Bicentennial parade April 24 and only recently returned home after weeks of hospitalization, was unable to attend the luncheon.

"Ben Baker has shown a personal interest in hundreds of Montclair High School students far above and beyond the responsibilities of his job," Hayes said. "He has instilled in them pride in accomplishment. This is long overdue recognition."

Klotz served as chairman of the 20th Anniversary and Bicentennial Committee which highlighted the April observances with a queen contest, a carnival at Alba Hoffman Park, nightly entertainment in the Civic Center, a parade and dedication of the Avenue of Flags along Holt Boulevard.

After expenses, the committee realized $2,647 profits from the celebration.

Klotz, a nine-year resident of Montclair, has been a member of the Community Action Committee for five years and was elected president of the city advisory group in January. He is employed as agency manager for Lutheran Mutual Life Insurance Co.'s Montclair office and recently placed second in United States sales for the nation-wide company.

Chino budget rises 22%, tax rate changes little

By JON MORRIS
PB Staff Writer

Chino's proposed $8 million budget for 1976-77 again calls for a large increase in spending, but holds the line on property taxes.

The budget, reflecting a 22 per cent boost in expenditures over last year, was handed to the City Council Tuesday night by City Manager Bob Fast.

Last year, Fast recommended a fiscal plan calling for a 30 per cent spending increase and no hike in the city tax rate. The figures are different, but the story is the same this year.

The tax rate is proposed at $1.4976 per $100 assessed valuation, hardly a change from the $1.4981 levied in 1975-76. The previous year's rate was $1.5031.

City officials also will levy the voter-approved 25-cent tax override for the new Civic Center, bringing the total tax rate to $1.7476. The override was levied in last year's budget.

Total expenditures are estimated at $8,008,707, a 22 per cent increase over the 1975-76 budget of $6,562,821.

Estimated revenues are $6,835,280 plus a "carryover" surplus from last year of $2,184,170.

Fast, in his written message on the budget, generally blamed inflationary factors for the big increase in spending. "The principal causes of the increase are due to a variety of factors, many uncontrollable."

Increased insurance and retirement costs reflect a 32 per cent hike, he noted. New refuse contract costs will go up $140,000 or 63 per cent over last year; and there will be a 67 per cent boost in the Fire Department Budget.

Also, the city building maintenance budget is up $89,200 over 1975-76, because of the new Civic Center.

On the revenue side, assessed valuation is expected to increase by 15 per cent, totalling $75,092,400, Fast reported. That figure is $9,794,652 higher than last year.

New revenues in the general fund will increase $880,000. However, "fixed cost increases" of materials and services, city funded portion of retirement payments, automatic salary step increases, and doubling of insurance costs will total $990,000 "more than offsetting those new revenues," Fast said.

No provision is made in the preliminary budget for a cost-of-living wage increase for employes, according to the city manager. The budget is based on current wages and will be changed following completion of negotiations.

The budget is balanced with no increase in the tax rate because of the "significant carryover" in revenue experienced from "last year's boom," Fast explained.

Fees from engineering, building and planning permits, plus sales tax revenues "far exceeding expectations" and prudent investment of those receipts provided much greater earnings of city funds, he added.

Fast says, however, that the city is "merely holding its own."

The fiscal plan shows an increase in personnel partly due to staffing for maintenance of the Civic Center Some growth is shown in Water, Police and Fire departments — "services which tie directly to increases in population." Other departments such as Engineering, Planning, Building and Finance are being held to previous levels despite the city's growth, Fast said.

S.B. County sets fee for ambulances

San Bernardino County supervisors Tuesday adopted an ordinance and established a fee schedule for the operation of ambulances in the county's unincorporated areas.

In a report to supervisors, Robert E. Russell, administrator for the county's health care services agency, reported the ordinance responds to concerns previously expressed by supervisors regarding the control and costs of services provided by ambulance operators.

There have been instances of alleged dissatisfaction by consumers, insurance companies, hospital operators and ambulance operators regarding the control and operation of ambulance services, he added.

In summary, these included excessive and variable rates, poor and inadequate service, dual response to single emergencies, excessive competition in a single area, no control of marginal operators, lack of adequately trained ambulance personnel and lack of consumer protection.

The ordinance prepared, said Russell, was developed to assign service areas, control maximum rates, specify minimum service, require trained personnel and adequate equipment, and minimum insurance, provide a complaint system and includes a provision for interstate transport agreements.

Under the permit procedure, this would include an investigation of the application by the county health officer to determine compliance with the ordinance and make permit recommendations to the Board of Supervisors.

Regarding the proposed fee schedule, Russell said the ambulance association conducted a survey of 35 counties in California and Nevada to determine the range of fees charged for various ambulance services.

Based on this information, he submitted these proposed rates:

Base rate, $50; mileage, $2; time rate (15 minutes), $7.50; night service, $7.50; use of red light and siren, $5; oxygen, $7.50; resuscitation, $15; and cardiopulmonary resuscitation, $25.

In accepting the proposed ordinance, Supervisor Robert Townsend of Chino said he hoped cities within the county would examine the county program and possibly adopt similar ordinances.

"This is the first step in an attempt to prohibit an ambulance firm from unjustly charging a person or family in desperate need of service," he said.

Ontario woman hurt when struck by train

A 52-year-old Ontario woman was seriously injured Tuesday morning when she was struck by a Union Pacific train on Euclid Avenue.

Mildred Steel of 216 E. Nevada St., was listed in fair condition this morning at San Bernardino County Hospital with multiple injuries suffered in the 10 a.m. accident.

Train engineer James Sidney Smith of Los Angeles told police that he was about 185 feet from the Euclid Avenue crossing when he saw the woman start to cross the tracks. He said the woman saw the train coming and tried to run, but was struck by the engines right front cowling. Smith said he brought the train to a stop immediately after it atruck the woman.

Several witnesses confirmed the engineer's statement and told police that both the crossing gates, the bells and lights across the highway, were operating, police said.

Police said that the woman may have been drinking earlier, and did not see the train coming until the last second.

Mrs. Steel was rushed to San Antonio Community Hospital for emergency treatment of arm, back and possible internal injuries suffered in the accident. She was later transferred to the county hospital.

La Verne Rotary to present award

Mary Buehler, who for years has been organizing and supervising community dinners in La Verne, will be honored with a "vocational service award" by the La Verne Rotary Club Thursday noon.

The presentation will be at Castaway Restaurant in Pomona.

Rites pending for Pomonan

Funeral services are pending for a 19-year-old Pomona youth whose body was recovered from the All-American Canal Monday afternoon near Salton Sea State Park.

The Imperial County Sheriff's Department said that Richard Archie Spence, 19, was drowned May 29 while he was swimming with two companions in the All-American Canal.

The companions said that Spence decided to swim through a 100-yard long siphon, a 12-foot-wide conduit which aids the gravity flow of water in the canal.

He disappeared May 29, but his body was not recovered until Monday afternoon in the general vicinity.

Spence and his companions had been camping at Mecca State Beach.

Roadblock to agency reform

Once a president takes to tailoring his policies to fit the primaries or the polls, there's no end to it. Few take seriously even those programs on which he's set his heart, election or no election.

This is the unfortunate situation in which President Ford now finds himself. It is no secret that Mr. Ford upped his naval shipbuilding request immediately following the Texas primary. Or that, faced with charges from Ronald Reagan, he asked Congress for permission to keep the production lines open for more Minutemen. Or that he has put off action on some very significant negotiations with the Soviet Union and, it appears, with Panama.

With this jittery knee-jerk reaction in mind, it is no wonder that there's a tendency in this town to write off as politics Mr. Ford's latest hard-line proposal aiming at emasculation of the wasteful, costly programs now built into the federal regulatory agencies, programs which it is estimated cost us as consumers multibillions each year in higher prices and in inefficiently run industries — inefficient because hamstrung by unnecessary, wrongly enforced, counterproductive or vague rules.

This program is dear to Mr. Ford's heart. He has drawn men in from industry and the colleges and given them considerable authority. He has lobbied against overregulation as he has lobbied for no other program we know of. He has used every legal executive trick in the book and pushed programs, whole and piecemeal, through committees of Congress through aides in whom he had trust.

Now in all this, a continuing effort which began shortly after he became president, Mr. Ford was under no illusions. Key men in this program have admitted time and again that, by all precedent, the assault on overlapping and stifling regulation had little chance of success. But they calculated that in maintaining the pressure, and by excising a section of the antiquated rules here and a section there, they might eventually be able to break the logjam, and get American productivity moving upward again.

In each of their defeats they were consoled by Mr. Ford, urged to keep going. After each victory, however small, they were given encouragement.

There is reason to believe that this current effort will fail — this setting timetables for himself and for Congress under which four to seven major regulatory agencies would be taken up each year over a four-year period. And under which the president would be committed to writing specific reform proposals each of these years for each agency. And also under which Congress would be required to take action within nine months or, failing that, to vote yes or no on each presidential proposal on the Senate and House floors, bypassing further committee action.

This asks Congress to grant President Ford more initiative in this area than it is willing to do.

Further, almost any congressman is willing to admit the sins of overregulation. But when it gets down to the nitty gritty, the concentrated power of those favoring superregulation in each instance is greater than the diffuse power of the consumer who would benefit.

But as we understand it, this latest proposal is Mr. Ford's way of keeping the pressure on, in the belief that sooner or later, as related above, he will have built sufficient small fires under Congress to get some action.

Perhaps there will then be a little less paper work demanded by the federal government. And we will all have more time to go about our business.

It would be a shame if this effort is drowned in political cynicism. For it is something on which, in principle at least, Mr. Ford, Mr. Reagan and Mr. Carter seem to agree.

Dial-a-question for the deaf

On the subject of the telephone's 100th anniversary, it is fitting to note that one of the latest uses of this invention is of direct benefit to those who cannot hear. Alexander Graham Bell, we sometimes forget, was a teacher of the deaf.

International Correspondence Schools (ICS) recently inaugurated a "Dial-A-Question" service to enable its deaf students around the country to communicate directly with their instructors in Scranton, Pa.

The basis for the service is an acoustic telephone coupler — TTY — used in conjunction with a teletypewriter. The student sets his telephone receiver into the coupler, dials a toll-free number and types out his message, which is received on another teletypewriter at the other end. After the answer to his question is obtained, it is transmitted back over the same system.

Currently, there are more than 12,000 TTY stations throughout the U.S. and Canada, including hundreds available through organizations serving the deaf. Primary use of the TTY system has been for emergency communications. The ICS innovation is the first time it has been used on a national scale for educational purposes.

Overshadowing good deeds

Dear Editor:

We echo the plaudits given to dedicated physicians by columnist Earl G. Waters in the Progress Bulletin of May 10, which has just come to my attention. Saying that "large numbers (of physicians) have been regularly donating their services all their lives to worthy causes," he cites Dr. Marco R. Rago of Los Angeles, as well as a Midwestern physician who opened a no-charge clinic after he retired.

It may be of interest to Waters and your readers that the Midwestern physician, Dr. Eugene R. Balthazar of the Chicago suburb of Aurora, almost had to close his clinic when a patient filed an unwarranted malpractice suit. However, the suit was so totally without merit that the patient failed to appear in court for the trial. Nonetheless, such actions increasingly threaten the availability of medical care by dampening doctors' dedication to serve humanity.

Another factor that dampens doctors' enthusiasm are inaccurate and biased comments in the news media. Unfortunately, such comments were included in Waters' article, along with his commendations.

Waters said, "The medical profession's image has sunk to an all-time low, brought on by the incompetence of some and the avarice of too many of its practitoners."

This is a "cheap shot" that maligns the vast majority of physicians for the shortcomings of a few. And Waters should know that polls, including the most recent, of the public's confidence in the various professions consistently show physicians at the top, with such others as legislators, lawyers, educators and journalists held in considerably lower esteem.

Waters said, "Doctor strikes and demonstrations . . . caused a public reaction of disgust . . . Their misguided efforts to enlist public sympathy have met with outstanding failure."

Organized medicine's efforts to inform the public about the medical "malpractice" insurance crisis were outstandingly successful and elicited an outpouring of public understanding and support, even during the so-called "strike." The people recognized that physicians are really fighting to keep costs down for the patients of California.

Waters said, "Unfortunately, the incompetent few and the greed of some have overshadowed the superior health services provided Californians and the good deeds of thousands."

I disagree that the deeds of the few "bad apples" have overshadowed the dedication of the majority. What has happened is that the media's headlines about a relative handful of physicians have overshadowed the publicity about the good deeds of the vast majority of physicians and their day-in and day-out dedication to their patients' needs.

Spirit of Plains, Georgia

WASHINGTON — The stately, white Baptist church blends naturally into the peaceful rural setting of Plains, Ga. Its traditional steeple and stained-glass windows are indistinguishable from thousands of other small-town churches throughout the South.

But this particular little church has a parishioner who may become President: Jimmy Carter.

Our roving reporter, Hal Bernton, joined the Carter family for Sunday services. He sat next to the candidate's mother, Lillian Carter, but moved away after she whispered politely: 'Jimmy usually sits here."

A smiling Carter, accompanied by his Secret Service guards, arrived in time to teach his Sunday school class. He embraced a parishioner, turned to wave to a photographer and then entered through a side door.

He was the ideal Sunday school teacher, with his easiness of manner, his engaging sincerity, the way his whole personality smiled every time he grinned. He had a gift, too, for expressing himself movingly and for reducing great issues to simple moral principles.

Other members of the congregation still talk about how he stood up for those principles during the turmoil over civil rights in 1964. As a church deacon, he missed the critical meeting when the other 11 deacons and the pastor voted unanimously to ban blacks from the congregation.

The next Sunday, Carter stood before the congregation and urged them to reverse the decision of the deacons. The congregation disregarded his appeal and voted to segregate their church. The Carters cast five of the six dissenting votes.

Carter's spirited sister, Gloria Spann, resigned from the church in protest. But Jimmy Carter stayed on.

Racial segregation in churches had become a largely forgotten political issue in the 1970s. But Detroit's black mayor, Coleman Young, speaking in Carter's behalf, accused his presidential rival, Morris Udall, of belonging to a church that discriminates against blacks. Carter refused to repudiate the statement.

In fact, Udall's church welcomes blacks to its services. Carter's church, despite his objections, does not. His sister told Bernton that the only blacks she can recall attending the church were a Secret Service man and a Georgia state trooper who were there to protect Carter.

Bernton also visited Koinonia, a small, closed religious community six miles down the road from Plains. Koinonia is a mixed community of blacks and whites, who practice a simple communal Christianity.

During the passions of the late 1950s, many of the more traditional residents of the area viewed Koinonia as a hotbed of radical and dangerous philosophies. The brotherhood taught there was regarded by some as outright Communism.

Koinonia's produce market was bombed, and snipers periodically fired random shots at the community's small houses. The people of Plains even organized a boycott against Koinonia's products. Most merchants and farmers refused to do business with the community. Those who dared to deal with Koinonia found their own products boycotted.

Florence Joran, widow of Koinonia's founder, told Bernton: "We are Southerners, so we understood . . . I can count on the fingers of my right hand the number of people who stood behind us during those difficult times, and Jimmy Carter was not one."

But the candidate's mother told Bernton that in those troubled times her son offered to buy the farm's produce if there was no one else who would buy it.

Bernton concluded after spending almost a week visiting with Carter's neighbors that the Democratic front runner is a decent man, with granite in his character but a limit to his vision.

Paul Harvey

After Hugh Hefner, what?

Playboy is going out of style. The empire Hugh Hefner built around The Bunny is failing to reproduce itself. Now the name Playboy is more a liability than an asset. The Playboy Club Hotel at Great Gorge, N.J., and the Playboy Towers hotel in downtown Chicago have quietly changed their names to the Great Gorge Resort Hotel and The Towers.

An official of Playboy Enterprises admits that the Playboy name and the rabbit head emblem were a detriment to business. The Wall Street Journal, which audited Playboy Enterprises, discovered that the conglomerate of publications and leisure activities earned $10 million two years ago, but only $1 million last year.

The money-losing string of hotels and key clubs and such were kept afloat only by Playboy magazine, yet that magazine's circulation is down from 7 million circulation in 1972 to 5.5 million now.

Whenever any previously prosperous business hits the skids, everybody involved has to blame somebody else. Hefner blames the recession. Former officials blame Hefner.

A Wall Street securities analyst blames imitators and competitors. They note that, while Playboy circulation has diminished, the circulation of a racier rival publication, Penthouse, has more than doubled.

But Gay Talese, who is writing a book about "Sex In America," observes that what was considered erotic and sensational 15 years ago is taken for granted today. "Nobody gets that excited about looking at a Bunny any more."

Playboy has lost $6.2 million trying to make movies, has lost $5.8 million trying to make and market recordings, and over the past five years has lost $14.4 million in its hotel business.

So when Hugh Hefner sought a bank loan last summer of $12 million to $15 million to buy back shares of stock owned by the public, the bank said no.

All that's holding the one-time vast Playboy empire together is the magazine, and its pretax earnings have sagged from $22 million in 1973 to $8.5 million in '75.

And now the IRS is auditing tax deductions which Mr. Hefner took in maintaining his mansions and his private jet — $15 million since 1970. Any disallowance of those deductions could hurt.

Hefner has since sold the plane and reduced his headquarters overhead by 20 per cent. A former associate, Frank Brady, who wrote a biography of Hefner, calls him "a magazine man who never should have messed with that other stuff."

After Hefner, what? If the sex-oriented publications have lost their allure to all except their foundation 5 per cent of our population, what next? Publications dealing with the occult are increasing in numbers and in circulation — suggesting the possibility that we might be going "from bed to worse."

Just in jest

Having completed the first round of court sessions, they're now beginning to retry the Watergate Plumbers. In some instances previous convictions have already been reversed. And, as time goes on, it begins to look more and more as though the whole mess is degenerating into a make-work program which will provide extremely gainful employment for judges, lawyers, psychiatrists and thousands of satelite experts and authorities for untold years to come.

All of which makes me sometimes wonder why I ever bothered to get into the newspaper business. In this racket one just doesn't get paid for doing a job one way and then get paid for doing it all over again to determine whether that first way was right or wrong. — and finally maybe even get a third pay day by reversing the reversal.

Bilingual ballots

By EARL G. WATERS

Californians are getting the first full flavor of the law imposed upon the state by United States Senator John V. Tunney which requires bilingual ballots.

They have received their sample ballots, 10 million of them, sent to all registered voters. Printed in both English and Spanish (Chinese and English in San Francisco) the format has a confusing effect upon most, even those who understand both languages.

That, of course, is the least of the problem which encumbers the voting process and increases election costs by millions. For the law requires the printing in other languages wherever the foreign population of voting age within any given county is 5 per cent or more. For the Spanish this is determined simply on the basis of surnames.

Considering the fact the law mandated the printing without providing the funds to pay for it, the Tunney Act was an unwarranted imposition upon the state and counties. It would have been a disservice to the taxpayers whether or not the tab was paid by the federal government for the need is yet to be demonstrated, and more than likely can't be.

It was a reaction to the demands of a handful within the many racial groups of the nation, principally those of Mexican origin. While some were sincere, being justly proud of their heritage and the contributions made by the Spanish and Mexican culture to society, especially in California, for others it was merely jumping on the bandwagon of another "cause".

Not all those of Spanish-Mexican ancestry view the law as a favor. Many see it as an insult and a put down, inferring they aren't capable of learning English and need to be catered to.

One of these is Senator Ruben Ayala of Chino. He is eminently qualified to speak on the issue, being the first person of Spanish descent to serve in the California Senate for nearly a hundred years.

Also he represents an area which has a high proportion of persons of Spanish ancestry. He points out however, "that just because someone has a Spanish surname doesn't mean he can't read English. Besides many have Spanish surnames who aren't Spanish. This includes Portugese, Blacks, Cubans and other Latins as well as the wives and American born offspring of such persons."

"The law doesn't even apply to those registered to vote," he said, "instead it refers to overall population which in some areas, like Imperial and San Joaquin, include many aliens who can't vote anyway."

"The real question is why, even if there is a need for some, are the ballots sent to everyone? If we must do it, those who have the need should make the effort of requesting it. You don't automatically send out benefits to every veteran or unemployed. They have to request them. Even those on welfare have to apply for it."

Secretary of State March Fong Eu, despite federal law, obviously agrees with Ayala for she took the practical approach in sending out the millions of voter pamphlets. She printed them in English only but with the "aviso" that copies printed in Spanish were available and included postpaid self-addressed post cards for such requests. By doing so she saved the state $3 million even though she armed herself with 500,000 pamphlets in Spanish. Early reports indicate less than two per cent will be needed, undoubtedly some of those simply out of curiosity.

But she points out that after the Primary and General elections her office will have a handle on the future needs. Perhaps the results will show no need at all.

Island vacation finally arranged

Last year I entered a chain store contest for an island vacation for two.

I was called on the phone and told that I had won the trip.

Although I was supposed to get a call to make arrangements, so far nothing has come of it.

The trip was for a week and was supposed to be taken during a nine-month period. A month's notice was to be given before departure. Time is running out.

I went to the local branch of the chain last October to tell the people there that I had the lucky number. They called the district office.

I kept thinking they would call and tell me about arrangements. So far I haven't heard a word. — C.S., La Verne.

We got in touch with the manager of the branch store in this area.

He explained that the district office had handled travel prizes through a travel agency.

When representatives of the district office investigated your complaint following our inquiry, they learned that the man assigned to make arrangements for your trip had left his agency job without completing them.

The chain store has arranged for the length of time during which your trip can be taken to be extended for one year.

You have been asked to select your first, second and third choices of weeks for the prize. Arrangements for your island vacation will be made on the basis of your selections.

I bought a tree from a local nursery about two months ago for $15.95.

Two weeks after it was planted, it started to die. I called the nursery people, who told me to give it Vitamin B. I did.

About 10 days later it looked the same. The nursery people gave me some additional instructions to follow.

A guy from the nursery came out to see the tree. He said it was dead.

The firm said it would take only half the responsibility. I say I should get a new tree or my money back because I did everything in my power to save the tree.

Someone should have come to see it sooner. — C.F., Chino.

The firm would not reconsider its original offer to sell you another tree for half price.

One of the owners claims it was purchased during a period of hot weather and dry winds and that you let the tree become dehydrated.

He says the firm first heard from you about the condition of the tree three weeks or a month after the purchase.

For Thursday, June 3, 1976

ARIES (March 21-April 19) There's a possiblity you can make small but costly mistakes today in handling your money or possessions. Shun financial risks.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You need a reminder today or you're apt to forget something important you promised to do for another. They're counting on you.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Keeping secrets is not your strong suit today. Take care before you open your mouth.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Something awkward could occur between you and a friend today over a money matter. The amount is apt to be trivial. Save the relationship.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You may put more stock than it's worth in a remark by an influential contact today. Chances are his words weren't all that significant.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You have a way of talking yourself into things today. You could also verbalize your way out of them. Know when to stop and listen.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Nov. 23) Someone you're very fond of socially may not be the right party for a business venture. Don't get this person's hopes up by promising what you can't deliver.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Don't show your aces today before your hand is called. Wait until the time is ripe to show.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) If someone does a personal favor for you today, keep it private. Revealing it would compromise your benefactor.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) While you'll be justly proud of your achievements today, it's better not to brag about them. Someone on a losing streak would resent it.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You'll make a difficult decision today. It's best if you're left to your own devices. Discussing it with the wrong person can lead to self-doubts.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Don't be timid today about asking a just price for your services. You're vulnerable to being talked into a no-profit deal.

Your Birthday, June 3, 1976

You have won some very valuable friends who can be of great help to you this coming year. Don't be too proud to accept because you feel you're imposing.

Ann Landers

Thinking of suicide—wait

Dear Ann Landers: My heart has been heavy since yesterday when I heard that the lovely 21-year-old daughter of a friend committed suicide.

I recalled vividly the night before my own 21st birthday when I sat with a bottle of poison in front of me as I wrote a farewell note to my parents.

When I finished the note I was dissatisfied with the wording and decided to wait another day and write a better one. The following morning I decided I couldn't be a quitter, even though I was involved in a sordid affair with a married man, failing in college, and didn't think life was worth living.

Next week I have another birthday coming up — my 66th. When I think of what I would have missed these last 45 years, I shudder.

I gave up my love affair, finished school and became a successful teacher. I married a fine man and we raised four lovely daughters. My advice to anyone contemplating suicide is this: Don't be in a hurry. Suicide is so final. Wait just one more day and things may look different. If you don't wait, you'll never know. — Glad I Did

Dear Glad: So am I. When YOU were 21 they didn't have suicide prevention centers, Crisis Intervention, or any of the other wonderful organizations that stand ready to help. In Chicago, the number to call is 794-3609.

Dear Ann Landers: What is the correct thing to do when you are a guest in a home and the food is just terrible?

The main course didn't smell right and I was unable to eat much of it. The vegetables were boiled to death — mushy and tasteless — the potatoes, burned.

I hoped the dessert would be edible, but it wasn't. Another guest and myself discussed this on the way home when we stopped for a snack. Neither of us knew of a solution. Do you? — Didn't Want To Be Rude

Dear Didn't: Never eat food ANYPLACE if it doesn't smell right. Especially fish. God put your nose directly above your mouth for a reason.

When you encounter inedible food at a dinner party, rearrange it on your plate and disguise the problem as best you can.

Dear Ann Landers: That letter signed "Blabbermouth" shook loose some memories.

When I was young I thought it was smart to "tell secrets." I even named the people who had confided in me. In later years, I stopped revealing names but I still blabbed a lot.

As time went on, I studied my friends who were popular and soon figured out that they were the ones who kept their mouths shut.

I began working on my loose lip and discovered the less I blabbed the better I liked myself. I noticed that others liked me better, too.

I also discovered the same about people who are extremely critical (which I was). Nobody likes to be picked to pieces.

"Teller Of Secrets" was only 12, according to her letter. If she starts now, by the time she's 15 she will have conquered two of life's greatest handicaps — blabbing and being critical. Sign me — The Voice Of Experience

Dear Voice: Your letter is a short course on how to promote good human relations. Thank you for writing.

How much do you know about pot, L.S.D., cocaine, speed, meth, uppers and downers, glue and heroin? Are all these drugs dangerous? Get Ann Landers' new booklet, "Straight Dope on Drugs." For each booklet ordered, send a dollar bill plus a long, self-addressed envelope (24 cents postage) to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 1400, Elgin, Ill. 60120.

Ballot is a poll-ish joke

Well, I sure am excited about next Tuesday when I have my solicitud para boleta de votante ausente por correo — in other words, a primary presidential preference where I get to name a lot of people I never heard of to vote for presidential candidates I never heard of.

I got confused a couple of weeks ago in that Claremont election and voted to recall Gov. Brown. I hope it didn't impair his chances as Assembly candidate of the Peace and Plenty Party.

The Sample Ballot, Consolidated Primary Election, County of Los Angles, is, as usual, a table-cloth-sized mass of printed matter that, with a couple of eye-holes, would make a suitable shroud for a Ku Klux Klansman. Unfolded, the gargantuan document resembles a Monopoly board — which maybe it is. After the names of candidates for this, that and the other, I expect to read "STOP! Don't go!" and "Go back two spaces for voting for a Superior Court judge for Member of the Assembly."

Once you have got the gaudy little ballot unfolded, you can forget it. Like a highway road map, it is impossible to fold up. I'll go into the polling place next Tuesday dragging this bedsheet of bilingual voting instructions behind me like Linus and his blanket.

There are, if I have counted my Siga a La Pagina correctly, 44 candidates eagerly awaiting the thrust of my voting stylus to place them in every office from President of the U.S. of A. to county dog catcher. Personally I'd rather be a dog catcher.

Presidential Preference, United States Senator, Representative in Congress, State Senator, Member of the Assembly, Member County Central Committee, District Attorney, Nonpartisan, None of the Above. The list is as enlightening as the La Puente telephone directory.

Whatever the reascals we sweep out as we sweep other rascals in, what really intoxicates me is my power to spend so much money. I, who have to go to the credit union every time my tax bill comes due, am asked if I want to spend $200 million for schools, $500 million for farm and home aid to veterans, $150 million for community colleges and $175 million for drinking water. Por cerreo? Por Dios!

So in addition to 44 candidates, including 14 Superior Court judges (What do I know from Superior Court judges?!), I must make up my mind on 15 state measures (medidas estatales) and two county questions (cuestiones del condado)!

If someone hears a loud snore coming from one of those canvas voting booths in the library next Tuesday, come in and wake me up, will you? Not with a stylus, though.

Dr. Lamb

Heartburn can be avoided

DEAR DR. LAMB — For the past several months I have been having burning pain in the pit of my stomach. It even wakes me up at night. I thought I had an ulcer but the doctor took X rays and said I didn't have an ulcer but I do have a hernia into my chest. He called it a hiatal hernia.

He put me on some medicine for the acid in my stomach but that is all the medicine he gave me. Should I be taking something else? Also what else should I be doing? I have read about this condition before in your columns but I didn't save them and now I need the information.

DEAR READER — That burning in the pit of your stomach is caused by the contents in your stomach leaking out of the top your stomach into the lower esophagus (food tube) where it connects to the stomach. Technically it is called esophageal reflux.

Normally there is a valve-like closure mechanism that closes the stomach to prevent the backward leak. When a part of your stomach herniates through the diaphragm the closure mechanism becomes faulty and the leak occurs.

Your doctor gave you antacids to neutralize the acid in your stomach. This helps to prevent the acid burn of the lower esophagus that is causing the symptoms. Some people call this "heartburn."

Unless the doctor felt you need a sedative for nervousness, it is not necessary to take any other medicine for this condition. The rest of the treatment is based on your life style.

The number of things you should do is more detailed than I can cover here so I am sending you The Health Letter number 4-8 on Hiatal Hernia, Esophageal Reflux. This condition occurs in about half of the people older than 50. Others who need this information can send their request in with 50 cents and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for mailing. Address your letter to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

It is important that you learn to sleep with the head of your bed elevated about 10 inches. If you can keep your chest up, the contents of the stomach are not likely to leak out.

Try to eat small meals. The stomach will empty faster this way. The less there is in the stomach the less chance there will be of a backward leak into the lower esophagus. You may find it helps to eat five or six small meals a day instead of three larger ones.

Always allow some time for the stomach to empty before you lie down after eating. A good rule is to wait at least two hours after eating before going to bed or lying down. With five or six small meals a day that doesn't leave much time for lying down.

Don't wear anything that constricts your abdomen. If you are squeezed around the waist it compresses your stomach and this will literally squeeze the acid contents of the stomach up and into the lower esophagus and cause burning.

Belts and girdles are the chief offenders. You would be surprised how many men wear trousers that are several inches too small around the waist.

It is important to protect your lower esophagus from burning irritation. Chronic irritation can lead to scarring and even obstruction. You can avoid these complications and feel more comfortable with some sensible changes in your life style and the proper use of antacids.

South thought about some sort of slam try after his partner's three-spade bid, but settled for a conservative bid of game.

When dummy hit the table he saw that a small slam was likely and that a 2-2 heart break would let him make seven. He said, "I didn't bid enough."

Then he reached over to dummy and played the king of hearts. East ruffed and led the jack of diamonds. South was mighty glad he hadn't bid six and noted that four was in grave danger. He really thought a while, then played his queen. West won and led a second heart. When the smoke had cleared away South was down two at his four-spade contract.

We really feel sorry for South, but must point out that our old friend pessimistic Pete would have made the game. He would have ducked the first and second hearts. East could ruff the third but Pete would not have needed to try the diamond finesse and would have made the game.

In most systems this particular four notrump is played as showing a balanced 15 or 16 high-card points. Opener is supposed to pass if he holds a minimum 16 and to bid a slam with 18 or a good 17.

If you want to play the bid as Blackwood, you can do so provided your partner agrees with you.

GAME SHOWS

One reason those daytime TV game shows appeal so greatly to the women is they are far swifter than the men in responding to the tricky questions. When men are impaneled to play, the ladies in the audience tend to come up with the answers more readily than the participants on the show. But when women are on the panels, the ladies in the audience find themselves evenly matched.

Two Americans await trial as Angoa mercenaries

KENSINGTON, Md. (AP) — Daniel Gearhart, a 34-year-old Vietnam veteran, left his wife, four children and a mounting stack of bills last February to fight for pro-Western forces in Angola's civil war.

After less than a week in the war, Gearhart disappeared. His whereabouts were a mystery until April 1, when the victorious Soviet-backed revolutionary government of Angola announced he had been captured.

Gearhart and another captured American mercenary, Gary Acker of Sacramento, Calif., are scheduled to stand trial June 8 before a "people's revolutionary tribunal" in Angola. The State Department says there is "absolutely nothing the U.S. government can do" to bail them out.

Gearhart and Acker disappeared near the Zaire border while fighting for the National Front for the Liberation of Angola (FNLA).

In Kensington, a suburb of Washington, D.C., Sheila Gearhart waited in the three-bedroom home on a pleasant treelined street for word of her husband's fate. The money her husband had promised to send her never arrived, so she applied for welfare.

"I had almost accepted the fact that I would never see him again," Mrs. Gearhart said. "And then April 1, bam, your husband's been captured."

The new Angolan government said 13 captured mercenaries, including two Americans, would be tried by a 30-member "international free jury" composed of Angolans and their African and Cuban supporters.

Three weeks later, the Angolans said the trial would be conducted instead by an Angolan "people's revolutionary tribunal." They identified Gearhart and Acker as two of the defendants.

Since his return from Southeast Asia in 1970 where he served in the Special Forces, Gearhart had fancied himself as an adventurer.

He was a member of the Maryland National Guard. His hobby was skydiving. His civilian life, however, was not a happy one. His most recent job was maintaining cafeteria equipment at the National Institutes of Health in Bethseda, Md.

"I noticed each year he would become more and more tense and would not communicate, would not talk," Mrs. Gearhart said. She took a parttime job to help with the bills which were piling up rapidly.

Last summer, Gearhart placed an ad in Soldier of Fortune Magazine.

"Wanted: Employment as a mercenary on full-time or job-contract basis, preferably in South or Central America, but anywhere in the world if you pay transportation."

He waited for an answer.

In December, Gearhart started talking about Angola with his fellow guardsmen. He said there was "big money overseas," Lance Cpl. James Bogg, a friend, recalled.

"I had read a lot about this Angola junk, and I told him you have got to be crazy or something," Bogg said.

In January, David Bufkin, 39, who claims to have been a soldier of fortune for 15 years, said he spotted Gearhart's application to be a mercenary in the FNLA's headquarters in Kinshasa, Zaire.

On Feb. 3, Gearhart called his wife at work and told her he was leaving the country. "I did not see him night or day for more than about 30 or 45 minutes until he left Feb. 6," she said.

"He must have come in about 6 o'clock in the morning. He had been packing his this and he was very, very nervous. He couldn't even look me straight in the eyes," she said. "There was no way I could stop him. I had put a ball and chain him."

That same day, with promises of making up to $2,000 a month, Gearhart boarded a plane for Paris and then hopped another plane for Zaire. Bufkin, a Californian who has since returned to the United States, said there were seven other American mercenaries aboard the same flight.

Upon arriving in Kinshasa, Bufkin said, each man received military equipment and food plus two weeks' salary — $1,000 in crisp new American $100 bills.

They left on Feb. 8 for battle in Sao Salvador, an Angolan town near the Zaire border, where they were paid an additional $700 to $800.

Reports on the men's capture were sketchy. Bufkin said a British mercenary reported that Gearhart was part of a patrol surprised by 2,000 Cuban troops.

Gearhart's predicament has been extremely delicate for the U.S. government.

Court strikes down government jobs ban to aliens

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court today struck down a federal regulation which banned permanent resident aliens from government jobs.

The 5-4 decision clears the way for millions of aliens to seek federal jobs all over the country, ranging from janitors to secretaries to middle-level administrators.

In an opinion by Justice John Paul Stevens, the court ruled that the Civil Service Commission unconstitutionally deprived aliens of liberty without due process of law.

In another case involving aliens, the court unanimously upheld the constitutionality of a law providing Medicare benefits to aliens only after they have lived in the United States for at least five years and have been admitted for permanent residence.

The statute had been challenged by a group of elderly Cuban refugees from the Miami area.

Stevens, who also wrote the Medicare opinion, said Congress has the authority to decide when aliens become eligible to share in the benefits provided for citizens.

The two refugee cases were the first in which Stevens has written majority opinions since he took his seat last December.

Joining him in the majority on the issue of aliens' eligibility for government jobs were Justices William J. Brennan Jr. and Thurgood Marshall, the court's most liberal members, and Justices Potter Stewart and Lewis F. Powell, sometimes considered as swing votes.

The dissenters were Chief Justice Warren E. Burger and Justices William H. Rehnquist, Byron R. White and Harry A. Blackmun.

Four Chinese immigrants brought suit in San Francisco challenging the regulations enforced by the Civil Service Commission and certain other federal agencies.

The rules excluded all persons except American citizens and natives of Samoa from most federal jobs. A permanent resident alien is a foreigner who has been authorized to live in the United States but does not obtain citizenship.

The court ruled that the commission has no authority to issue such a sweeping ban.

But Stevens suggested that Congress or the president might be justified in issuing such rules.

"We may assume ... that if the Congress or the President had expressly imposed the citizenship requirement, it would be justified by the national interest in providing an incentive for aliens to become naturalized, or possibly even as providing the president with an expandable token for treaty negotiating purposes," Stevens wrote.

But he said the court was acting on that assumption without specifically deciding that Congress or the President has the constitutional power to exclude aliens from government jobs.

At any rate, the court said it was clear "that neither the Congress nor the President has ever required the Civil Service Commission to adopt the citizenship requirement" as a condition for federal employment.

The commission was acting on its own and exceeded its authority, the court said.

In an 8-0 opinion by Justice Thurgood Marshall, the court reversed a decision of the U.S. Circuit Court in Denver that "source, byproduct and special nuclear materials" are subject to the Federal Water Pollution Control Act.

The government, in arguing for reversal of the lower court decision, said the circuit court ruling would be likely to delay construction and operation of needed nuclear power plants by requiring monitoring by two regulatory agencies instead of one. It said it was important for utilities to know in advance what standards they would have to meet.

Exclusive regulation of such materials by the Nuclear Regulatory Commission had been challenged by the Colorado Public Interest Research Group, which said the act created "a comprehensive system to regulate all water pollution."

Environmentalists had expressed concern that the Nuclear Regulatory Commission, by following a cost-benefit approach in setting standards, might go easy on environmental and health risks in order to stimulate energy production.

The case arose out of a dispute over the Colorado Public Service Company's Fort St. Vrain nuclear generating station.

In reversing the circuit court's decision, the justices said they were not declaring that the Environmental Protection Agency has "no role to play in protecting the environment from excessive radiation."

In 1970 the Environmental Protection Agency was given the responsibility for setting nuclear waste standards to protect the general environment. The Atomic Energy Commission, which has since become the Nuclear Regulatory Commission, continued to regulate source and byproduct discharges from specific plants.

Nuclear source materials are uranium, thorium and ores containing these and similar substances.

Byproduct material is material which is produced or made radioactive by the process of producing "special nuclear material." Special nuclear material consists of substances artificially enriched by nuclear reactors in the process of producing energy.

The Colorado Public Interest Research Group contended that Congress intended to bring these materials under EPA regulation when it amended the Water Pollution Control Act in 1972 to cover some radioactive substances.

The court said a study of the proceedings in Congress indicated that the bill was not meant to encompass radioactive materials which were then within the jurisdiction of the AEC.

The consumer group which brought the suit appeared to believe that EPA standards would be stricter because the regulations would be predominantly guided by environmental considerations.

In other action, the Supreme Court:

—Agreed to review the federal government's power to compel state regulation of automobile exhaust fumes.

—Ruled that organizations representing poor people have no basis for a law suit challenging the tax-exempt status of non-profit hospitals which turn away patients who are unable to pay.

—Decided that federal employes have the same right as workers in private industry to a full trial when they bring charges of employment discrimination.

Analysis for 'normal'

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: My 22-year-old daughter just told me she is in psychoanalysis. She has always seemed normal and I've never thought of her as being mentally ill or of having any serious problems. I feel I've failed her. She seems distant although we've always had a good relationship. My daughter says she is normal and that you don't have to be deeply troubled to benefit from analysis. She says it is helping her progress in her business. Do you think she's telling the truth? — T.W.

Dear T.W.: I don't know your daughter, but it sounds to me as if she's being quite honest with you.

The so-called normal person can benefit a great deal from psychoanalysis. Through it your daughter can learn more about herself and, through greater understanding, can overcome inhibitions which may have been diminishing her usefulness and efficiency.

Partly because of their changing role, women often have special work problems. Those who still feel it's wrong to compete with men may need to break old habits, such as deferring to a man even when they may disagree or know that his opinion is incorrect. Women also may have special problems in asserting themselves, especially if they came from homes where males were given special privileges.

It's important for you to realize that no parent is perfect, and there's nothing to be gained by regret or guilt. Parents often blame themselves needlessly for everything that goes wrong in a child's life as if there were no other influences on that child.

You can help your daughter by encouraging her and giving her your full support. If she seems estranged at times, try to understand that she's going through a searching, difficult period and that her problems may have nothing to do with you. Eventually, her analysis will lead to greater happiness and better adjustment.

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: I'm engaged and plan to marry in the fall. At a recent party my fiance got drunk and made a complete fool of himself. He got weepy and silly and didn't make any sense. He hardly ever drinks but he certainly did that night. He's apologized over and over. Everyone has laughed it off except my parents who weren't crazy about him in the first place. Now my mother says I may be marrying a problem drinker and should think it over before it's too late. Should I? — R.P.

Dear R.P.: I'd say you've half answered your own question when you said that your fiance hardly ever drinks. An engagement can be a time of considerable nervousness, especially when there's parental disapproval. Since you've known him for a long time and he's never done this before, I think you should chalk it up to nerves and inexperience with liquor. He simply may have had more than he was used to or what he had affected him strongly because of the tension of the engagement period. Everyone has the right to make a fool of himself occasionally. It needn't be habit-forming. And if that's the only black mark your mother has chalked up against your fiance, he's doing just fine. Be happy.

Voters League officers named

The League of Women Voters of Claremont at their annual meeting voted to act to achieve equal rights for all, to combat discrimination and poverty, and to provide equal access to housing, employment and quality education.

The vote was a reaffirmation of an action the local group adopted in 1969.

According to Judy Wright, who was elected to her second one-year term, the league has provided leadership for the organization of a coalition that will look at multi-cultural education in Claremont.

The membership passed a resolution that since the local community has been divided seriously over the recent school board issues, and since a healing process is needed to bring together the discordant factions, "We endeavor to do everything in our power to engender a spirit of good will among all citizens."

The membership further states that "as individual members, we further resolve to indicate, on a one-to-one basis, that we believe that people of differing opinions not only have the right to express them, but of being heard and respected for holding them."

The members also voted as study items for the next year:

— Further study of the North Claremont area, with emphasis on the hillsides, and an updating of the Claremont General Plan.

— Study of the role of the citizen in the local government decision-making process.

Elected to office were: Lissa Peteren, vice-president; Ruth Iredell, treasurer; Karen Rosenthal, Margaret Serpa, Marge Ryan, Diann Ring, Sara Szemer, Mary Jane Merrill, Sue Keith and Christine Moehring, directors.

Nominating committee for the coming year includes Arlene Banks as chairman, Margaret Cooke and Wendy King.

Continuing as officers next year are: Muriel O'Brine and Ruth Robbins, vice-presidents; Marsha King, secretary; and Laura Wheeler and Annette Crowell, directors.

Committee chairmen appointed to the board are Paula Lightfoot, Georgeanne Andrus, Jean Kaufman, Linda Elderkin, Diana Malan, Jennifer Kern, Wanda Jones and Joy Compton.

Adult Singles to meet

Mrs. Josephine Gottuso, an attorney with offices in Upland, will be the speaker when the Claremont Adult Singles meet Friday evening.

Mrs. Gottuso will discuss wills, estates. probates and other pertinent items. A question and answer period will follow.

The meeting is scheduled at 7:30 p.m. in the Round Room of Claremont United Methodist Church.

Further information may be obtained by contacting Jim Buntain, 822-3053 after 4:30 p.m., or Mrs. Freda Foxley, 624-1750.

Color schemes tell tales

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — A quick way to gain some insight into the personalities of your fellow apartment dwellers is to check out the color schemes in their apartments, says the editor of a mazagine devoted to apartment living.

Psychologists have known for a long time that certain personality types tend to prefer certain colors because they feel more in harmony with them. And because apartment dwellers tend to decorate with more individuality, the colors they choose may be especially revealing, says Dave Jordan of Apartment Life magazine.

Neighbors who use a lot of blue in their decor are often the type of people who like quiet, tranquil relationships, he maintained. Blue is a calm color and the person using it may be exhibiting an "easy-does-it" attitude as the result of a recent upheaval that taxed the individual's ability to cope or as the result of a lifetime of playing it cool.

The red neighbor is just the opposite and generally is a varied-interest person looking for excitement. "If you're seeking an active conversationalist, look toward your neighbor with the red living room," says Jordan.

White rooms can indicate two different types of people. "On one hand," Jordan says, "people who decorate in white may be cold and icy and tend to be sterile thinkers with life styles to match. On the other hand, these people may be aloof because they are genuinely above average and interested in and interesting to those standing apart from the crowd. You'll have to decide which type of person your neighbor is."

If you agree with your green neighbor, you'll find a strong ally; if not, watch out. Those decorating in green tend to be stubborn and tenacious and aren't happy if they don't get what they want. According to Jordan, green people often overcome rather than avoid obstacles, so step aside if you're in their way.

Yellow is a bright "sunshiny" color and apartments this color indicate the same type of person. If you're in the market for some positive thinkers, stop by the apartment where yellow dominates. You'll find out why all those "smile" buttons are yellow.

"A bit different" is sometimes the best way to describe that person who decorates completely in purples and violets. "You may find that the person living in an apartment of violet believes in magical relationships, the Hollywood version of life, and maybe even the Tooth Fairy," says Jordan.

You've read about the sensuous male and female — you just might find them in the nearest brown apartment. People using this color tend to enjoy their bodies and like to decorate their apartments with "comfy-cozy" companions.

"If you're the kind of person who likes cognac, suede and sitting in front of a fireplace on a deep shag rug, you've found a friend in a brown apartment dweller," Jordan adds.

June 10 conclave charted

California Businesswomen, Inc., has completed plans for a conference, "We're Changing Our Image," to be held at the Biltmore Hotel, Los Angeles.

The three-day conference, June 10-12, is the first of its kind in the state. It is aimed at businesswomen becoming recognized as productive members of the executive work force of the nation, while realizing their fair share of the market place as business owners and operators.

Cosponsored by the State Department of General Services, the conference anticipates business and industrial communities as well as government agencies seeking opportunities to do business with firms solely owned and operated by California businesswomen.

Information may be obtained by calling the conference manager, Henrietta Granado, 542-2359, or by writing CBI conference headquarters, 1424-B South Ritchey St., Santa Ana, 92705.

Pomona Valley Women

Edition date set

The Progress Bulletin has set Oct. 26 as the date for publication of its 15th annual edition of Pomona Valley Women so as to coincide with the resumption of club activity for the new season.

Nomination forms for the Woman Achievers of 1976 will be available after Sept. 7.

In previous years the edition was published in July. With the moving forward of the date for publication the newspaper management feels that stories included in the edition will be more up to date.

BIG GLORY — VFW Post 2743's version of the original "Old Glory," a 13-star flag measuring 46 by 75 feet, is sent aloft with a helium baloon. On special occasions it flies above a specially-built tower to help support the 94-pound flag.

Woman's body in mineshaft

BARSTOW (AP) —The body of an unidentified woman clad in shorts and a blue halter top has been recovered from a mineshaft near here, authorities say.

San Bernardino County Sheriff's deputies said a family exploring the area Sunday found the woman at the 30-foot level of the 130-foot shaft.

The woman was described as being 20 to 22 years old, 5-foot-2 to 5-foot-4 and about 135 to 150 pounds. No identification was found with the body and trash had been dumped down the shaft as though to cover it, deputies said.

An autopsy was scheduled to determine the exact cause of death, deputies said.

Rats plague Central Sudan's Nile delta

KHARTOUM, Sudan (AP) — Million of rats are swarming through the fertile delta between the Blue Nile and White Nile rivers in Central Sudan, Africa's largest country, officials report.

There is no precise estimate of how many rats have invaded the area, but from the number killed "there are certainly many millions," said Abdel Aziz of the Ministry of Agriculture.

Authorities say the rats pose no immediate threat to humans or to the country's overall food supply.

"The rats now are finding enough to eat," said Aziz. "It is only when they are hungry or sick that they can bring disease to humans. We shall think about that when the time comes."

However, the rats are eating crops intended to make Sudan self-sufficient in wheat and edible oils, officials said.

The government is fighting back with powerful poison and has killed two million rats in the Blue Nile province alone. A two-week campaign in the fertile Gezira delta between the Blue and White Niles has cost $1.5 million so far.

Aziz says the campaign is moving on to other farming areas where cotton, Sudan's chief cash crop, is grown.

"We hope to finish off all the rats in this campaign," he said.

Sudan has a population of about 18 million people spread over a total area of 967,500 square miles — nearly four times the size of Texas, which has more than 11 million people.

Aziz said the rats reached invasion proportions because the government two years ago reduced the cotton crop in an effort to plant more wheat and nuts to feed its people and cut off imports.

"When they found something to eat, the rats multiplied tremendously," he said.

Aziz refused to give figures on the damage so far. Farmers in the Gezira area said the rats ate all the ground nuts planted, four-fifths of the wheat and three-fifths of the cotton. They had no figures on the total amount of crops planted.

Aziz said the rats have been reported in the Blue Nile province bordering Ethiopia, in the two-million-acre Gezira farming area, in the Suki and Khasham-el-Girba agricultural schemes to the south and in regions bordering the Nuba mountains in southwestern Sudan.

This represents a broad belt of the country stretching roughly east and from west south of the capital, Khartoum.

Authorities are using a mixture of zinc phosphate and waferin, an anticoagulant, to kill the rats. More than 120 tons of the poison are being used, mixed with 3,500 tons of corn and other grains.

Libya, which ended a feud with Sudan last year, sent 10 tons of poison which the Khartoum government did not ask for, officials said.

In January, a rat plague was reported in the three-nation border area of Senegal, Mali and Mauritania on the other side of North Africa.

The rats infested 180,000 acres along the Senegal River. Officials estimated that at the most serious stage there was one rat for every square yard of land. More than $1 million worth of crops was reported destroyed.

King Henry VII

In 1485, Henry VII of England founded the House of Tudor, increased the power of the Star Chamber, developed a navy, sponsored explorations to the New World, and ended feudalism by outlawing private armies.

Many persons seeking to rent mail boxes in the present post office building were refused since none was available.

Those wanting to rent boxes in the new post office may obtain application forms there between 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m., Mondays through Fridays.

GOOD EGGS AWARDS — Herbert A. Hogsett, a retired Chino poultry breeder, and Roy F. Camblin, who retired this year as San Bernardino County's agricultural commissioner, were recipients of the Good Egg Awards at the Inland Empire Poultrymen, Inc.'s second annual breakfast held recently in San Bernardino.

Hogsett served on the California Poultry Improvement Commission for 28 years, including 13 as chairman. The commission was responsible for operation of the Californai egg laying test.

The recipient became a partner with his father in 1929 in producing their own strain of White Leghorn chickens. The operation was moved to Chino in 1948 and sold in 1966.

Camblin became a San Bernardino County biologist in 1946, was promoted to deputy agricultural commissioner in 1948, named assistant agricultural commissioner in 1963 and then appointed agricultural commissioner in 1972.

ELECTED PRESIDENT — Dr. I. Hunter Crittenden, chairman of the cardiac committee of the Inland Heart Center at St. Bernardine Hospital, San Bernardino, has been installed as president of the California Affiliate of the American Heart Association.

A former president of the San Bernardino County Heart Association, he is a pediatric cardiologist and director of the heart catheterization laboratory at the Inland Heart Center.

Elected secretary of the California Affiliate was Mrs. Jack Aronoff, county heart fund chairman for the past two years.

In announcing his selection, Orin Ford, manager of the Monterey Peninsula Airport and recipient of last year's Manager of the Year Award, praised Goodman for his long career in airport transportation and cited his recent accomplishments.

"In the last seven years, culminating particularly with this past year, a series of completed and outstanding projects has been the result of this man's dedicated efforts," he said.

"A system of nine airports now operate efficiently under his direction with approved economic and environmental guides which provide the largest county in California — and the nation — with a truly viable air transportation system."

Jimmy Carter's camp

Here's glimpse of men behind the candidates

Editor's Note — The leading presidential contenders have gotten massive exposure in the press and on TV, but what about the people who raise their money, plan their campaigns and write their speeches? The following is the first of three articles on presidential campaign staffs and focuses on the Jimmy Carter organization.

By DICK PETTYS
Associated Press Writer

ATLANTA (AP) — The campaign organization that put Jimmy Carter in the lead in the Democratic presidential race makes up for its lack of national political experience through intense work and crusading zeal.

The organization was built around a handful of longtime Carter loyalists, many of them young and few with exposure to national campaigning. But its efforts worked, as Hamilton Jordan, the 31-year-old national director, puts it: "because most of the people involved have worked closely together for a good while."

"It's a once-in-a-lifetime thing for all of us involved," said Jordan, "and I think we realize it. We're all committed to it. You just can't work regular hours."

Jordan, press secretary Jody Powell and a few others were the only staff members when Carter opened his campaign in early 1975. Their experience was basically limited to Georgia.

The staff has grown to around 280 now, and the inner circle of advisers has widened to include two key staffers from Sen. George McGovern's 1972 Democratic presidential campaign: fundraiser Morris Dees and pollster Patrick Caddell.

There are specialized staffs within the organization to handle fund raising, issues and the accumulation of delegates.

"He leaves the campaign to us to run," Jordan says of Carter. "He has no idea how much we're spending in a state. He's the candidate. He lets us run the campaign. That's the way it ought to be. You can't have it both ways."

Members of the inner circle include:

—Jordan, a soft-spoken Georgian whose first contact with Carter in his unsuccessful 1966 gubernatorial campaign led to Jordan's appointment as executive secretary after Carter won the governor's race on his second try in 1970.

—Powell, 32, another Georgian, who served as Carter's sometimes brash press secretary in Georgia, fills the same position in the presidential campaign. He is as close to Carter as any member of the inner circle.

—Gerald Rafshoon, 41, an Atlanta advertising man who designed Carter's media campaign for the 1970 gubernatorial race.

—Campaign Treasurer Bob Lipshutz, 54, an Atlanta attorney whom Carter named to the state Board of Human Resources in 1972.

—Charles Kirbo, 59, an Atlanta attorney who served as Carter's chief of staff in the state Capitol, is now an elder statesmen of Carter's organization.

—Dees, 38, an Alabama attorney and chief counsel for the Southern Poverty Law Center, raised $20 million for McGovern during the primary and general election campaigns of 1972, mostly through direct mail.

—Caddell, 25, polled for McGovern and such other candidates as Gov. Hugh Carey of New York, Mayor Maynard Jackson of Atlanta and Sen. Edward M. Kennedy of Massachusetts. He works under contract for Carter.

When Carter was named to head the Democratic party's congressional election effort for 1974, it was Jordan who went to work for the party, traveling around the country to help candidates and picking up valuable experience in the meantime. He handles organizational details and strategy for Carter now.

"Early on I spent my time on a little of everything," he said. "Now I spend most of my time talking with field people about situations in key states and general kinds of strategy. I generally focus on whatever state's coming up next."

Jordan and Carter's other top lieutenants say they make strategic decisions in a loose, informal way.

"If we need to do some media in a state," Jordan says, "I'll call Rafshoon and ask him what we're spending in state X. He'll say, 'Well, we're spending so much money.' And I'll say, 'Well, should we spend more?' And he'll say, 'Yeah, I think we should.' Then I'll call Lipshutz and say, 'Bob, can we spend an extra $10,000 on the state?' And Bob says, 'Yeah, I think we can.'

"We don't have any group meetings or anything. It's just kind of individual decisions. It's a loose kind of decision-making process that works because most of the people involved have worked closely together for a good while."

Rafshoon agreed.

"One thing about our group is that we've worked together so long there's no pecking order. We don't have to justify our decisions to each other," the advertising specialist said.

Meanwhile, Dees goes about the process of raising money for those decisions. He has raised about $3.5 million exclusive of federal matching funds for Carter this year, but he's had to change tactics and depend more on fundraising dinners because of the increased expense of direct mail appeals.

Dees has divided the country into nine regions with a headquarters staffer assigned to each. There are fundraising committees in each state and most big cities.

Eizenstat sat down with Carter at the governor's mansion for two days in late 1974 to begin developing campaign positions.

"We literally started at the beginning of the alphabet with 'A' for abortion and went through covering every issue possible," he said.

His job now is to keep Carter up-to-date on developments affecting issues and to coordinate the task forces of expert advisers Carter has gathered to counsel him on various issues.

Another key staffer is Rick Hutcheson, 24, who has worked for the Democratic National Committee and is working on a Ph.D. in political science. He's in charge of delegates.

It was Hutcheson's job at the start of the campaign to keep track of the ever-changing details of each state's primary or caucus. Now he keeps track of the delegates Carter has accumulated and makes contact with uncommited delegates.

He also keeps a file on delegates pledged to other candidates to determine "whether there is some chance they might be for Jimmy Carter" if they are released by their candidate.

Field organizers include Chris Brown and Tim Kraft, both recruited from the campaign of Gov. Jerry Apodaca in New Mexico. Brown had been active in the 1968 campaign of Sen. Eugene McCarthy and in McGovern's 1972 race.

At least two persons who signed on the Carter campaign have quit in disputes over issues.

Pomona preschool enrollment begins

The State Preschool Program, which serves boys and girls from 3 to 5 years of age in low-income families in the Pomona Unified School District, is accepting enrollment for fall.

Classes are limited to 16 children and are taught at Lexington, Allison, Kellogg, San Jose and Arroyo elementary schools.

Preference is given to children of pre-kindergarten age and children with special needs.

State Preschool is a parent-participation program. Parents are required to work in a classroom two hours a week.

Classes are held daily from 8:30 a.m. to noon. A morning snack is served. Lunches are not served.

Judy Sneed, preschool specialist, said the program focuses on preparing the boys and girls for kindergarten and stresses self-concept, learning skills, creativity, physical development and basic concepts such as colors, shapes, sizes, letters and numbers.

Registrations may be made by calling 623-5251, Extension 317 between 8 a.m. and 3 p.m. Monday through Friday, or by bringing birth certificate, immunization records and proof of income to Portable C at Kingsley Elementary School, 1170 W. Washington St., Pomona.

Hot dog manufacturers come up with new ideas

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

Manufacturers trying to tempt consumers with new foods and fads have come up with some unusual twists on familiar favorites.

Take the hot dog, for example. According to the American Meat Institute, manufacturers produced 1.6 billion pounds of federally inspected franks and wieners in 1975. On a per capita basis, assuming 10 hot dogs to the pound, that works out to 76 franks and weiners for every man, woman and child in the country.

For years, frankfurter manufacturers have been turning out five-inch hot dogs. Bakers, meanwhile, have been turning out six-inch rolls. No one is sure why.

Swift & Co. has decided to change all that. It's producing a premium-priced, seven-inch hot dog. Now the meat can stick out from the roll. "The first mouthful and the last mouthful is going to be meat," said a spokesman, explaining that children seem to like it that way.

(So-called "foot-long" hot dogs have been marketed for years as specialty items in many areas, but generally were not available on any widespread basis.)

There will be eight of the seven-inch hot dogs in a one-pound package — another move to match the bakers who usually put eight rolls in their packages while the meat processors have been marketing 10 franks to the pound.

A pound of long hot dogs, displayed at a recent convention of the Super Market Institute in Dallas, will cost about 10 cents more than a pound of short hot dogs. That's because of improved packaging and a "different formulation," said a Swift spokesman.

The content of both varieties will be basically the same — beef and pork — but the longer hot dog will have a "mild flavor" more popular with children, said the Swift spokesman.

Some people, of course, prefer their hot dogs on regular bread and there's another new product just for them. It's a kitchen utensil that slices a hot dog so it curls into a circle during cooking. You can put the finished product on a round bun or a square slice.

Also on display at the supermarket meeting was a hot dog made from turkey meat, billed as "the leaner wiener." It will sell for less than regular frankfurters and joins chicken and fish hot dogs already on the market.

There is nothing to prevent manufacturers from making hot dogs from just about any meat they want. There are restrictions, however, on what they can call their products and different names mean very different things.

As a result of a 1971 court ruling, manufacturers cannot refer to hot dogs as "pure," "100 per cent" or "all" if there are any additives, including seasoning. Starting July 1, the standard applies to other meat and poultry products as well.

U.S. Department of Agriculture regulations require that frankfurters contain no more than 30 per cent fat, 10 per cent added water and 2 per cent corn syrup by weight.

In addition, frankfurters which contain by-products such as lips, tongue and snout, must be clearly labeled as "frankfurter with by-products or variety meat" and may not include more than 15 per cent poultry meat. Other additions such as soy protein or dried milk also must be listed on the label.

Bruce Butterfied of the American Meat Institute said about 80 per cent of all the frankfurters produced contain only skeletal meat. They are generally referred to as "meat franks." They used to be called "all-meat franks."

Butterfield said he is somewhat amused at the fact that many people find the idea of by-products in hot dogs unappetizing. "Isn't it interesting?" he asked. "People find desirable the end of the animal that it sits on and they find undesirable the end that it smells with.

Persians' fondness for tea was where it all began

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — undreds of years before merican patriots dumped ritish tea in Boston Har- or — an act that spawned ebellion — tea was play- ng an important part in he history of another ountry.

Persian troubadours vere keeping alive the tirring history of their an- ient land through recita- ions in hundreds of eahouses all over Persia.

The saga they read, alled the Shah-nama, or epic of kings, was recited n Persian. Written by the poet Ferdowski in approx- imately 1000 A.D., it recounted the stories of 50 of the ancient civilization's kings and queens.

The custom of telling these tales in teahouses was originated by troubadors, or naghals, in order to preserve the pre- cious heritage that was threatened when Moham- medan Arabs conquered Persia in 636 and sought to impose their own lang- uage and customs.

This national epic, similar to Homer's Iliad, was learned by heart and passed on from generation to generation by word of mouth. The tradition made a deep impression upon a populace largely unable to read. But memorizing the Shah-nama was a monumental task for the naghal. It consists of 60,000 lines of prose and poetry, an undertaking that took Ferdowski (his first name is unknown) 35 years to complete.

It was the Persian fondness for tea that prompted scholars to use the teahouse setting as a means of reaching the widest possible population. Shiraz, Persepolis and other Iranian cities can witness the centuries-old custom at teahouses for the price of a cup of tea — one rial, a penny and a half in American currency.

Iran's Ministry of Culture and Art is using television to enhance the popularity of the readings. Goverment - sponsored performances by some of the better known storytellers are being aired on Iranian television. Art festivals held regularly in leading cities also feature readings of the Shah-nama.

And with the inaugura- tion of its nonstop service between New York and Tehran, Iran Air will add a jet-age "teahouse" area in the top deck of its 747s, where stewardesses will serve tea, grown in northern Iran, from a gleaming Persian samo- var.

In Iran, where per capita consumption of tea ranks among the world's highest at 77 pounds, tea drinkers enjoy their national drink with plenty of sugar and often sip it through a lump of sugar they hold between their teeth.

While tea has had considerable impact on Asiatic civilizations, the desire for the beverage has also influenced Western cultures. The first new- spaper advertisement for tea appeared in a London newspaper in 1658, and an- nounced: "That excellent and by all physicians ap- proved China drink, called by the Chinese, Tcha, by other nations, tay, alias tee, is sold at the Sultaness Head Coffee House."

Samuel Pepys recorded his tea-tasting experiences in his famous diary in 1660 and another English writer, Edward Waller, wrote the first eulogy to tea in 1663.

The longing for tea produced one of the world's great fortunes, the English East India Tea Co., which flourished from 1660 to 1858, while in the next century America's taste for tea turned bitter upon the enactment of the Tea Act of 1773, precipi- tating the American Revo- lution.

Tea made a comeback in the United States in the mid-1800s and helped create some of the nation's first millionaires — among them John Jacob Astor, Thomas Handasyd Perkins and Stephen Girard.

In England, meanwhile, the brew helped bring the sexes together. Couples drank it in the London pleasure gardens, an elegant pastime that fostered social graces and nurtured conversation to a fine art.

Japan made a notable contribution to this tea culture in the art and prac- tice of cha-no-yu, the beautiful Japanese tea ceremony. Painters too were inspired by tea. One work of art, "The a l'Anglaise" (English Tea) by Michel Barthelme Oli- vier, was hung in the Louvre. Other paintings glorifying tea hang in other important museums and galleries.

Here's a salute to National Hot Dog Month (July)

Set your sights on a backyard celebration that could last all summer long! To add glamour to your patio menu and in honor of National Hot Dog Month (July), the National Hot Dog and Sausage Council has created the Hot Dog Sandwich Supreme.

Truly a salad supper on a loaf, the Hot Dog Sandwich Supreme sports four layers nutritiously spread with egg salad, deviled ham salad, American cheese and plump, sliced hot dogs.

Anchor the sandwich layers firmly together with long wooden skewers (often found in the Chinese foods section at your grocery), and garnish with lettuce and pimiento stuffed olives for a spectacular, yet economical summer meal.

HOT DOG SANDWICH SUPREME

1 loaf, unsliced, Vienna, butter crust or rye bread
1/3 cup soft butter or margarine
10 slices American cheese
5-6 wieners, cooked and cut lengthwise
1½ cups egg salad spread (See recipe below or use your favorite recipe)
1 cup deviled ham salad spread (See recipe below or use your favorite recipe)
1 package long wooden skewers
1 bottle pimiento stuffed olives
Lettuce leaves, iceberg or endive

EGG SALAD SPREAD

4 hard cooked eggs, chopped
3 tablespoons dill pickles, drained and chopped
3 tablespoons celery, finely chopped
⅛ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon cummin (optional)
6 tablespoons salad dressing or mayonaise

Combine ingredients, mix until well blended. Yield: 1½ cups

DEVILED HAM SPREAD

2 cans (8-9 ounces) deviled ham
6 tablespoons salad dressing or mayonaise

Combine ingredients, mix until blended. Yield: About 1 cup

TO ASSEMBLE: Slice a loaf of whole bread into five even lengthwise layers. (For best results, use an electric knife or request the bakery to do the slicing for you.) Butter the bottom layer. Top with slices of cheese and lettuce leaves, placed on a diagonal. Butter the second layer of bread, place on cheese layer. Spread with deviled ham. Slice hot dogs lengthwise and saute in 1 tablespoon butter until lightly browned; place diagonally, cut side down, on the third buttered layer of bread. Cover with fourth layer; butter bread; apply egg salad and top with crust of loaf. Pimiento stuffed olives may be tucked into the sandwich at intervals along the egg salad layer and any other layer where color is desired. Secure layers together by inserting long wooden skewers. These may be spaced by portion to make cutting and serving easier. Yield: 6 to 8 servings.

PINEAPPLE TEA COOLER

Summer: a good time to attempt to lose weight

Almost everyone we know believes that he can lose weight more easily in the summertime. Not all of us do . . . but it's certainly a good time to try. First of all, we eat lighter foods in the summertime such as salads, fruits and cold soups, rather than the heavier fare of winter. Then, too, we exercise more, go swimming, bicycling, etc. So, here's a summer menu with an Hawaiian emphasis guaranteed to help you reduce that waist line. No salad dressings are used for this salad; instead, lemon juice and golden seasoning and broth are combined to enhance the flavor of the foods while holding down the calorie count.

INSTANT PINEAPPLE TEA
PINEAPPLE SHRIMP SURPRISE
MILK SHERBET
PINEAPPLE TEA COOLER

4 teaspoons instant tea
3 cups water
½ teaspoon of liquid sugar substitute or 4 packets dry sugar substitute
2/3 cup pineapple juice ice cubes

Place instant tea in pitcher or carafe. Add remaining ingredients. Stir; allow to stand for 5 minutes before serving. Makes 4 servings.

PINEAPPLE SHRIMP SURPRISE

1 pineapple
½ cup cider vinegar
½ pound shrimp
2 packets G. Washington's Golden Seasoning and Broth
¼ cup lemon juice
1 medium sized zucchini, sliced
1 small bunch grapes (approximately 24)

We've cut the pineapple crosswise making two very deep containers. You may wish to cut it in half lengthwise and then in quarters for four shallower ones. Remove pineapple meat by cutting with serrated knife; remove core, also. Cut fruit into 1" pieces; place in bowl along with any excess juice. Add vinegar to two quarts of water. Boil shrimp for 10 minutes. Remove, peel and devein. Add to pineapple. Add remaining ingredients. Place in refrigerator for at least one hour. Fill pineapple shells. Serves 4.

Orange icing

An orange sponge cake tastes delicious frosted with orange icing. Use a little butter, confectioners' sugar and orange juice for the icing.

PINEAPPLE CREAM PUFFS

Take full advantage of celery

How few cooks take full advantage of celery. For example, when was the last time you served braised or sauteed celery to your family? Cooked celery often turns up in delicious soups but it is time to put this crunchy vegetable to greater use in your menus. Here is a variation of an Italian risotto which usually is a thick and creamy rice dish.

CELERY "RISOTTO"

- 2 tablespoons cooking oil
- ¼ cup finely chopped onion
- 1 cup boiling water
- 1 chicken bouillon cube
- ¼ teaspoon basil leaves, crumbled
- 1/16 teaspoon ground black pepper
- Pinch saffron
- 9 cups finely chopped celery

In large saucepan or skillet heat oil. Add onion; saute 3 minutes or until tender. Add water, bouillon cube, basil, black pepper and saffron. Stir to dissolve bouillon. Stir in celery; simmer, uncovered, 12 to 15 minutes, stirring occasionally, or until celery is crisp-tender. Makes 6 to 8 portions.

Made right at home

An alluring breakfast treat

Only one thing beats fresh cream puffs carried home from your favorite bakery, and that's golden "Pineapple Cream Puffs", made from scratch right in your own kitchen. Once you've tried stirring up the puff shells and filling them with a fluffy custard cream and tangy pineapple chunks, you'll have added another classic standard to your cooking repertoire.

The secret for the lighter-than-air puffs is attention. Once you start cooking the mix, stay with it, stirring and beating. It only takes a short time. The best puffs are those that go into the oven while the puff mix is still warm. They swell and grow and provide the perfect shell for the dairy-rich filling.

The fresh new flavor in the easy custard filling comes from using a little almond extract and grated orange peel along with the vanilla. But the real surprise is the tartly sweet nuggets of canned Hawaiian pineapple. It's like catching a bit of summer gold!

Fill the puffs just before serving and dust the tops with powdered sugar. "Pineapple Cream Puffs" are not just a handsome dessert. With their fruit, custard, and egg pastry, they're an alluring special breakfast treat, too.

PINEAPPLE CREAM PUFFS

- 8 baked Cream Puff Shells
- 1 (3¼ ounce) package vanilla pudding mix (not instant)
- 1¼ cups milk
- 1½ teaspoons grated orange peel
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- ¼ teaspoon almond extract
- ⅛ teaspoon salt
- 1 (1 pound 4 ounce) can pineapple chunks
- 1 cup whipping cream
- Powdered sugar

Bake and cool Cream Puff Shells. Turn pudding mix into small saucepan, and blend in milk. Cook over moderate heat, stirring constantly, until pudding just reaches a boil. Remove from heat, and stir in orange peel, vanilla and almond extracts and salt. Cool, stirring now and then, to avoid crust forming on top. Drain pineapple well. Beat cream until stiff. Fold into cooled pudding. Fold in pineapple chunks. Refrigerate. Shortly before serving, cut puffs in halves, and pull out any soft strands inside. Fill with the pineapple cream mixture. Sprinkle tops with powdered sugar. Makes 8 servings.

CREAM PUFF SHELLS

- ¾ cup water
- 6 tablespoons butter or margarine
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- ¾ cup sifted all-purpose flour
- 3 large eggs

Heat water, butter and salt to boiling. Add flour all at once. Cook, stirring constantly, until mixture is very thick, and forms a ball that follows spoon around. Remove from heat. Add eggs, one at a time, beating well after each addition. Beat until dough is smooth and shiny. Spoon in 8 high mounds on lightly greased baking sheet. Bake in hot oven (400 degrees F) about 40 minutes, until well puffed and golden brown. Remove to wire rack to cool. Makes 8 shells.

You can do more for your health than doctors can

By GAYNOR MADDOX

Two prominent physicians, Dr. Donald M. Vickery of Georgetown Medical School and Dr. James F. Fries of Stanford University Medical School, have written a new book "Take Care of Yourself — A Consumer's Guide to Medical Care."

The doctors claim "You can do more for your health than your doctor can. As an enlightened medical consumer, you can save money and time, and provide for the best possible medical care for yourself and your family. You can learn to treat many medical problems at home and you can learn to recognize when it's important to get to a doctor or hospital."

This does not mean that doctors are not important in family life. It means that many of the visits to doctors are unnecessary and many problems could be taken care of at home, leaving the doctor more time for seriously ill patients.

The authors of the book warn: "This book is powerful medicine. It can be of great help to you. The medical advice is as sound as we can make it. But it will not always work. Like advice from your doctor or nurse, it will not always prove successful. This is our problem: if we don't give you direct advice we can't help you. If we do, we will sometimes be wrong.

"So here are some qualifications. If you are under the care of a physician and receive advice contrary to this book, follow the physician's advice, the individual characteristics of your problem can then be taken into account. If you have an allergy or a suspected allergy to a recommended medicine, check with your doctor, at least by phone. With any medicine, read the label directions carefully; instructions vary from year to year and you should follow the latest. And if your problem persists beyond a reasonable period, you should usually see a doctor."

What part does nutrition play in this treatment? In the digestive tract they discuss nausea, vomiting and diarrhea, heartburn (it's not the heart, it's the stomach acid), abdominal pain — every pain is not appendicitis, constipation — regularity is not very important, rectal pain — itching or bleeding.

At the end of each section in the guide a "flow chart" has been printed so that the reader can quickly see when to contact his doctor and when to treat himself at home.

Here's a convenient vegetable and sausage dinner

Centuries ago the German "wurstmacher" became so adept at spicing and processing distinctive types of sausages, that their products became almost synonymous with convenient and nutritious meal making.

Busy homemakers today will still find thuringer, bratwurst and large, plump frankfurters ideal meat products for creating this quick, Bavarian flavored vegetable and sausage dinner that can be conveniently cooked together.

New crop potatoes, whole tender carrots and onions are combined with sausages and simmered in natural juices, forming their own tasty seasoning.

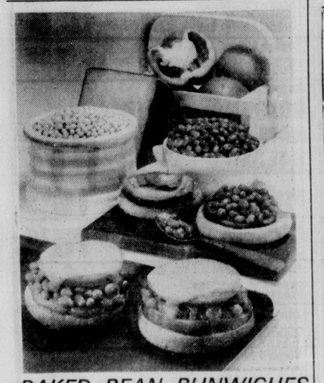
To add variety, the carrots are removed when done and given a tart lemon glaze. The sausages and other vegetables are sprinkled with Swiss cheese, browned, and brought to the table on the same oven-proof platter. Round out this attractive, vitamin-loaded meal by serving a sherbet dessert and beverage.

BLACK FOREST DINNER

1 to 1½ pounds thuringer, large frankfurters or bratwurst. Select sausages to suit everyone's taste
Small whole new potatoes, unpeeled
Small whole onions, peeled
1 pound small tender carrots, whole and unpeeled
1 cup boiling water
1 teaspoon granulated beef bouillon
4 ounces Swiss cheese, grated
Chopped parsley and ground pepper

In a large skillet, lay sausages in a circular pattern around well-scrubbed new potatoes and peeled whole onions. Arrange carrots around outer edges of skillet; cover mixture with boiling water in which bouillon has been dissolved. Cover and simmer until vegetables are tender. Remove carrots and glaze. Using oven-to-table cookware, remove remaining vegetables and arrange on an oven-proof platter or baking pan. Sprinkle with Swiss cheese and place under the broiler until cheese is melted. Add glazed carrots to platter. Sprinkle lightly with chopped parsley, pepper and serve.

TO GLAZE CARROTS: Melt 2 tablespoons of butter in saucepan or skillet. Add 2 teaspoons sugar. Heat until butter is melted and sugar begins to dissolve and carmelize. Add 1 teaspoon lemon juice; stir well. Add carrots, tossing them until they are completely coated.



BAKED BEAN BUNWICHES

Baked beans: a protein source

Does your body need to have meat every day? The simple answer is no; more difficult to answer is why.

From a nutrition standpoint, meat is in the diet to supply protein, an essential nutrient for the maintenance of life and growth. That same protein though, may be provided by other foods in the diet such as dairy products, beans, nuts, vegetables and grains. An important fact to remember is that you need to eat grains, vegetables and beans in combination to get the greatest efficiency from the vegetable protein in meatless meals.

Convenient canned brick oven baked beans are a natural place to start in planning a meal without meat. They are a familiar and popular food that takes easily to numerous combinations. The vegetable protein of baked beans is best completed in dishes with whole grains like wheat germ, nuts and seeds such as sesame seeds, and dairy products — cheese, eggs.

One delicious way to enjoy a meatless lunch or supper is to served Baked Bean Bunwiches, an open-faced sandwich baked to a bubbly golden color. Brick oven baked beans are also a delicious entree in dishes like Bean Stuffed Tomatoes, and Onion-Topped Bean Casserole.

BAKED BEAN BUNWICHES

1 can (28 ounces) brick oven baked beans
4 hamburger buns, split and toasted
8 green pepper rings
8 tomato slices
8 slices Cheddar cheese (3" x 3")

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Spoon beans onto 8 bun halves. Top each with green pepper ring, tomato slice and cheese slice. Bake for 15 minutes.

BEAN STUFFED TOMATOES

12 medium tomatoes
1 can (28 ounces) brick oven baked beans
½ cup imitation bacon bits
2 tablespoons wheat germ
1 teaspoon flavor enhancer
½ cup fine, dry bread crumbs
2 tablespoons sesame seeds

Preheat oven to 350 degrees F. Wash tomatoes; remove stem ends. Remove pulp from each tomato, leaving a ½-inch wall. Reserve 1 cup chopped pulp. In a large bowl, stir together beans, bacon bits, wheat germ, flavor enhancer and reserved pulp. Fill tomatoes with bean mixture. Place filled tomatoes in ungreased baking dish. Top with bread crumbs and sesame seeds. Bake 20 to 25 minutes or until tomatoes are heated through.

Makes 12 servings.

ONION TOPPED BEAN CASSEROLE

1 can (28 ounces) brick oven baked beans
1 3 cup chopped green pepper
½ cup shredded Cheddar cheese
1 package (12 ounces) frozen French fried onion rings

Preheat oven to 350 degrees F. In a bowl, combine beans, pepper and cheese. Turn into a 9 x 9-inch baking dish. Top with onion rings. Bake for 30 minutes.

Makes 4-6 servings

Kids prove they're able to cook too

WALLA WALLA, Wash. (AP) — Tina Kern's fast recipe for ice cream: "You get a cone and you get the ice cream in there and then you eat it."

For Lisa Alonzo's peanut butter and jelly sandwich you "get the breads out. ... You get one and then you put peanut butter on it and the jelly ... then you close it."

Kelly Baird, who says of eggs, "most of all I like 'em burnt," advises that to get them well done you "crack the egg over the pan ... and then it drops in the pan and you let it sit for five minutes. ... You turn it over and let it sit for 5 minutes ... then it's done."

Lisa, Tina and Kelly are in Suzanne Casey's first-grade class and the menu suggestions are in the "We Can Cook" cookbook they wrote for their mothers.

The book is full of recipes for ice cream, popcorn and sandwiches, though one highlight is Mark Frovarp's recipe for almost instant "rabbit meat."

"Cut the hair off, cut the legs off, cut the head off, cut the tail off. You skin them and put wrappers around them. You cook in the stove for two minutes. And in the store you can buy them."

Danny Reinhardt's popcorn takes longer. He "puts the seeds in and red stuff in the popcorn machine. It will cook for two hours. Then you buy it."

1 cup rose wine (optional)
2 tablespoons lemon juice
4 cups seedless grapes (about 1½ pounds)
2 cups sliced fresh plums
2 cups cantaloup balls
Strawberries

In saucepan, combine honey, cardamom and water. Simmer 5 minutes. Add mint and salt; cool. Strain. Stir in rose wine and lemon juice. Let stand at room temperature 2 hours. Refrigerate until needed. Makes 2 cups.

To serve: Layer fruits in an attractive glass serving bowl. Pour sauce over all, or serve separately in pitcher. Top bowl with sliced strawberries. Garnish with minut sprig, if desired. Makes 8 to 10 servings.

Who's ready to try a new snack recipe?

By Cecily Brownstone

Food Editor

Cooks often ask us to suggest a new snack to serve at a cocktail party or informal get-together. So here's a recipe for Salty Dollars that we've just come upon. Offered with brisling sardines and cheese, they make interesting refreshment. Chances are your guests will have fun guessing what's in them!

SALTY DOLLARS

8-ounce can sauerkraut
11-ounce package pie crust mix
1 tablespoon caraway seeds
½ to ¾ teaspoon pepper
1 egg yolk slightly beaten

Turn the sauerkraut into a strainer to drain; press down with a spoon to force out remaining liquid. Sprinkle between sheets of paper toweling and dry. Chop fine. Stir sauerkraut, caraway seeds and pepper into pie crust mix; with a fork stir in the amount of cold water (¼ cup) the mix calls for so that dough holds together; form into a ball. Cover and chill. Cut in half. Roll out, one-half at a time, on a prepared pastry cloth with a prepared stockinet-covered rolling pin to no more than ⅛-inch thickness. With a 2½-inch round cookie cutter, cut out. Place slightly apart on a lightly greased cookie sheet; brush with egg wash. Bake in a preheated 425-degree oven until lightly browned — about 12 minutes. Serve warm or cold. Makes about 3½ dozen.

Wax-coated food items not sufficiently labeled

WASHINGTON (AP) — Millions of pounds of wax-coated fruits and vegetables are marketed annually without the mandatory labels informing shoppers of the presence of the wax, a consumer group said recently.

The Center for Science in the Public Interest, a non-profit organization based in Washington, charged that the Food and Drug Administration has not policed its own labeling requirments or ordered safety testing of the waxes.

"Inadequate labeling is particularly frustrating for consumers who are seeking to eat natural fruits and vegetables that are free of additives," said Michael Jacobson, co-director of the center.

The government's failure to enforce labeling regulations slights small, local producers and favors big firms that ship produce from coast-to-coast, he said.

Fruits and vegetables are coated with wax before shipping to retard shrinkage and weight loss, and add luster. The center said up to 40 percent of fresh apples are waxed, 50 per cent of fresh tomatoes and 75 per cent of cucumbers.

Other produce that is often waxed, the center said, includes peppers, cantaloupes, oranges, peaches, lemons, pears, prunes, rutabagas, grapefruits and plums.

Richard Ronk, director of the food additives division at the FDA, acknowledged that the agency makes little if any effort to make sure that supermarkets display cards noting the presence of wax coatings or artificial color on the skins of oranges.

"It's looked upon as an economic matter. We'd had a hard time enforcing it at the retail level," he said.

Jacobson wrote a letter to Food and Drug Commissioner Alexander M. Schmidt asking the FDA to require proper labeling of waxed foods, make spot checks of how much wax is used, and order testing of waxes — particularly synthetic versions.

De Gaulle's former chef shows skill

By TOM HOGE
AP Newsfeatures Writer

The late Paul Poiret was widely known as the French King of Fashion in his heyday before World War II. But it took a former chef for Charles de Gaulle to show me that Poiret was also a cook of formidable talent.

I made the discovery at a luncheon given as a curtain raiser for a Homage to Poiret fashion show, featuring some 80 gowns designed by Poiret, the show was scheduled at New York's Fashion Institute of Technology (FIT). The climax of the affair was to be a banquet for 800 persons featuring Poiret's culinary creations adapted by French-born Jacques Pepin.

The preview luncheon was cooked by Pepin, who did ample justice to the dishes taken from Poiret's cookbook entitled "107 Recettes ou Curiosites Culinaires." This should not have surprised me, considering that Pepin had presided over the kitchens of two French government chiefs and finally a chief of state: the late De Gaulle. As president of France, "Le Grand Charles" may have intimidated his cabinet ministers and aides, but Pepin found him a man of simple tastes, punctual habits and easy to please.

"For dinner, the president was content with a dish of soup, some poached fish and a piece of fruit," said Pepin "But he did insist that others be as prompt as he was. If he scheduled a formal luncheon at 12:30 p.m. and the guest of honor failed to show up on time, De Gaulle would go on and eat without him."

Pepin's preview luncheon led off with a chilled cream of eggplant soup spiced with curry powder and herbs and garnished with strips of eggplant and carrots. It could best be described as a vichyssoise with a kicker.

This was followed by chicken in a cream sauce whose unique taste I learned was due in part to the addition of a dollop of Scotch whisky.

The meal was accompanied by a Cotes-du-Rhone wine that was velvet-soft and had a most pleasant taste.

Finally we were served a frozen brandy-orange souffle that left everyone in a euphoric state. Here is the recipe, which involves little cooking.

4 egg yolks
5 ounces granulated sugar 1½ ounces water
4 egg yolks
5 ounces granulated sugar
1½ ounces water
grated rind of one medium orange
1 pint heavy cream, whipped
10 ladyfingers splashed with cognac
1 ounce cognac
1 pint heavy cream, whipped 10 ladyfingers splashed with cognac
1 ounce cognac

Beat egg yolks and set aside. Boil sugar, water and orange rind for 3 minutes and set aside. Whip cream till it peaks slightly. Start beating egg yolks, adding syrup and cognac slowly. When egg yolks are frothy and take on a lemony color, fold in cream. Pour 1-3rd of mix into glass souffle dish. Place ½ ladyfingers on top and add another 1-3rd of mixture. Add remaining ladyfingers and refrigerate till slightly set. Place wax paper collar on souffle dish and secure with string. Add remaining mixture and place in freezer compartment till firm. To serve remove collar and, if desired, add crumbled macaroons dusted with cocoa. Serves 10.

SWISS RUEBEN DOGS

Quick and tangy

It's a meal-in-a-bun

Quick, easy meals don't have to be dull. For a tangy meal-in-a-bun you will want to try these Swiss Reuben Dogs. The directions are so easy to follow that even the youngsters will enjoy the fun of making a meal themselves.

Simply combine tart sauerkraut, a plump juicy hot dog and a few tablespoons of thousand island dressing. Cover with slices of Swiss cheese and place under the broiler or in an oven for a few minutes. Top with dill pickle slices and your Swiss Reuben Dogs are ready for the table.

In addition to having a quick, economical meal, you'll also be providing a nutritious one too. Just two hot dogs supply one-third of a child's daily requirement of protein and one-fourth of the adult daily requirement. Hot dogs also contain iron, thiamine, riboflavin, niacin, phosphorus, zinc, Vitamin C, Vitamin B6 and Vitamin B12.

SWISS REUBEN DOGS

6 frankfurters
6 hot dog buns
1 can (8 ounce) sauerkraut, well drained
¼ pound sliced Swiss cheese
2 tablespoons thousand island dressing
Mustard
Dill pickle slices

Heat frankfurters in boiling water, microwave oven or broiler. Slice heated frankfurters down the center lengthwise and place in center of hot dog buns. Spread with a little mustard. Add 1/6 of the sauerkraut; top with 1 teaspoon of thousand island dressing. Cover with Swiss cheese and place under the broiler or in the oven until cheese is melted and beginning to bubble. Garnish with dill pickle slices and serve immediately. Yield: 6 servings.

Juliachild fans please keep quiet

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press
Food Editor

One reason I have the New York Times delivered to my door at the crack of dawn every day in the week, including Sunday, is to read Russell Baker. He's the man who contributes to the Times Op-Ed page and writes the "Sunday Observer" for the Times Sunday Magazine. Baker's witty commentary on our society helps leaven a day.

Take his recent Sunday Observer column, "No no smoking." Baker writes: "I have nothing against people who don't smoke. I stopped smoking myself for five years once and it didn't do me any noticeable harm. If people want to sit around not smoking, it doesn't offend me in the least. I certainly wouldn't bully them and try to make them feel absolutely terrible about not taking up the habit."

The way Baker feels about nonsmokers is the way I feel about the disciples of Julia Child, television's "The French Chef" and cookbook author. Although the juliachild fans constantly tell me that French cooking is superior to American cooking, my specialty, I have nothing against them. I certainly wouldn't insist on their watching a TV program called "The American Chef." I don't feel they should be forced to give up working their way through "Mastering the Art of French Cooking, Volumes One and Two" by Julia Child et al and "The French Chef Cookbook," a collection of recipes Julia demonstrated on television.

I never remonstrate when they serve me juliachild dishes. I have cooked some myself. If the juliachild people want to sit around talking about how the only edible French bread in the United States is that made from Julia's recipe, it doesn't offend me in the least. I never try to make them feel miserable because to bake Julia's French bread they had to run out and find the necessary equipment — ¼-inch thick asbestos cement and a solid 10-pound rock. Nor do I look at them pityingly because the recipe is 20 pages long. And I wouldn't think of reminding them that in her latest book, "From Julia Child's Kitchen," Julia herself extols the virtues of some American dishes.

Baker says, "As a smoker I feel no sense of moral superiority whatever. I don't even feel self-righteous about smoking. Not even when I am in a crowded room with 15 or 20 nonsmokers. After all, I might want to give up smoking again one of these days, and if I do I don't want smokers looking down their noses at me.

"Being of this turn of mind, I am baffled by the growing intolerance among so many people who don't smoke. Not long ago, I was severely put down by a New York cab driver for lighting up in his machine. It was puzzling. He was offended by my smoking, yet I wasn't offended by his not smoking."

As a long-time American food history buff, even the Bicentennial Bandwagon doesn't make me feel self-righteous. I don't ordinarily boast about having a large collection of culinary Americana — cookbooks, utensils and incunabula. Not even when I am in a'

Colonial specialties low in fat, cholesterol

Bring the flavor of the Bicentennial right into your family's dining room with a supper featuring colonial specialties collected by the American Heart Association.

As tasty as when enjoyed by our founding fathers, the recipes now are low in saturated fat and cholesterol.

Bicentennial Supper
Salmon in Cases
Young Greens with Dressing
Beef and Carrots in Ale
Spider Corn Bread
Bean-Pot Applesauce

SALMON IN CASES

4 salmon steaks
salt and pepper to taste
Pinch of ground nutmeg
4 tablespoons margarine
½ cup dry bread crumbs

Preheat oven to 400 degrees F.

Tear off four squares of aluminum foil. Place one salmon steak in the center of each piece of foil. Sprinkle with salt, pepper, and nutmeg. Put 1 tablespoon of margarine and 2 tablespoons bread crumbs on top of each steak. Fold the foil and place packages on a baking sheet. Bake 15 minutes. Remove 1 package and test fish to see if it flakes easily with a fork. If not, return fish and bake 5 more minutes, or until done.

BEEF AND CARROTS WITH ALE

4 to 6 servings

2 pounds lean beef stew meat, cut in cubes
Salt and pepper, to taste
1 can or bottle (12 ozs.) Ale
3 onions, cut in pieces
1 slice preferably the end crust, rye or pumpernickel bread, broken in pieces
¼ teaspoon thyme
¼ teaspoon marjoram
¼ teaspoon sage
6 carrots, cut in slices

Place beef in a dutch oven. Add salt and pepper and 1 cup water and bread. Bring to boil. Lower heat, cover and simmer for 2 hours, or until beef is almost tender. Add thyme, marjoram, sage and carrots. Cover and cook about 30 minutes, or until beef is very tender.

YOUNG GREENS WITH DRESSING

6 servings

1 head lettuce, or 1½ pounds fresh spinach
1 small onion, minced
1 teaspoon artificial bacon bits
2 tablespoons cooking oil
¼ cup vinegar
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
½ teaspoon prepared mustard
1 teaspoon sugar

Wash lettuce or spinach and pat dry. Break in small pieces. Add onion, toss lightly and refrigerate. Fry artificial bacon bits lightly in oil. Combine vinegar, salt, pepper, mustard and sugar. Heat throughly. Pour hot dressing over chilled greens and serve immediately.

SPIDER CORN BREAD

1 1/3 cups white cornmeal
1/3 cup sifted all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon baking soda
½ teaspoon salt
¼ cup sugar
1 cup buttermilk
2 eggs, well beaten
2 cups skim milk
2 tablespoons oil

Preheat oven to 350 degrees F. Place cornmeal, flour, baking soda, salt and sugar in a mixing bowl and mix. Add buttermilk, eggs and 1 cup skim milk. Beat with a spoon until smooth. Heat the oil in a heavy 9-inch skillet, and when pan is very hot pour in batter. Slowly and carefully pour last cup of skim milk over top of batter. Bake about 50 minutes or until cornbread is lightly brown on top. Cut in wedges and serve at once.

Instead of an Indian Boiled Pudding or a Whipt Syllabub for desert here is a colonial recipe for applesauce.

BEAN-POT APPLESAUCE

Preheat oven to 250 degrees F. Quarter and core cooking apples. Put apples in a bean pot. For every 8 apples, combine ½ cup sugar and ½ teaspoon ground cinnamon. Sprinkle over layers of apples. Cover with sweet cider and bake 2 to 3 hours, or until fruit is tender but still holds its shape.

room with 15 or 20 juliachild people all talking about their cocottes and charlotte molds. After all, I might want to buy a batterie de cuisine myself one of these days and try some more juliachild recipes and I don't want the non-juliachild cooks looking down their noses at me.

Being of this turn of mind, I am baffled by the growing intolerance among the juliachild followers. Not long ago I was severely put down by some of them because I had never given Julia's recipe for Homard Thermidor (Lobster Gratineed in its Shell) a trial run. They were offended because I meekly blamed my dereliction on the fact that lobster costs over $3.00 a pound. Yet I wasn't in the least offended when I discovered they had never tasted California's razor clams, made New England's Indian Pudding or New York's Concord Grape Pie. Or that they had never heard of the first cookbook of American authorship published in the United States: "American Cookery" by Amelia Simmons, whose nom de plume was "An American Orphan."

Baker's last words: "Smokers have historically been tolerant of their nonsmoking compatriots. Too tolerant perhaps. It may be time for us to ... start accusing the nonsmokers of bigotry. If we put on enough heat, we can give them such guilty consciences that they will never again be able to refuse to light up after dinner without explaining that some of their best friends are smokers."

My last cue: We cooks who specialize in America dishes have been historically tolerant of those of our compatriots who are devoted to French cuisine. It may be time for us to accuse them of partisanship. If we put on enough heat we can give them such guilty consciences that they will never again serve Julia's Gigot a la Moutarde (Herbal Mustard Coating for Roast Lamb) or Le Glorieux (A Very Rich, Very Light Chocolate Cake) without explaining that some of their best friends gobble up Big Macs and Oreos. I wouldn't think of trying to convert juliachild cooks to such American dishes as marshmallow - sauerkraut salad or orange jello studded with elbow macaroni. If they would just keep quiet about French cooking and ask me to their Julia Child dinners oftener, I could find it in my heart to be more tolerant than ever.

White sauce

No time to make white sauce for freshly cooked spinach? If there is commercial sour cream in the refrigerator, try using some of it; stir the cream into the spinach and heat gently.

Gloves for ice

To prevent burns, wear gloves when you handle dry ice. Pack the gloves with other gear when you are going fishing or picnicking and plan to use the ice.

On a salad

A sprinkling of red cabbage atop a green salad is attractive and gives interesting flavor and texture.

'The Count' is something else

Facing the Dodgers tonight will be one of the most colorful characters to play major league baseball in a long time.

John Joseph (Count) Montefusco is a throwback to Dizzy Dean. He tells you what he is going to do and, more often than not, goes out and does it.

He hasn't achieved the things Dizzy did, but the "Count" hasn't been around long . . . only one full year in the big leagues.

Dodgers fans won't forget his debut. Just off the plane from Phoenix Sept. 3, 1974, Montefusco entered the game at Dodger Stadium in relief of Ron Bryant in the first inning.

The Dodgers had already scored three runs. The bases were still loaded and there was no one out. The "Count" finished the game, nine full innings, allowing one run and only six hits. He slammed a home run in his first major league at-bat and won the game as the Giants rallied.

"That was probably the biggest thrill of my life and I'll never forget it," he commented when the writer cornered him at Dodger Stadium. "I just wish all of the people here were on my side."

Last year, his first full season he was the Giants' top pitcher with a 15-9 record and a 2.88 earned run average. His 215 strikeouts helped earn him National League Rookie of the Year honors. Now he has set his sights on another goal.

"I want to be the best pitcher in baseball," he said. "The only way to be that is to win the Cy Young Award. That's my goal this year."

Note that Montefusco said I "want to," not "I will." Could the Muhammed Ali of baseball be suffering from an acute case of humility?

Not a braggart

No. I haven't changed," he grinned. "I'm not a braggart. It's just that I'm confident. If I was bragging, I'd talk about things I've done in other games."

Among the predictions he made and lived up to last year were shutting out Atlanta in his first game and a 1-0 whitewashing of the Dodgers July 4.

He also admits to missing a few.

"I went into Cincinnati last year and predicted I'd strike out Johnny Bench four times and 50,000 people booed me out of the place," he said and grinned again. But the year before I struck him out three times and shut them out, but they don't remember that."

In writing, it looks like braggadocio. In direct conversation it doesn't come across that way. Listen to what Giants manager Bill Rigney says about John Montefusco.

"They call him a character. Well, the words is right, but the useage is wrong. He HAS character. He is a tribute to what baseball is all about. He says a lot of things about what he's going to do, but what he doesn't do is put anyone down.

"He might say he's going to strike out Johnny Bench four times. But he never says Johnny Bench isn't a good hitter. I like him. He's willing to pay the price to be a good pitcher. He works hard at it.

"He thinks he's gonna be the Cy young winner. Well, I wouldn't bet against it."

Montefusco brings a 6-3 record and 2.22 earned run average into tonight's game. But his strikeouts are down. Only 56 in 80 innings.

Has given up Ks

"I've stopped trying to strike out people," he admitted. "I'm just trying to get them out. But I'm still having fun out there."

Montefusco always had fun. But it wasn't always an easy road for him. Only his great desire overcame the great lack of interest in him originally.

"I had tryouts with the Yankees, Padres and Pirates and they turned me down," he recalled. "I'd say most of the teams in baseball passed me by.

"I started trying to get into professional baseball from the time I got out of high school (Middletown, N.J.). But nobody wanted me. I was just a skinny kid . . . 136 pounds.

"They told me I didn't have a breaking ball," he continued. "I told them I didn't need a breaking ball. I could throw the fastball right by 'em (and I still can do it)."

Once signed, the Count reached the majors in a year and a half. "I didn't like the minor leagues," he said. "I hated it. I belong up here (in the major leagues)."

No one can deny that. There was one last question. Any predictions for tonight?

"No predictions, but I'd like to shut them out," the Count answered. "I've pitched two straight shutouts and I'd like to keep it going. I want to do something nobody has done. Maybe I can break (Don) Drysdale's record (58 2/3 consecutive scoreless innings)."

It isn't likely. But as Bill Rigney said, I wouldn't bet against it.

Bill Singer heads for Minnesota

Blyleven on spot in Texas

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) — Bert Blyleven, a young man with an ambitous future, is a man on the spot.

Blyleven was the key player in a six-man trade Tuesday night that sent the talented pitcher and infielder Danny Thompson to the Texas Rangers.

"I know everyone will be expecting a lot of me," said Blyleven, who was playing out his option at Minnesota. "My goal is to be consistent like I think I have been with the Twins the last six years."

Minnesota received infielders Roy Smalley and Mike Cubbage, veteran pitcher Bill Singer of Pomona and minor league pitching prospect Jim Gideon in the trade.

"I think without any question, Blyleven will pitch the way he's capable of at Texas," said Twins Manager Gene Mauch. "His record is impressive and now his mind is clear having all his monetary problems behind him."

The 25-year-old Blyleven will become the Rangers highest paid player having agreed to a three-year contract calling for $550,000 in salary and deferred payments.

"The last two years or so have really been tough," said Blyleven, who had a 99-90 record since joining Minnesota in June 1970 at the age of 19. He was 4-5 at the time of the trade.

"I expect to be in Texas a long time and hope to win more than 100 games there," continued Blyleven. "I feel good and think I can help them win. They've got a good club."

Thompson, who also joined the Twins in 1970, was elated with the trade. The veteran infielder, who was also unsigned, agreed to contract terms with the Rangers and will receive a salary of $38,000 from Texas — about $11,000 more than he was offered by the Twins.

Thompson has a lifetime average of .252 and was hitting .234 this season and enjoying the best year of his career at shortstop.

"I had no idea about the trade, but it's great," said Thompson. "I'll only be 250 miles from home (Capron, Okla.) and I think I can help the Rangers."

While Minnesota players accepted news of the trade skeptically, Mauch and Twins owner Calvin Griffith liked the deal.

"I don't think Twins fans will really know just how good a deal we really made until some time has elapsed," said Mauch. "It's the kind of a deal you'll have to evaluate as time goes by."

Mauch plans to immediately install Smalley at shortstop and Cubbage at third. Singer will join the starting rotation and Gideon is being reassigned from Sacramento to the Twins AAA farm club at Tacoma in the Pacific Coast League.

"If Singer continues to pitch the way he has early in the year, he can be a big help too," said Mauch. "And Gideon is an outstanding young prospect."

Several Twins players wondered aloud why Blyleven was sent to a team in the same division. Minnesota players were nearly unanimous in their feeling that he would easily finish the year with between 15 and 20 victories.

California's Nolan Ryan, who beat the Twins Tuesday night, said the deal gives Texas a great opportunity to win the American League West.

"Texas definetly benefited," said Ryan. "Blyleven is one of the league's premier pitchers. I think Kansas City will be a little concerned when they hear about this trade."

Smalley and Gideon are the Rangers last two first round draft choices. Singer, 32, has been bothered by a series of physical problems, but has won 20 games twice. He won 20 in the National League for Los Angeles in 1969 and for California in 1973.

"I've seen Bill throw a couple of times this year and he's looked great," said Don Drysdale, the former Dodger pitcher who was once a teammate of Singer.

Drysdale, who is now broadcasts California games, said it was a good deal for both clubs.

"I've heard a lot of good things about Cubbage," added Big D. "He could be the real surprise of this thing. A lot of people at Texas wondered why he wasn't playing for the Rangers."

Smalley, 23, has a .230 average as a switch-hitter while playing second base for Texas. He is Mauch's nephew and anxious to join the Minnesota team.

Gideon, who is 3-3 at Sacramento in the PCL, where he has been bothered by control problems. The 6-foot-4 righthander was 17-0 for the University of Texas last year before being drafted.

Halicki blanks L.A.

Progress Bulletin
Sports
Pomona, California ■ Wednesday, June 2, 1976

By BILL LANGLEY
PB Sports Editor

LOS ANGELES — It's a good thing for the Dodgers all their games aren't against their California foes.

For some reason, Los Angeles is at its worst against its neighboring rivals.

Tall righthander Ed Halicki looked like a combination of Walter Johnson, Cy Young and Sandy Koufax Tuesday night in pitching a two-hit shutout to give the San Francisco Giants a 6-0 win over the slumping Dodgers.

The win gives the Giants a perfect 4-0 record against the Dodgers this season. Added to that is San Diego's 4-1 mark over L.A. to show the two California neighbors enjoying an 8-1 mark.

Thanks to the Giants' slow start and their lack of name players, the old Dodger-Giant rivalry is down right now as evidenced by Tuesday's Dodger Stadium turnout of 20,398, the second lowest crowd of the season.

But the Giants must still remember the old days. Besides Halicki's great performance, the Giants pounded out 10 singles off of loser Don Sutton (4-6) and stole five bases in simply running over L.A.

Halicki was scheduled for a trip to Phoenix in the Pacific Coast League before Tuesday's start. He entered the game with a 2-8 record with an ERA of 5.77.

Needless to say, Halicki will remain with San Francisco until his next start anyway.

"It's the best I've seen him," exclaimed Giants' manager Bill Rigney. "I can't believe the Dodgers have seen better stuff than that."

"I was in the groove the whole game," the tall (6-foot-7) righthander said. "I made them hit my pitch because I was able to stay ahead of the hitters the whole game."

The Dodgers' only hits were singles by Davey Lopes in the fourth inning and Steve Garvey in the seventh. Lopes also stole second to be the only runner advancing as far as second base all night. The only other base runners were Dusty Baker, who drew a walk in the eighth, and Lopes, who was safe on an error in the ninth.

Meanwhile, the Giants took care of Sutton, who has lost three in a row while giving up 20 earned runs in 28 innings.

San Francisco got a run in the fourth, two more in the sixth, added an unearned tally in the eighth and Gary Matthews singled home two more in the ninth.

"I was not disappointed in his pitching," Dodger skipper Walt Alston said about Sutton's performance. "Stuff-wise, I thought he pitched all right. But we didn't play very well behind him and, too, we didn't get him any runs."

Matthews led the Giants' attack with three hits with Willie Montanez and Ken Reitz each adding two.

But the most surprising statistic was the Giants' five stolen bases considering San Francisco had been successful in only 17 thefts in 40 attempts prior to the game.

"We haven't been getting that many guys on base, so we couldn't steal," Rigney said.

The Dodgers have lost three in a row and seven of their last nine. They have also scored only one run in 21 innings against San Francisco pitching.

DODGER DATA — Things certainly won't get any easier tonight for L.A. with John Montefusco (6-3) pitching against Rick Rhoden (3-0). The series ends Thursday with Tommy John (2-3) meeting Rob Dressler (1-2).

The New York Mets are in over the weekend. Tom Seaver is scheduled to make his first Dodger Stadium start since May 1, 1974 Friday night on T-Shirt Night with all youngsters 14 and under receiving Dodger T-Shirts. Jon Matlack and Jerry Koosman are the tentative Met starters Saturday and Sunday.

The Dodgers are 10-3 against lefthanders but only 18-17 vs. righthanders. L.A. is also 17-4 against the East but behind 11-16 versus the West.

Ryan back on track

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) — California flamethrower Nolan Ryan hasn't exactly been in the groove of late, but he may be getting back on the track.

"At last I got out of the rut," said Ryan after stopping Minnesota 6-4 Tuesday night. "I've been in a rut for over a year and it's been a constant grind."

Exactly a year ago, Ryan fired his fourth career no-hittier.

This season, however, he slumped early losing five straight games before Tuesday night's victory — his first since May 1.

"I'm my own worst enemy," said Ryan, who was staked to a 6-1 lead early in the game. "I fight myself a lot."

Ryan, now 4-6, surrendured a two-run homer to Minnesota's Larry Hisle in the seventh inning and a solo homer by Craig Kusick in the eighth.

"Both of those were inside fast balls," said Ryan, who finished with seven strikeouts despite not getting his first one until the fifth inning.

The Angels tallied twice in the first inning on a run-scoring triple by Bobby Bonds, who also scored on a sacrafice fly.

Lyman Bostock, who extended a personal hitting streak to 10 games, came around to score Minnesota's initial run after a leadoff double in the first.

Andy Etchebarren's two-run single, an RBI single by Jerry Remy and run-scoring double by Lee Stanton chased losing pitcher Pete Redfern, now 1-2, in the fourth.

Hisle also singled twice for Minnesota, which dropped its second straight to the Angels and fell one games below .500.

Bonds was the only California player with two hits.

McTear to enroll at Santa Monica

PENSACOLA, Fla. (AP) — Teen-aged track star Houston McTear will enroll this week at Santa Monica, Calif., College, where he is already training for the Olympic trials, The Pensacola Journal reported today.

The newspaper said McTear, the co-holder of the world record for the 100-yard dash at 9.0 seconds, will represent the junior college in the Olympic trials June 19-21.

"The world can stop wondering now. He's headed for Santa Monica," the Journal was told by Harold Smith, a 1964 Olympian who along with California millionaire Philip Fairchild is providing personal help and guidance for McTear.

Smith, promotion agent for closed circuit television, said he plans to deliver McTear's high school transcripts to the college Tuesday morning.

The college, a two-year school that doesn't belong to any national athletic association, does not require a high school diploma for freshman admission.

"He will be a member of our track team whenever he officially enrolls," Santa Monica track coach Ralph Martin told the Journal.

Fairchild gave McTear and Baker High companion Philip Willamson plane tickets to fly to Pasadena, Calif., last Wednesday. They now are living with Fairchild, a plastics manufacturer, the newspaper said.

McTear had signed a national letter of intent to attend the University of Florida but later changed his mind and made several contradictory predictions about his future.

The minor controversy that followed became moot when McTear failed to finish high school and made himself ineligible to attend Florida. Florida.

Bearkittens play for CIF crown

By TIM CLARK
PB Correspondent

NORCO — A varsity team from the Pomona valley has finally made it to the CIF finals this year. The Bonita High girls softball squad holds that distinction, as it trounced Norco, 9-4, Tuesday afternoon at Miken field.

The big inning for Jean Brennecke's Bearkittens was the sixth, as the Hacienda league champs took advantage of five walks, three errors and a lone single (but a big one) to chalk up six runs to put the CIF playoff in the basket.

Bonita will face South Pasadena, a 7-4 victor over Channel Islands Tuesday for the 2A CIF Championship, which will be held Thursday at a neutral site. It will be virtually impossible for the Progress-Bulletin to notify Bonita followers of the gamesite, as a decision will not be made until this afternoon.

Bonita officials advise that all Bearcat fans interested in attending the championship playoff to make contact with the school on Thursday morning, where information and directions to the neutral diamond will be given.

"Can you believe it, can you believe it?", exclaimed the jubilant Mrs. Brennecke. "We're actually in the CIF finals! This is really exciting . . . and the fan support we got today! It's great to see so many people come way out here (Norco) to see us play. This is just great!"

The Bearcats did not have to rely on their usually potent offensive attack Tuesday, making the most out of each Norco mistake (there were quite a few) and the unraveling of the host's pitcher, Teri Bailey.

Miss Bailey had a most discouraging afternoon, watching (and contributing) her defense fall apart, getting picked off base twice, losing her control (10 walks), and finally, her composure.

With one away in the Bonita fifth, Teri issued FIVE straight free passes, and then "cracked" as Linda Christianson hammered an offering up the middle, clearing the bases. Linda moved to third when Norco catcher Cindy Schuster overthrew Bailey in an attempt to nail Nancy Matza at the plate. Bailey in turn committed another throwing error to third, where Christianson had advanced, enabling Linda to sail home for the 'Cats sixth tally of the frame.

Time then had to be called as Bailey, seeing her season go up in smoke, had to step off the rubber due to a sudden onrush of tears. Finally dried up approximately seven minutes later, she promptly struck out Cathy Matza.

Freshman Betty Garcia once again hurled the distance for the Bearcats, upping her record to 13-2 in tossing a five-hitter (All four Norco runs off Betty were unearned).

Bonita stole seven bases Tuesday, led by Hacienda-leader Cathy Matza (3), and Marsha Huss (2). Christianson's blow was obviously the most important of the day, but Nancy Matza also picked up 2 RBIs.

Game time on Thursday will be 3:15 p.m.

Freisleben is honored

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — San Diego right-hander Dave Freisleben has been named the National League's Player of the Week, League President Chub Feeney announced Tuesday.

Another Padres pitcher, Randy Jones, won the award a week earlier.

Freisleben, who was called up from Hawaii of the Pacific Coast League on May 22, shut out both Los Angeles and San Francisco last week.

Bill Walton key to Blazers

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — "It's going to take a healthy Bill Walton" to turn Portland into a winner, says new Portland Trail Blazers Coach Frank Ramsay.

"Like I had a healthy one, right?" responded Lenny Wilkens, who was fired by the National Basketball Association club after completing two years of a four-year contract.

Ramsay's hiring was announced at a news conference Tuesday, making him the fourth coach in the six-year history of the Blazers.

"I had heard some rumors the past couple of weeks, but I still didn't think anything would happen," Wilkens said in a telephone interview. "I mean why should I? We had a lot of injuries, other problems I don't think any coach could control."

Ramsay was dismissed by Buffalo on May 3 after the Braves lost to Boston in the Eastern Conference semifinals.

"He's not fired, he's just not rehired," Buffalo publicist Mike Shaw said at the time.

Ramsay coached at Buffalo for four years, the Braves reaching the NBA playoffs the last three.

Wilkens had completed the second year of a four-year contract. The Blazers were 38-44 the first year, their best record ever, and 37-45 the past season despite numerous injuries, notably to Walton.

Wilkens, who previously coached Seattle for three years and played in the NBA for 15 years, said he "didn't think it was right ... but he's the one making the decisions," a reference to Lawrence Weinberg, Blazers president.

"I know that it's a high risk business," he said, "but I don't think you can overlook the fact that Bill Walton was hurt and out of the lineup, that Geoff Petrie started off well, then was hurt and out, and that Lloyd Neal was injured and out ...

"When you're winning, everyone thinks you're a genius," Wilkens said. "Next year, what if he (Walton) stays healthy? Everyone will think he (Ramsay) is a genius. Ironically, it could happen."

Wilkens wasn't wishing Ramsay any ill luck, just predicting what might happen next season if the Blazers stay healthy.

With Walton healthy, Portland looked like a playoff contender at midseason, winning seven straight games in one stretch. Then Walton, the 6-foot-11 injury - prone center, suffered a stress fracture in his right leg and was sidelined for more than a month.

"I think this is the best coaching opportunity in professional basketball," Ramsay said at the news conference. "I took the position here for that reason."

Ramsay's contract is for two years with an additional option year.

Ramsay, who was coach and general manager of the Philadelphia 76ers for six years, said, "The only mixed feeling I have is that I am replacing a guy for whom I have a great deal of respect."

At Buffalo, his first team was 21-61 in 1972-73. The next three made the playoffs with records of 42-40, 49-33 and 46-36.

News reports indicated a disagreement between Ramsay and Buffalo owner Paul L. Snyder led to the coach's dismissal.

Similar reports suggested it was mainly Weinberg who became disenchanted with Wilkens because the Blazer owner didn't feel the club made enough progress the past season.

Wilkens said he was told of the decision in a telephone call from Weinberg Monday morning.

Weinberg was out of town Tuesday. Blazer officials released a prepared statement in which the club president said: "We appreciate Lenny's special contributions to basketball and to the Trail Blazers, and we recognize this, particularly, at a time when injuries plagued the team."

Ramsay, who coached for 11 years at St. Joseph's College in Philadelphia, said: "I think there is great potential here. I think the potential is unrealized ... I think there is a great future ahead for the Portland Trail Blazers."

He added, "You have in Bill Walton a premier big man. Your strength up front, with forwards like Sidney Wicks, is very good ... in the backcourt, I think there may be some need for additional help. But Geoff Petrie is a premier player."

Wilkens said he would like to remain an NBA coach. "My nature is a very competitive one," he said. "I'm just going to sit back, wait and give it some thought ... regardless of what some people may think, I do think I know a lot about the game."

Celtics, Suns halt their war of nerves

PHOENIX (AP) — The Boston Celtics and Phoenix Suns temporarily halt their psychological war of nerves and resume their war of attrition tonight in Game Four of the National Basketball Assocation championship series.

The Celtics, gunning for their 13th league title since 1957, lead the best-of-seven nationally televised series 2-1. Game Five will be played in Boston Friday night.

While the players have been physically battling and battering each other on the court for three games, the coaches—Tom Heinsohn of Boston and John MacLeod of Phoenix—have been staging a verbal war off the court.

Following the first two games, both Boston victories at home, MacLeod charged that the Celtics were being overly aggressive and were permitted by the officials to get away with it.

MacLeod's accusations became widely publicized and following the Suns' victory in Game Three, Heinsohn contended that the officials had been swayed in making some calls by what the Phoenix coach had said.

MacLeod then contended his remarks were not a ploy to psych his players, saying if they were not yet fired up for the first championship series in the team's eight-year history, they never would be.

However, he admitted that in order to beat the Celtics, a team "must be aggressive."

"I'm glad to see they're not choir boys," Heinsohn retorted. "I'm glad to see MacLeod admits that they play aggressively."

While the coaches have been waging their psychological warfare, most of the players have said they don't think this series has been exceptionally physical.

"It hasn't been any rougher than any other time we've played Boston," said muscular forward Curtis Perry, the Suns' captain. "I think our series against Seattle (the Western Conference semifinals) was rougher. Against Seattle, Gar (Garfield Heard, Phoenix's other starting forward) and I were charged with mugging them. Now, we've got a reputation from the past.

Al Bianchi, assistant coach of the Suns, agreed. "There has been a lot of good, clean, aggressive basketball," he said. "But remember, you can associate aggressiveness with offense, not only with defense.

"When we get to our spot (on the court) with them handchecking us," Bianchi added, "then we're being aggressive offensively. This team is so conditioned and tuned from practice and from a game standpoint to do that, they know how important it is. That's when we're being physical ... when their bodies are on us and we get there ... when they put their hands on us and we get there."

The Celtics, meanwhile, have been trying to disrupt and destroy the Suns' offensive patterns with a pressing ballhawking defense. But Heinsohn maintained that officials Richie Powers and Paul Mihalak nullified Boston's defensive strategy in Game Three by calling excessive fouls against the Celtics, putting them in foul trouble, causing them to back off defensively and giving the Suns more room to operate.

The result was 65 personal fouls, three technicals—all against Boston, the fouling out of the Celtics' Dave Cowens and Charlie Scott and a fight between Boston's Kevin Stacom and Phoenix Ricky Sobers, which led to the ejection of the two combatants.

Not only did Cowens and Scott foul out, they also played poorly. Cowens, normally one of Boston's most anxious shooters, took only seven shots and at least one of his teammates said he showed little inclination to participate offensively and appeared to sulk after getting into foul trouble early.

Scott, participating in his first playoff game in Phoenix since the Suns traded him to Boston a year ago for Paul Westphal, seemed overanxious to prove to his former teammates and fans that the Suns were wrong in dealing him. But his emotions apparently overcame his intentions and he played wild, undisciplined basketball, missing 13 of 16 shots and committing seven turnovers.

Westphal, also the victim of a sub-par performance in his first playoff game at Boston, has since stabilized his play, totaling 50 points in the past two games. He also has helped upset the Celtics' offense.

"Westy knows our plays and he's been calling them out," noted Heinsohn. "Now the other Suns know them too.

"But we've got some other ideas, some counterplays, some things we've saved that we're going to use now," he added.

"It wouldn't surprise me if they moved Cowens outside like they did against Cleveland (in the Eastern Conference final)," said MacLeod.

Sports briefs

HOUSTON (AP) — Gordie Howe, the Houston Aeros' playing president, is facing the retirment question for the third time in his career, but Tuesday he said he hadn't made up his mind yet about playing for the World Hockey Association team next season.

"When you look at giving something up that's been your whole life, it's difficult," said Howe, who scored 100 points and led the Aeros to the WHA finals. "But I haven't give up yet.

"I'll just have to decide if I can be an asset to the WHA and this club, which with 100 points last year I think I was an asset."

Howe, 48, gained the National Hockey League's Hall of Fame after his 25-year career with the Detroit Red Wings. He came out of retirment to lead the Aeros to two WHA championships and into the finals this year.

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The Kansas City Kings of the National Basketball Association stood pat Tuesday on their withdrawal from negotiations to try to save the National Hockey League franchise for Kansas City.

William Clarkson, representing a city-sponsored committee of hockey supporters, issued a formal statement quoting Kings owners as saying "they found it impossible to proceed with a plan for purchase."

In his statement, Clarkson said he had contacted the Kings organization at the urging of Mayor Charles B. Wheeler Jr. to ask "that they reconsider their decision not to pursue acquisition of the hockey franchise."

The Scouts, reportedly $5 million in debt after two seasons of dwindling attendance and finances, and the city have until the next NHL board of governors meeting June 7 to come up with a plan and the money to preserve the expansion franchise here.

SEATTLE (AP) — Richard Vertlieb has been named executive director of Seattle's new American League baseball franchise.

For the past two years Vertlieb had been in Bay Area basketball as general manager of the National Basketball Association's Golden State Warriors.

Lester Smith, managing partner of the franchise, and entertainer Danny Kaye — one of the six owners — also confirmed that Vertlieb's righthand man with the Warriors, Hal Childs, will be the baseball team's public relations director.

The Vertlieb-Childs appointments were made public about two weeks ago. The announcement Tuesday officially confirmed the move.

Vertlieb, 45, will be responsible for day-to-day operations of the new baseball team, while Childs, 43, will be in charge of public realations, merchandising, promotional and advertising functions.

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Veteran receiver Otis Taylor of the Kansas City Chiefs was traded Tuesday to the Houston Oilers for an undisclosed future draft choice.

Taylor, an 11-year National Football League veteran, joined the Chiefs as a fourth round draft choice from Prairie View A&M in 1965.

He leaves Kansas City as the Chiefs' all-time leading career pass receiver with 410 catches for 7,306 yards and 57 touchowns. Taylor ranks second behind Oakland Raider Fred Biletnikoff among active American Football Conference receivers and 21st on the all-time NFL career receiver list.

In announcing the transaction, Chiefs Coach Paul Wiggin said, "It was a difficult decision to make because Otis has been a super star in the NFL and has carried a great impact on the Chiefs in their championship years. We are happy we were able to place Otis with a contending team."

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Maryland's Al Hamlin, recent winner of the IC4A decathlon, took a 50-point lead Tuesday in the opening round of the NCAA decathlon championships at Franklin Field.

Hamlin picked up 3,889 points during the five events for a 50-point lead over pre-meet favoritke Chris Lythell of Brigham Young Univeristy, who was second with 3,839 points. Ed Miller of California had 3,834 for third place and Steve Young of BYU was fourth with 3,889.

Young set at NCAA decathlon record in the 400 meter run with a time of 0:48.0, bettering the old mark set by Colorado's Mike Hill in 1974 by four-tenths of a second.

Alabama's John Crist also came close to matching a meet record in the high jump. He won the event with a leap of 6 feet, 10¾ inches but failed three times when the bar was raised to seven feet.

Barry Stebbins of Mount St. Mary's won the 100 meters in 10.99, while Young won the long jump with a distance of 22 feet, 1¾ inches. Miller was the shot put winner at 46 feet, 11 inches.

Other first day point totals included Stebbins 3798; Jim Schnur, Cincinnati, 3788; Crist 3756; Tony Hale, Fisk, 3633; Bengt Larsson, Oregon State, 3497; Dave Powell, BYU, 3491; Don Ussely, Florida, 3448; and John Cecil, Auburn, 3354.

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Dave Williams, a former wide receiver with the San Diego Chargers, has filed a $12.5 million damage suit against the author of a football book which Williams says has caused him public disgrace.

The suit was filed Tuesday in San Diego County Superior Court against Dr. Arnold Mandell, author of "The Nightmare Season."

Mandell, a Physician and Psychiatrist at the University of California, San Diego, wrote the book after spending the 1973 season with the Chargers as a team psychiatrist.

Also named as defendants were the Chargers, Chargers owner Eugene Kelin, former Charger General Manager Harland Svare and Random House, Inc., which published Mandell's book.

The suit said that the book contained passages saying that Williams, 30, "exhibited defects of character, such as drunkeness, egocentrism, cowardice and lack of integrity."

Mandell also ays that Williams suffered from mental illness, has been incompetent as a football player and "has committed acts of misconduct, dishonesty and immorality," the suit said.

Rams sign top pick

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Los Angeles Rams have signed their top pick in the college draft, linebacker Kevin McLain of Colorado State, the club has announced.

McLain, a 6-foot-2, 238-pounder, signed a series of one-year contracts, a team spokesman said Tuesday. Terms were not disclosed.

McLain, who received honorable mention on The Associated Press All-American team, played middle linebacker for Colorado State, but is expected to vie for the Rams' outside linebacker spot vacated when Ken Geddes went to Seattle in the expansion draft.

The Rams also announced the signing of Freeman Johns, a wide receiver who was a 10th round pick out of SMU; Steve Hamilton, a 13th round selection who played quarterback at Emporia State; Al Burleson, a 14th round pick who was a safety at Washington, and Mal Campbell, a wide receiver from Los Angeles State who went on the 15th round.

NINE WINNING DUOS took home trophies from Monday's Sunny Skies Classic and the sponsoring Boy Scouts had their own reasons for enjoying Memorial Day. Entry fees from the 156 players in the all-doubles competition at the Claremont Tennis Club added up to contribution of more than $1,000 for local area activities of the scouts' Old Baldy Council.

Round-robin play within each of the nine divisions produced these champs (runners-up listed in parenthesis):

At the A level — men's Clint Hufford and Jeff Clark (Don Shafe and Fred Roecker); women's, Doris Clark and Judy Ross (Martha Hansen and Jan Green); mixed Marty Hershey and Shawneen Piper (John Blomberg and Margi Sullivan).

In the B flight, — men's Shel Wellins and Dick Imwally (Wade Mayor and Jim Samonte); women's Julie Lewis and Pat Turner (Lucille Pearsall and Eve Walker); and mixed, Tom Harris and Gloria Wycoff (Wally and Linda Smith).

In the C's — men's Bruce Drew and Joe Hahn (Robert Carlton and Bob Davis); women's, Jeannine Neuer and Pat Fiddes (Cora Crump and Sandy Vander Diesen); and mixed, Bill and Betty Kessler (Tom Ewards and Sara Cheverton).

ONE SAN JOSE HILLS Racquet Club team stands one victory away from the Foothill League championship and the other stands in need of a tranquilizer. Team One defeated Glendale, 7-4, Sunday at Mt. San Antonio College and will carry a league-leading 6-0 record into its final meet next Sunday at Monterey Park. Matched against that same Monterey Park team last Sunday, San Jose Hills Team Two emerged trembling but triumphant, 6-5. It was the second time in the current season that the local group has pulled out a spine-tingler with a come-from-behind effort in the final mixed doubles match.

The league front-runners stayed a game up on Arcadia largely through the singles successes of Craig Orr, Lou De La Vega, Jack Hamm, Claro Guico and Helen Wang. Orr and Don Hook paired up for one doubles point and De La Vega and Jeannine Neuer managed another in the mixed.

The big point for Team Two was that Mixed doubles decider, won by Bob and Mary Delle Welton in a third set tie-breaker. The Weltons had battled back from a 1-5 game disadvantage in the final set. Other San Jose Hills winners were John Grojan, Ron Daniels and Diane Daniels and the doubles teams of Ron Daniels-Jim Duncan and Pete Chavis-Judy Seay. Team Two, now even up and 3-3 for the season, can do its club brethren a favor next Sunday by upending Arcadia in meet at MSAC.

Sir Verde Country Club's Foothill League team couldn't stop the second-place Arcadians Sunday, losing 8-3 at the San Dimas High courts. Only winners for the local area contingent were three singles performers — Tom Li, Karin Weisman and Lilian Schabarum. Via Verde also will be trying for a winning record Sunday when it takes its 3-3 mark into the finale against the Jet Propulsion Laboratory outfit at Pasadena.

LITTLE WEBB SCHOOL made the strongest run at a CIF tennis title out of all the valley's prep hopefuls this spring. The Webb team charged into the 2-A semifinals before losing to eventual champion Central High of El Centro 16¼-11 ¾, last week.

It was one of the best net squads ever to represent the private boarding school for boys nestled in the hills above Claremont and its star player ranks among Southern California's most talented juniors. Mark Novelo from Ensenada, Mexico, finished up his four-year playing career at Webb by wiping out all four singles opponents from Central, just as he had done in most of the team matches this season.

Webb ended up with a 15-6 record but lost only to Central on the 2-A level. The other setbacks were to 3-A teams and Novelo's only defeat in team action came against a strong Riverside Poly team.

LADDER CHANGES at the Valley Racquet Club: Bob Brown took over the No. 1 men's singles position, bumping Bob Haag, 6-4, 6-4. Steve Hayes moved into the No. 4 spot by outlasting Jack Newman, 6-7, 6-4, 6-1.

In the club's recent "mixed-up" doubles tournament, Martin Mayland and Mike Lease beat Bob and Sue Haag in the finals, 16-15.

Meanwhile, the club will host some of the action in the San Gabriel Valley YWCA benefit tournament Friday. Play will begin at 9 a.m. at the Indian Hill Boulevard courts.

A TENNIS CLINIC at Citrus College June 14-18 will put the participants in front of the TV cameras. Instructors will record each players' strokes on videotape for later analysis.

The five-day program will be under the direction of Citrus Coach Mike Meissenburg, each session running from 6 to 9 p.m. It's open to adult beginners, intermediates and advanced players, with instruction geared to each participant's ability level. Registration at $30 per person can be made at the Citrus Cashier's Office.

CLAREMONT'S CITY-SPONSORED tennis program never pauses for long. The eight-week summer schedule of instruction and league competition will begin June 21, with registration to start Saturday.

Bob and Penny Daoust and Mike Bechard will provide the supervision and instruction at the Cahuilla Park-Claremont High courts, where classes for every level of play and age group will be available. Two adult beginning sessions will give enrollees a choice of morning or evening instruction on Mondays. The early group will meet at 9 a.m., the late crowd at 6 p.m.

Classes for adult intermediate and advanced players will be held at 6 p.m. Tuesdays and an adult doubles strategy course at the same time Wednesdays. For the youngsters, there'll be instruction for boys 8 to 15 at 8 a.m. Mondays and Wednesdays, for girls 8 to 11 at 8 a.m. Tuesdays and Thursdays and for girls 12 to 15 at 9 a.m. Tuesdays and Thursdays.

For competition, women can select either a Wednesday or a Friday doubles league, or both with 9 a.m. starting times. A junior league on Tuesdays and Thursdays at 10 a.m. will be for players 18 and under, but they'll have to prove their ability level in tryouts to qualify for this one.

Registration and fee-paying for all programs except the junior league will be done at the Parks and Recreation Office at Memorial Park. Junior league registration will be at the courts June 22. Fee for the morning adult beginners session is $15.50, for the other adult classes, $20.50. The boys and girls instruction will cost $16.50, women's doubles entrants will pay $17 per team and junior league players will be assessed $12.50.

The Claremont leagues finished up their winter-spring season just a few weeks ago, women's singles and doubles standings the last to be settled. No first-place surprise in either. Penny Daoust completed her unbeaten spree to both titles, just as she had already done with husband Bob in the mixed doubles ladder. Penny's 168 points represented a perfect record in 12 matches, followed by Sylvia Connolly's 138, Kip Spear's 135, Lu Bennett's 132 and Judy Linberg's 125.

Penny partnered Isabel Alba to the doubles crown, as their 168 points topped the 133 of Ellen Townsend and Sandy Fotre, the 131 of Linda Moore and Ros Dong, the 128 of Pat Fiddes and Jannine Neuer and the 126 of Beverly Weber and Bobbie Cornett.

B women's winner was Betty Brainerd with 144, beating Nina Howard's 143, Carolyn Mason's 139, Rose Cullen's 138 and Lorraine Harrison's 136.

BRONCO BELTER — Cal Poly outfielder Ray Pekarcik will be one of 21 Bronco baseballers traveling East today for upcoming NCAA Division II World Series, slated to start Saturday in Springfield, Ill.

Poly player ready for Nationals

Pekarcik is back!

By JIM McCONNELL
PB Staff Writer

The phase "what a difference a year makes" might well have been coined to describe Ray Pekarcik's baseball fortunes.

Pekarcik will be one of the 21 Cal Poly baseballers flying back to Springfield, Illinois tonight for the upcoming NCAA Division II World Series. A year ago, the Damien High product would have never dreamed that he would be on a Bronco team vieing for the national title. In fact, he had his doubts whether he was even going to be on the team at all.

"Last year was my worse year in baseball, bar none," Pekarcik claims. "I didn't play much (only 10 games and 14 at bats), we were a losing team and baseball just wasn't fun anymore.

"I thought twice about even going out for the team this season. But, with coach Scolinos reducing the size of the squad, I decided to strick with it. Boy, am I glad I did!..

Pekarcik has become a vital man in the Bronco attack since being inserted in the starting lineup in Poly's stretch drive. He delivered a couple key hits in Poly's three-game sweep of Northridge which netted the locals the California Collegiate Athletic Association title.

In the lineup for every inning of the NCAA Far West Regionals, Pekarcik helped spark the Broncs to a three-game sweep of that competition.

Pekarcik will be carrying a .281 batting average back East, not bad for a fellow who had only three hits all of last year.

"I've been looking forward to the World Series ever since we swept Northridge," Pekarcik noted. "I've got a world of confidence in this team, we're going into the Nationals without much of an idea of what to expect but I'm sure we will do well back there."

Until his late-season heroics this year, the Bronco slugger was better known as the "other" Pekarcik.

Younger brother Larry had a standout career as a pitcher locally, first at Damien and later at Mt. San Antonio College. He's now playing for the Cincinnati Reds' Tampa club in the Florida State League.

"Being compared to my brother has not bothered me that much since we never really played that much together on the same team. I graduated from Damien in 1972, and Larry was just a sophomore then and didn't pitch that much.

"The only time it bothers me is when someone calls Larry my "big brother." He might be the best player in the family, but he's still "kid brother" to me," Pekarcik's diamond fortunes have not been as rosy as his brothers, but this year has helped turn things around. A shortstop at Damien High, Ray had only one solid offer from college coach upon graduation, and that was from Art Mazmanian at MSAC.

"I decided to go to Cal Poly because they had the academic program I was after, which was data processing. I knew that Poly had a good baseball program, but the academic atmosphere really came first."

Pekarcik played on the Bronco frosh team in 1973, and red-shirted a year in 1974. 1975 was his first year on the varsity level, and it was not exactly a resounding success for either Pekarcik or Poly.

The Broncos suffered through a 18-29 season, and Pekarcik played little and contributed less.

Pekarcik sums up the change by noting "baseball is fun again. The whole team is concentrating better and is really bearing down in the playoffs. In fact, we played our best ball of the year in the playoffs, against some good teams. To win the Far West Regional in three straight games against the type of teams we played was quite a tribute to the way we have been playing."

Pekarcik is known as one of the most baseball-wise players on the Poly squad, but admits he still has learned a great deal playing under veteran Poly skipper Scolinos.

"I always felt I knew the game pretty well, but I learned more my very first day of fall practice at Poly under Scolinos that I had in my entire baseball career to that point. His total approach to the game is remarkable. He doesn't change that much whether we win or lose; he won't start reading the riot act if you lose and he doesn't get carried away if you win."

Noting the team's improved hitting this season (the Broncs' team average is up 41 points to .307), Pekarcik attributes much of the improvement to a drill Scolinos picked up while attending a clinic in the off-season taught by Cardinal catcher Ted Simmons.

"We have worked for hours hitting the ball to the "off" or opposite field. It's something everybody on the squad can do now. Guys like Dennis Sherow who used to be dead pull hitters now can really ride that ball to right or right-center. This team can swing the bat better than any team I've ever been on, you have the feeling playing with them that it's just a matter of time before they explode, no matter who we are playing.

"That's why it's going to be fun back in Springfield. I think we are going to impress a lot of people back there with club."

Legion roundup

La Verne triumphs

La Verne and Montclair picked up non-league wins in American Legion baseball action Tuesday night.

La Verne Post 330 rallied for six runs in the top of the ninth to down Chino Post 299 12-6, while Montclair edged Pomona Post 30 3-2.

Post 330 won its fourth straight game and ran its season mark to 6-2 with the win over Chino. Post 299 is still winless at 0-7 for the year.

A six-run rally in the ninth off Chino hurler Mark Schlesinger spelled the difference. Post 330 had four hits in that frame, including a two-run single by Robert Alexander and RBIs by Wally Pitts, Mark Gillette and Steve Benoit.

Benoit, in his first mound appearance since junior high school, pitched two scoreless innings to pick up his first win of the year. Dennis Wetzel started on the hill for Post 330 but walked nine in six innings and was yanked in favor of Paul Richards.

Chino tied the game at 6-6 in the last of the seventh with three runs, key hit being a two-run single by Schlesinger.

Drury and Alexander had two hits apiece in the win, while Gillette accounted for three RBIs. La Verne coach Dick Salomon rested most of his regulars. Drury, with the two hits, is now hitting .500 (13-for-26) on the year.

Montclair hurlers Don Pierce and Mike Breslin limited Post 30 to only two hits, Montclair evening its season mark at 2-2. Pomona is now 10-2 on the year.

Pierce pitched the first five innings, fanning five while walking four and not allowing a hit. Breslin finished up on the hill with four innings of two-hit ball.

Randy Babineau started on the hill for Post 30 but surrendered three runs and six hits in four innings to absorb the loss, his first of the year.

On Monday, La Verne ran its District 18 mark to 2-0 with a 5-2 win over visiting Claremont Post 78. Bill Bumstead hurled the distance for the win, while Drury led the La Verne attack with four hits in as many at bats. Brad Kirkendall took the loss for Post 78.

La Verne and Claremont have District 18 league matches slated for this evening. Post 330 will entertain Covina Post 207 at La Verne College in a 5 p.m. start, while Post 78 will host San Gabriel Post 442 at Claremont High at 7 p.m.

UNDERWATER BASEBALL — Philadelphia Phils' groundskeeper nearly disappears in splash as violent hail and rainstorm flooded infield and stopped game in sixth. Phils won, 6-1.

Candelaria gets big lift Ryan back on track

By Associated Press

John Candelaria watched one fly over the outfield fence in the first inning and whispered: "Oh, well, here we go again."

Candelaria was still pitching in the ninth inning, much to his own surprise. By then he didn't mind giving up another home run to Joe Torre.

"The double play in the fourth inning gave me a lift and I bore down after that," said the youthful Pittsburgh Pirate lefthander after a 3-2 victory over the New York Mets Tuesday night.

A less artistic victory would have pleased Candelaria. He hadn't won a game in nearly a month. But this one had extra luster to it, since Candelaria struck out 12 batters to tie a National League high for the season and allowed the Mets only six hits.

The performance provided a great deal of satisfaction for Candelaria after a long absence from the starting rotation.

"I went to the bullpen for a while and it helped my concentration," he said. "It gave me a little push. This game is not an easy one and people think if you are young, you can throw hard. It gave me a little goal— to get back."

The victory was Candelaria's fourth in seven decisions, but only his first since May 7. The Pirates expected more out of him this season after an impressive showing at the end of last year that included a strong, if losing, performance against the Cincinnati Reds in the National League playoffs.

"This game doesn't prove anything," said Candelaria, a 22-year-old who grew up just a few miles from Shea Stadium in New York. "It's only one game. I still have to prove that I can win consistently. I have no doubt, but maybe others do.

"It hurt after losing in the playoffs last year even though everyone congratulated me after pitching a good game. You can't live on 1975. This is 1976."

In the other National League games, the Atlanta Braves walloped the San Diego Padres 9-1; the Philadelphia Phillies stopped the Chicago Cubs 6-1 in a six-inning, rain-shortened game; the St. Louis Cardinals turned back the Montreal Expos 6-2; the Houston Astros nipped the Cincinnati Reds 2-1 and the San Francisco Giants blanked the Los Angeles Dodgers 6-0.

After getting out of a basesloaded situation with a double play in the fourth, Candelaria permitted only two other Mets to reach base in the final five innings. One of them was Torre, who blasted his second home run of the game with one out on the ninth. Torre, who got three of the hits off Candelaria, had given the Mets a 1-0 lead with his first-inning shot.

Bob Robertson, with a two-run homer in the fourth inning, provided Candelaria with a 2-1 lead. The Pirates then scored their eventual winning run on a double by Bill Robinson and a single by Richie Zisk in the sixth inning. Jerry Koosman, 6-2, gave up all three Pittsburgh runs in working the first eight innings for the Mets.

Braves 9, Padres 1

Earl Williams smashed a three-run homer in the first inning and Roger Moret hurled a six-hitter after a shaky start as Atlanta snapped a four-game losing streak by beating San Diego.

Williams drilled his fourth homer over the left-field fence after Rod Gilbreath reached on a fielder's choice and Jim Wynn on a single. The Braves added two more runs off San Diego starter Brent Strom, 5-3, in the second on a walk to Darrell Chaney, a double by Jerry Royster and consecutive sacrifice flies by Moret and Rowland Office.

Atlanta put the game away with a four-run fifth that featured a ground rule double by Gibreath and run-scoring singles by Wynn, Tom Paciorek, Chaney and Royster.

Phillies 6, Cubs 1

Ron Reed, making his first start of the season after 14 relief appearances, pitched a four-hitter and Greg Luzinski hit a two-run homer as Philadelphia beat Chicago in a game stopped by torrential rains in the bottom of the sixth. Reed, 4-1, struck out seven and walked none as the red-hot Phillies won their 18th game in 22.

The rain helped wash out a couple of 12-game Chicago hitting streaks, one by Bill Madlock and the other by Manny Trillo. Madlock was hitless in three trips and Trillo in two, including a line drive into a double play.

Cardinals 6, Expos 2

Ted Simmons socked a two-run homer in the third inning and Ken Rudolph drove in two runs with a double in the seventh as St. Louis beat Montreal. Simmons' homer, his second on the year, came with two out after Cardinal shortstop Don Kessinger reached on the second of three errors committed by Montreal shortstop Pepe Frias.

Astros 2, Reds 1

Rookie Joaquin Andujar fired a two-hitter and Cesar Cedeno drove home the winning run with a sixth-inning single as Houston edged Cincinnati. Andujar, 1-2, picked up his first major league victory as he retired 25 out of 26 Reds he faced during one stretch. Right-hander Pat Zachary, 4-1, was tagged with both Astro runs.

Rodriguez loses pair

By Associated Press

It was like an LP record for Milwaukee relief ace Ed Rodriguez...only in this case LP stood for Losing Pitcher..

Rodriguez also picked up a WP...but that stood for the wild pitch he threw, capping a three-run Detroit rally in the ninth inning that enabled the Tigers to beat the Brewers 8-7 in the opener of Tuesday's twinight doubleheader.

Rodriguez then surrendered two runs in the ninth inning of the nightcap—the last on Ben Oglivie's two-out homer—as the Tigers completed a sweep by a 6-5 score.

The evening must have seemed like a nightmarish instant replay to the Brewers, who also saw Detroit rally twice Monday night with two runs in the ninth inning and two more in the 11th to post a 5-4 victory.

"Rodriguez had a chance to be a winner twice," said Milwaukee Manager Alex Grammas. "You can look at it two ways. It's up to the individual to cash in on opportunities. You are going to reach the point where you'll find out what you're made of, if you're a man or a mouse, if you abandon ship. We'll find out soon who'll abandon ship and who won't."

"I don't think me winning it means anything personally, but that I threw well is the important thing," he said. "I hadn't been consistent. The ballclub was going terrible and now it's turned around."

"That's the first time we've done anything against Rodriguez," said Detroit Manager Ralph Houk. "He's stuck it to us every time he's faced us the last two years."

Rangers 6, White Sox 5

Lenny Randle's run-scoring double with two out in the 16th inning drove in Gene Clines, who stole second after forcing Jim Sundberg, who had singled.

The White Sox played the game under protest on grounds the Rangers used an ineligible player in starting pitcher Bill Singer. Long before the game was over and shortly after Singer had been knocked out in the sixth inning, it was announced he had been traded to Minnesota. The White Sox contended Singer's contract already belonged to the Twins when he started the game.

Singer had a 5-2 lead and a four-hitter going into the sixth. One of the hits was a homer by Jorge Orta, his sixth of the season and third in three games.

"Protest? What protest?" screamed Texas Manager Frank Lucchesi. "The Texas Rangers broke their backs to win this game and they won it fair and square. I can't help it if the press broke the story ahead of time. We won it with bats and balls and not a piece of paper."

"Sorry about that," said Bill Veeck, president of the White Sox. "But when they started Bill Singer, they were using an ineligible player whose contract already belonged to another club."

Royals 5, A's 2

Amos Otis broke a 1-1 tie in the third inning with his ninth home run of the season, giving him the American League lead. The A's runs came on homers by Don Baylor in the first inning and Sal Bando in the A's seventh as Doug Bird became Kansas City's top winner with his sixth triumph.

The Royals got only six hits off Stan Bahnsen and three relievers but they stole five bases, two apiece by Hal McRae and Frank White.

Garcia, Noji end sparring

LOS ANGELES — Junior lightweights Ricarado Garcia, 24-4 with 16 knockouts, and Teru Noji, 18-4 with 14 KO's, end sparring this afternoon for their 10 round main event at the Olympic Thursday night.

Noji drills at 5 p.m. at Main St. gym while Garcia spars at 1:30 at the Olympic gym.

Thursday's odds have Garcia a 11-10 choice. Six weeks ago Garcia won a split 10 rounder from Noji in San Bernardino.

The entire card Thursday will be shown over KCOP, (Channel 13), 9 to 10:30 a.m. The live card will begin at the usual time, 8 a.m.

OAKLAND (AP) — The Oakland A's placed Cesar Tovar on the 21-day disabled list Tuesday and brought up outfielder Angel Mangual from Tucson of the Pacific Coast League.

Tovar suffered a broken left wrist Monday night when making a diving catch in the outfield in a 10-1 victory over Kansas City. Mangual, who has played for the A's in the past, was hitting .282 with Tucson.

Stars defend IVA crown

LONG BEACH — The Los Angeles Stars, defending champions of the International Volleyball Association, will open their 1976 home season Saturday, at Long Beach City College.

The opponent for the home opener will be the Tucson Turquoise who, along with the Phoenix Heat, are new teams in the IVA for this season, the League's second. The other teams are the San Diego Breakers, the Santa Barbara Spikers, the El Paso Sol and the Stars.

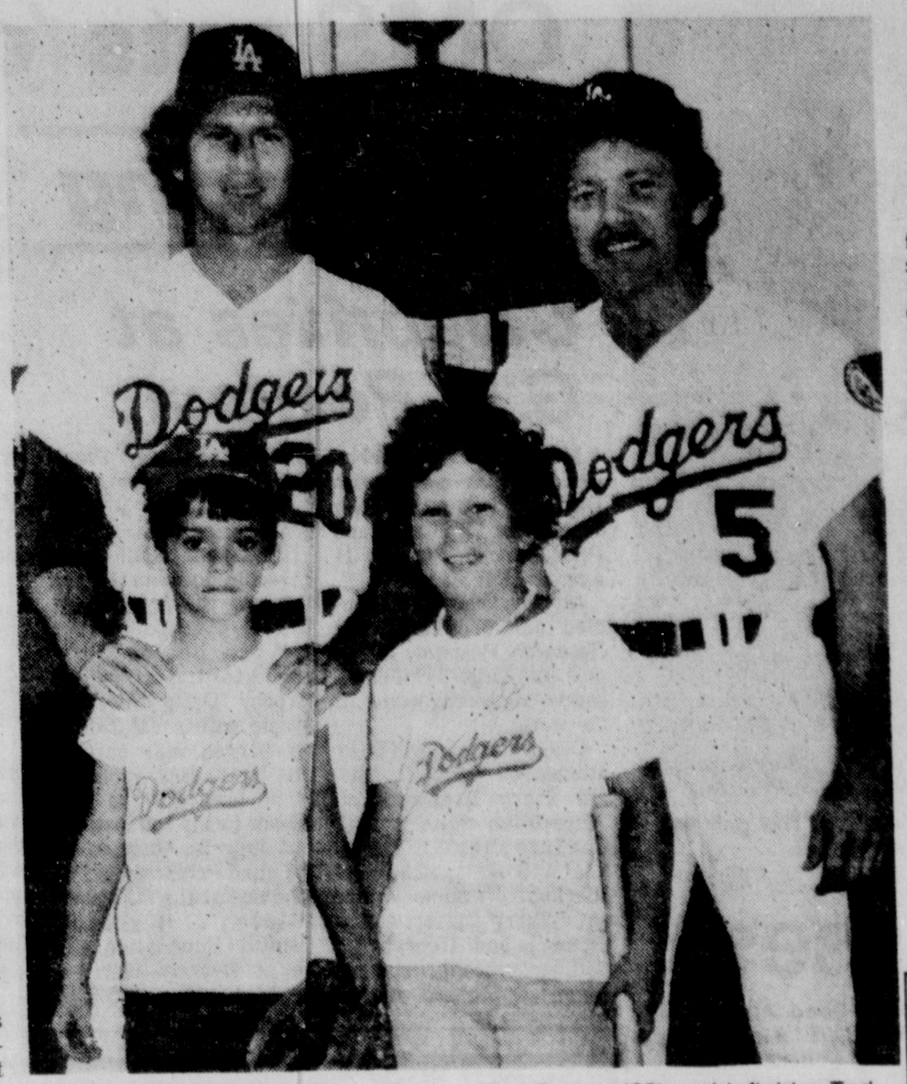
The 20 game home schedule of the Stars will be divided amongst several sites, giving all of the fans in the Los Angeles area a very accessible chance to view what is the best brand of volleyball played anywhere.

The other locales for the Stars are El Camino College, Redondo High School, Santa Monica College, UC Irvine and Cal State Northridge.

The L.A. Stars are led by player/coach Jon Stanley, named most valuable player in the IVA in the '75 season. His front line includes 6'9" Peter Stefaniuk, a Ukrainian from Canada, and 6'5" Miles Pabst, a rookie from Long Beach currently coaching the Long Beach State Volleyball Club. Along with Stanley the front line, averaging 6'7", is considered the strongest in the League. Dan Patterson, who inked his Stars contract early this month, played on the United States National Team this year when it lost to Cuba in attempting to qualify for the Olympic Games in Montreal. Patterson, Pabst and Stanley were the mainstays on the last American team to successfully qualify for the Olympics, where in Mexico they succeeded in defeating the world's champion Russian team that went on to win the Gold Medal in '68. Vying for the two starting berths on the female side of the club are second year veteran Bobbie Perry, women's volleyball coach at Redondo High School and a former All America and U.S. National Team representative; Sue Caldwell, former member of the Southern California Rangers; and Sandi Stanley, newly signed to Coach Stanley, both matrimonially and as a pro volleyball player. Rounding out the Star's Club is Ed Becker, 6'4" former UCLA All America and NCAA championship team representative who played on the Stars league championship team last year.

The Tucson club is led by the highly exciting Japanese setter Toshi Toyoda, along with U.S. National Team stars player/coach Byron Shewman and assistant player/coach Duncan McFarland.

World class athletes from Italy, Brazil, Poland, Japan, Mexico and Canada have joined the league of American male and female volleyball players to make for truly exciting international competition in the IVA.



CHIPS OFF OLD BUCK — Daron Sutton (left) and Tony Sizemore proudly display Dodger T-shirts that bear the same ensignia as that of their dads — pitcher Don Sutton (20) and infielder Ted Sizemore (5). T-shirts will be given free to all fans 14 and younger Friday night when Dodgers host Mets.

Six or seven ready in Belmont Stakes

NEW YORK (AP) — A field of six or seven is shaping up for Saturday's 108th Belmont Stakes, with Ogden Mills Phipps' Majestic Light the latest to join the list of 3-year-olds expected to go to the post in the third jewel of racing's Triple Crown.

"He started slowly but finished in a pleasing manner to both Braulio and me," said Russell after Majestic Light covered a mile in 1:40 2/5 and galloped out 1⅛ miles in 1:53 3/5.

If he does, it will bring to six the number of horses going to the post. Also expected are E.R. Tizol's Kentucky Derby winner, Bold Forbes; Christiana Stable's Best Laid Plans, winner of three of four starts this year; Mrs. Douglas Carver's McKenzie Bridge, an invader from California who won an allowance race here last week; Elmendorf's Play The Red, runnerup in the Preakness, and Howard P. Wilson's Great Contractor, second in the Florida Derby.

Another possible entry is Cojak, who finished first in Monday's Jersey Derby but was set down to second for bumping Life's Hope in the stretch. Trainer Sonny Hine had indicated Cojak would run in the Belmont, but track officials said Tuesday they had not yet heard from him.

One major absentee is Preakness winner Elocutionist, who galloped at Arlington Park in Chicago Saturday and appeared in top shape. But Sunday morning, trainer Paul Adwell noticed that the colt's right foreleg showed signs of filling.

"He wrenched it in some way," Adwell said. "Perhaps he rolled in his stall ... perhaps a thousand things. It just tied my stomach in knots to see it. It's not a serious injury, but there is no way I would take a chance with a nice horse like this, particularly at 1½ miles. So he's out of the Belmont."

Others who definitely won't go are Honest Pleasure, the beaten favorite in both the Kentucky Derby and the Preakness, and Mrs. Connie Ring's Crystal Water, winner of the Hollywood Derby. The latter will remain on the West Coast and point for the Argonaut June 13 and the Swaps June 27.

Cagers leave Olympic camp

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — At least five of the 53 basketball players originally in camp for the Olympic team trials are no longer practicing.

Among those who did not show up for practice Tuesday was Darrel Griffith, the only high school player at the tryouts.

Griffith's roommate, Wesley Cox, said Griffith had a sore knee and hoped to resume practice when it improved. The Louisville Male High player was one of the most heavily recruited high school players in the country this year.

Other players lost to attrition Tuesday were Steve Grote of Michigan, Ed Owens of Nevada-Las Vegas and Mike Richardson of Montana.

Grote suffered a collapsed lung after Monday night's scrimmage and was hospitalized. Owens went home with various aches and pains and Richardson left after suffering a pulled hamstring.

The best known player to drop out so far was Marquette's Bo Ellis. Unable to finish the mile run, he left Monday afternoon complaining of stomach pain.

According to the Olympic hopefuls, Coach Dean Smith is working them hard.

"I'm too tired to talk," moaned Indiana's Scott May after the morning workout. May was the 1976 college player of the year.

Smith said he hopes to develop a running, pressing team.

"I don't think there's going to be that much difference between the first and 12th men on the team," he said. "And when you have depth, the way to take advantage of it is to lenghten the game by running."

Smith is still searching for quality big men. He brought part-time North Carolina State starter Glenn Sudhop, 7 feet 2, into camp Tuesday and said he looked good in the morning workout.

'Pack golfers win CIF honors

By PHIL ROCHE
PB Staff Writer

Averaging 79 per player, the Claremont High golf team narrowly missed winning second place in the CIF Southern Section finals Monday at windswept Indian Hills Country Club, Riverside.

But Steve Ashton of Claremont fashioned a one-over-par 73 to win second place individual honors against the select field of the finest prep golfers in the Southland.

Riverside Poly, with all five players in the 70s, posted a 388 total to win the team championship. Claremont, coached by Ron Skaggs, tied for second with San Marcos at 396, but had to settle for the third place trophy on the basis of comparing the team scores for the first hole.

Glendora finished fourth, one stroke behind at 396 and Agoura was fifth with 398.

Glendora's steady junior, Don Dubois, was red-hot on the front side with a 33 and battled the wind for a 39 to finish as CIF medalist at even-par 72. Ashton of Claremont had a 36-37 for his 73.

Tied at 74 were Robert Daniels, Kennedy; Steve Titus, San Gabriel; and Brian Conser, Agoura. Rowland's Ray Duffy fired a 77, along with Scott Sullivan and John Mack of Claremont.

Completing the Claremont scoring were John Holtzman, 83, and Biran Bowles, 85.

The low 40 scorers and the team champion will travel to San Diego Monday for the state playoffs.

Claremont thus completed another outstanding season. The Wolfpack roared through the San Antonio League with a 10-0 mark, placed second in the Central CIF Regional behind Riverside Poly, then finished third Monday in the Southern Section of the CIF.

NEW YORK (AP) — The dates for the nine-day 1977 National Boat Show in New York's Coliseum will be Jan. 15 through 23. The public show will be preceded by two days for the marine trade.

Shea Stadium is rough place

NEW YORK (AP) — The car parking situation at New York City-owned Shea Stadium seems to be getting beyond control. Police say a number of cars have been broken into and property taken while Mets games were in progress.

One writer had someone open his car door with a key. Only thing missing was a "Best Wishes" baseball autographed by Dave Kingman. A week later, after Mickey Lolich beat the San Diego Padres 7-2, stones were thrown at Lolich's car parked in the enclosed section used by home team players. Youngsters also spat at the car.

CLASSIC DUEL — Richard Petty (43) and Buddy Baker (15) battle it out at Riverside Raceway. Action occurred in January. The pair will go at it again Sunday, June 13.

Petty puzzled by losses

King Richard. Is he a legend or a myth?

Even Richard Petty, NASCAR's all-time racing great, is wondering about his current losing streak as he prepares for the Riverside 400 Winston Cup Grand National June 13 at Riverside International Raceway.

At this time one year ago Petty could look back on five victories, including the Daytona 500 and Atlanta 500, and look forward to what became a history-making assault on the season point championship.

His victory in the Riverside Tuborg 400 came during the most incredible performance in stock car racing history. It was the second in an 11-race series from May 25 through Sept. 21 in which he completed all but one of the 3,188 scheduled racing laps.

Petty racked up six wins and five second-place finishes in that spree to turn the NASCAR Winston Cup point race into a rout.

It's a far different story for Petty in 1975. Since his spectacular crashing finish in the Daytona 500, which handed the win to David Pearson and left Petty parked 100 feet from the finish line, King Richard's STP Dodge has won only once. Aside from his victory in the Carolina 500 at Rockingham, N.C., Petty has finished second three times and fourth twice. Untypically, Petty has failed to finish five times in 10 races this year.

"We ain't doin' nothin' different from what we was last year," Petty said. "It's sort of hard to figure out. It ain't nothin' to panic about. We win our share. We've done it before, and we'll do it again."

Observers claim that Petty was hard hit by the new NASCAR engine restrictions, instituted after the Daytona 500 in the interest of increasing competition.

The effect of the rule has been to hand most of the super speedway races to David Pearson (Mercury) and Buddy Baker (Ford) and give a short track advantage to the Chevrolets of Cale Yarborough and Darrell Waltrip.

"Richard started fading the latter part of last year, actually," said veteran NASCAR observer Gene Granger over the weekend at Dover, Del., where Petty and the others were competing in the Mason-Dixon 500. "He finished last at Richmond, where he mostly wins, because he was doin' some experimenting."

"He was doin' that because he knew what was comin' and he wanted to be ready. Don't you worry too much about ol' Richard."

Riverside, which has the only road course the NASCAR Winston Cup Grand National drivers see all season, will be particularly difficult race this year, they all agree, because of the new shorter length, and that may not be to Petty's advantage.

Shortened from 400 miles to 400 kilometers, the $124,925 race will be flat out charging from flag to flag, the drivers have predicted. While that is Petty's style, the higher engine speeds a faster race will require may add to the mechanical problems that have plagued him all season long.

Tickets for the Riverside 400 and California 150 NASCAR Late Model Sportsman race, the companion event also scheduled for June 13, are on sale at Ticketron, Wallichs, Liberty Ticket Agencies and the Riverside International Raceway.

Indy rain wasn't forecast

That forecast, with little variation, has been the official National Weather Service statement on race day weather since at least 1973. But in that time, it has managed to rain somehow every race day.

That was the forecast for Sunday's rain-washed, shortest-ever Indianapolis 500, won by Johnny Rutherford, right up until 30 minutes before the race, when most of the estimated 400,000 persons were already inside Indianapolis Motor Speedway.

A.J. Foyt, unsuccessfully seeking his fourth Indy victory for the ninth consecutive year, finished second, 15 seconds behind Rutherford and 1:30 in front of Gordon Johncock.

What is becoming known as the "Chamber of Commerce Weather Forecast" was defended Monday by the weather service as a legitimate forecast gone sour for the fourth year in a row.

"We changed the forecast about 10:30 a.m. yesterday to a 60 per cent chance of rain," said a weather service spokesman, who agreed to discuss the forecast Monday only after being assured the conversation would not be tape recorded.

"It was just one of those things," he said. "There was a lot of thunderstorm activity in Missouri and Illinois when I came on duty yesterday at 7 a.m. The activity hadn't shown any westward movement at all, but about that time, an extensive batch of it started moving eastward.

"That's about when we changed the forecast."

The spokesman also said he was in constant contact with officials at the speedway and warned them of the front.

"I kept telling 'em this first batch was gonna come in and then we would have just about two hours before the next batch of fairly heavy activity would come through," the spokesman said.

However, after the initial short shower that stopped the race after 255 miles, it was announced over the public address system that "Clear skies are on the way. We expect to be racing again shortly."

A press box bulletin from the track advised, "Rain is reported as having stopped as near as Brownsburg, 20 miles to the west. Radar shows nothing farther west, according to the weather bureau at 1:20 p.m."

That, of course, was completely different that what the weather bureau claims it said.

When the race was finally called after a second, heavier shower hit at 3:05 p.m., just after the field of cars had been ordered assembled for a restart, it was announced on the public address system, "There is heavy rain all over the area, and we have been advised there is no way to continue the race today. Therefore your 1976 Indianapolis 500 champion is Johnny Rutherford."

Following Johncock in the order of finish were Wally Dallenbach, Pancho Carter, Tom Sneva, Al Unser, Mario Andretti, Salt Walther, Bobby Unser and Lloyd Ruby.

Jim Gilmore, sponsor of Foyt's car, said he felt officials were dallying in restarting the race, perhaps waiting on another batch of bad weather they knew was coming.

Yankee Stadium gardener turns down June 15 fight

NEW YORK (AP) — When a man is about to make an important decision involving millions of dollars and affecting thousands of people, he often will seek professional advice.

When George Steinbrenner, owner of the New York Yankees, wanted to discuss the pros and cons of holding the June 15 Joe Frazier-George Foreman fight in Yankee Stadium, he found some expert counsel.

Steinbrenner said the Frazier - Foreman heavyweight spectacle would do too much damage to the newly planted Yankee Stadium sod. How did he know? "My gardener said so," he said.

Steinbrenner is really using country club parlance when he refers to Jimmy Esposito as his gardener. Actually, Esposito is head groundskeeper at Yankee Stadium, and his advice to Steinbrenner merely reflected his expertise in the ground business, a field in which he has toiled for the past 30 years.

"I'm in a position where I know everything there is to know about my ballpark," Esposito said. "That means the top soil, the grass, everything. I know how much my grass can withstand and I know how much damage a fight in June would do to the field.

"It's a completely new field. Everything is just not settled yet. By June, we wouldn't have our full growth in grass. The chairs and ring on the grass have got to do a lot of damage. There would be 10-15,000 seats out there on the field. And these will be fight fans. They don't just sit in their seats and politely applaud.

"The sod is like a human being. It has to be fed and taken care of. Properly. What happens if the field gets in bad shape and one of our players gets hurt and it costs us the pennant? That's what I have to worry about."

Esposito, 58, who started his outdoor career with the Brooklyn Dodgers in Ebbets Field in 1946 and admits to having the "worst backyard in Brooklyn" because of neglect, has no objection to the big meeting of the Rev. Sun Myung Moon and his followers, held Tuesday night in Yankee Stadium.

"There won't be any activity on the field," said Esposito, a thin, pleasant man. "All those people will be sitting in the stands, minding their own business. And the show will be well policed."

But Yankee Stadium is also the site of several North American Soccer League games and will be the home for the heavyweight championship bout between Muhammad Ali and Ken Norton in September.

"Soccer is doing a little damage," Esposito said. "After a game, the soccer field is filled with small divots. The only thing you can do is put them back in place.

"The September fight is different. Then, you don't have to worry as much about the hot sun. There is, by then, a deep root system. I don't expect any damage at all."

Jerry Perenchio, promotor for the Frazier-Foreman fight— which will be held in the Nassau Coliseum on Long Island— has reportedly sent four tickets to the Yankee brass. One for Steinbrenner, a second for Steinbrenner's "green toupe," another for the Yankee spokesman who has denied Steinbrenner wears a toupe and the tourth for Esposito.

"He's just mad because his fight won't be here," said Esposito. "I don't like fights. I just like baseball. Strictly baseball."

But a fight during a baseball game is part of baseball. The Yankees and the Boston Red Sox had a heated series two weeks ago and one of the games was punctuated by a rousing brawl around home plate.

"I didn't mind that one at all," Esposito said. "They were fighting on the dirt."

Then he added with a smile: "But that fight was a pretty good one, wasn't it?"

Cash register just didn't want to part with money

BELLFLOWER (AP) — Threatened with a bandit's gun, restaurant manager Robert Quan couldn't get his hands to stop shaking long enough to open the cash register, reported police.

The gunman warned him to quit stalling or die.

"I can't get it to work," Quan yelled in desperation. "Why don't you take the whole thing with you?"

Sheriff's deputies said they swooped down on the scene and found Gary Rhoads, 31, of Long Beach, hiding in bushes two blocks from the restaurant. With him was the cash register containing about $500, they said, adding they booked him for investigation.

Minute-every-day remembrance urged

SAN DIEGO (AP) - Medal of Honor winner Jimmie Howard says a minute every day—not a day a year—should be set aside by Americans to honor their war dead.

Howard, in a Memorial Day speech Monday, said that it would remind "some very forgetful people nowadays of the sacrifices that were made allowing them to have these freedoms that we celebrate."

"The only way is to set aside one minute a day to honor our beloved comrades, not one day a year," said Howard.

Library sets colonial dances

The Liberty Assembly, a 30-member troupe specializing in the songs and dances of the Revolutionary War era, will present a program at the Huntington Library, San Marino, at 1:30, 2:30 and 3:30 p.m. June 12. Admission is free.

At the time of the Revolution the Royalists, who were loyal to the English crown, held subscription dances. The patriots started their own subscription dances, and they called them the Liberty Assembly. The patriots changed many of the names of the dances. The Royalist' "Gobby-O-Jig" was changed to "Jefferson and Liberty."

George Washington and Thomas Jefferson, among others, belonged to the original Liberty Assembly. The last meeting of the Assembly was held just before Washington died. The group has been "revived" under the leadership of Robin Evanchuk.

Dressed in authentic costumes, the Liberty Assembly will sing "The Rose of Sharon," a shape note hymn, by William Billings, and "Yankee Doodle" from 1775 with words and music from a copy in the Huntington Library collection. Dances will include reels, contras, jigs, and a minuet danced for Martha Washington in 1792.

Evanchuk was a consultant for the Smithsonian Institution's 1975 Festival of Folklife in Washington, D.C. Most members of the group have obtained degrees in folklore from various colleges and universities in Southern California.

The program is part of a series of Bicentennial events offered without charge at the Huntington Library, Art Gallery and Botanical Gardens. The Huntington, located at 1151 Oxford Road, is open Tuesday through Sunday from 1 to 4:30 p.m. Admission and parking are free.

Hobbits are coming

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Hobbits are coming to television.

NBC announces that the creatures of the J.R.R. Tolkein books will star in 90-minute Xerox special in the fall of 1977. "The Hobbits" will have a musical score and be animated by Rankin-Bass Productions, which made "The Little Drummer Boy" and "Rudolph, the Red-Nosed Reindeer."

OPENING TONIGHT — Zero Mostel, who originated the role of Tevye in "Fiddler on the Roof," will recreate the part in the touring production opening a four-week engagement at the Shubert Theater, Los Angeles, at 8:30 tonight.

'Fiddler on the Roof'

Musical to open at Shubert Theater

"Fiddler on the Roof," starring Zero Mostel, the man who originated the role of the star, Tevye the dairyman, will open a four-week engagement tonight at the Shubert Theater, Los Angeles. Curtain is at 8:30.

Painting is not just a sideline for Mostel. When he is not on stage or screen, he is busy working as a serious artist in his hide-away studio in downtown Manhattan. His paintings hang in New York's Museum of Modern Art, the Brooklyn Museum, Washington's National Portrait Gallery and Israel's Bezalel.

He soon proved his ability to handle serious roles in "Fight over Europe" and Bertolt Brecht's "Good Woman of Setzuan." A passionate admirer of Moliere, he appeared at Boston's Brattle Theater in his own adaptation of "The Imaginary Invalid."

He also played the role of Leopold Bloom in James Joyce's "Ulysses in Nighttown," first off-Broadway and later at the Winter Garden Theater on Broadway. He also portrayed Bloom in London, Holland and Paris. It was in the latter city in competition with troupes from 26 countries at Theatre des Nations that he was gain acclaimed best actor.

Prior to "Fiddler," Mostel won Tony Awards for a dramatic role in Ionesco's "Rhinoceros" and for a musical comedy role in "A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum." As the unforgettable dairyman in "Fiddler," he became the top theater prize winner with a third Tony to add to his many citations.

In recent years, the star has been in great demand for leading roles in film versions of "Rhinoceros" and "Forum," in addition to "The Producers," "Great Catherine," "The Great Bank Robbery," "Hot Rock," "Journey Into Fear," "Foreplay" and "The Front."

To broadcast Scripps series

The National Public Radio network will broadcast the festival series of Scripps College's contemporary chamber music concerts, "Music: Here and Now," over its 185 member stations a maximum of four times within the next three years.

The six programs were produced and directed by Scripps composer-in-residence Gail Kubik with the assistance of Joseph Kruchek. In addition to the tapes of the six Scripps concerts, interviews conducted by Kubik with all the celebrated performing artists will be broadcast as part of the "Contemporary Music Digest," a new series of radio programs National Public Radio is now in the process of producing.

The "Music: Here and Now Festival" consisted of six contemporary chamber music concerts presented at Scripps in 1973. Performers were violinist Yukiko Kamei and pianist Doris Stevenson; pianist Charles Fierro; the Berfield-Steiner Trio; the Renaissance Consort, Shirley Robbins, director; pianist Robert Helps; the Cal-Arts Artist Trio; pianists Leonid Hambro and Bonnie Bogle and the Cal-State Fullerton Wind Ensemble.

BOBBY GOLDSBORO, gold-record singer, will perform in the Showcase Theater at Magic Mountain, Valencia, at 8 and 10 p.m. Friday through Sunday. The rock group, El Chicano, will appear there the following weekend.

Hudsons do it all

By MARY CAMPBELL

The Hudson Brothers sound a little frustrated. Radio station programmers don't play them, they recount, because they think they're TV comedy personalities. And TV treats them like nutty rock 'n' rollers.

The Hudson Brothers

On TV, they had a summer variety series, filling in for Sonny and Cher, in 1974. They turned down something similar this year, saying they accpeted that one as a stepping stone and for exposure. "At that point you can't be choosy," Brett Hudson says. But they had no control over wirting the show or its presentation. They did what they were told and dressed as they were told — alike — and they don't want to do another TV series unless they have some control.

They also did "The Hudson Brothers Razzle Dazzle Comedy Show" on Saturday mornings. That one was aimed by its makers at children but got a sizable cult audience in American colleges.

In recordings, they started with Scepter in 1965, put out some singles, got their money ripped off, they say, by a manager, were so discouraged they backed out of music for a time. Anyway, only Bill, now 26, was out of high school. Bill has the air of group leader, the faintly world-weary older brother. Mark, who wears a beard, is 24, and Brett, 23.

They were signed to Decca in 1968, MGM in 1970, with nothing released. Playboy put out an album and a single in 1971; Rocket put out "Totally out of Control" in 1973; Casablanca "Hollywood Situation" in 1974 and Rocket "The Hudson Brothers . . . Ba Fa" in 1975. Rocket will put out another album in June.

Concerts, they say, get good audience response but last summer they charged off in another direction and acted in "The Wizard of Oz" at the outdoor Municipal Opera in St. Louis, playing the cowardly lion, the tin man and the scarecrow.

"We could have made $15,000 to $20,000 a night in fair dates and concerts," Bill says. "For 'Oz' we made $12,500 a week. But we had never done professional theatre."

This summer they'll act in "On The Town" in St. Louis and at the Starlight Theater in Kansas City and maybe the show will play in Chicago. By next summer, they're hoping Anthony Newley and Leslie Bricusse will have done a musical adaptation of "The Three Musketeers" for them.

They're also making a short comedy film, about early American days, inspired by the Bicentennial. And they've played in Las Vegas on a bill with Olivia Newton-John.

All that versatility just isn't accepted, Bill says. People want a pigeonhole in which to place a performer. They don't want comedians to make non-comedy rock 'n' roll records. One minute the Hudson Brothers sound like they'll bow to that and maybe just concentrate on recording, then the next minute they're saying things like they know they can do it all and they're determined to do it all and end up in full-length films.

They aren't standup comics, aren't given to one-liners, aren't improvisers and aren't intersted in splitting up and having solo careers, Bill says. Their forte, he says, is being characters in situations.

On the Saturday morning show, they created the character of Chuckie Margolies. Bill says. "It's about a kid in a basement. He never sees anything but ankles. He lies; he's a bully. He has a friend who's meek and mild, who Mark plays. I interview them. A lot of our comedy is drawn from when we were kids in Portland, Ore. But if anybody was a bully and liar it was me."

Mark says, "My character is a scapegoat, the guy they push out of a tree. He comes back because he loves them so much."

The Hudson Brothers sometimes are requested to do a skit featuring Chuckie Margolies at a music concert. They do it, even though they usually don't include skits at concerts and they'd rather not do Chuckie on a stage, without his basement.

In concerts there is a five-piece band behind them and Bill plays guitar, Mark piano and drums and Brett bass. Bill says, "We play our instruments on our albums. The next one will be the first with the band also."

Ballet slated for TV

The first live telecast of a full-length ballet "Swan Lake," will be offered by the American Ballet Theater at 8 p.m. June 30 on Live from Lincoln Center.

Natalia Makarova will dance the White Swan-Black Swan role of Odette-Odile, and Ivan Nagy will dance Prince Siegfired. The complete Tchaikovsky ballet will be offered nationally by the Public Broadcasting Service (PBS) with a simultaneous stereo radio broadcast in many areas.

Live from Lincoln Center, live television transmission of the performing arts, is produced by Lincoln Center and underwritten by Exxon Corp., the National Endowment for the Arts, the Corporation for Public Broadcasting and the Charles A. Dana Foundation.

"Swan Lake", which is part of American Ballet Theater's six-week summer season at the New York State Theater June 29-Aug. 7, was first mounted in 1967. American Ballet Theater is under the direction of Lucia Chase and Oliver Smith. The four-act ballet was staged and directed by David Blair, principal male dancer of the Royal Bllet.

The four elaborate settings used in the production are the designs of scenic artist Oliver Smith. The costumes are by Freddy Wittop, the lighting by Jean Rosenthal. Blair based this version on the choreography by Marius Petipa and Lev Ivanov as performed in the 1895 production of the Maryinsky Theater in St. Petersburg (today the Kirov in Leningrad). This succuessful 1895 revival was preceded by the original production of "Swan Lake" initially mounted by the Bolshoi Ballet in Moscow in 1877.

Live from Lincoln Center was inaugurated last Jan. 30 with a performance by the New York Philharmonic, conducted by Andre Previn with guest soloist Van Cliburn.

GRACEFUL SWAN — Natalia Makarova will dance the White Swan-Black Swan in Tchaikovsky's "Swan Lake" to be televised on Live from Lincoln Center at 8 p.m. June 30. Ivan Nagy will be Prince Siegfried in the American Ballet Theater production. It will be repeated on July 4.

Jazz band set for Pasadena

Buddy Collette's Jazz Band and The Summer of '42 Orchestra, conducted by Rob Morris, will present a concert at 2:30 p.m. June 13 at the Ambassador Auditorium, Pasadena. Admission is free.

The program is one of a series sponsored by the Ambassador Foundation and Local 47, American Federation of Musicians.

Collette has long been one of the busiest woodwind players in Los Angeles. An outstanding jazz artist, he first attracted attention as a soloist with the Chico Hamilton group. He's also one of Hollywood's most in-demand studio musicians, and performs with his small jazz band in concerts.

The Summer of '42 Orchestra started in New Jersey in 1942, playing the big band sounds of Tommy Dorsey, Benny Goodman, Duke Ellington, Gene Krupa and Count Basie.

All concerts in the series are free. Funding is provided by the Music Performance Trust Fund with Ambassador Foundation donating auditorium use. Concerts are designed to give Los Angeles citizens an opportunity to hear a variety of styles of music at no cost. Concert goers will be seated on a first-come, first served basis. All concerts will be on Sunday afternoons at 2:30 p.m.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Already a smash-hit record, "Convoy" is being aimed at the big screen.

United Artists has announced that the C. W. McCall disc will be the basis for a feature movie to be produced by Robert Sherman. McCall, Donald Sears and Chip Davis, who composed the record will create new songs and perform the score. Bill Norton Jr. is writing a script.

Johnny Wonder's QUESTION CORNER

Q. "HOW DOES A FLUORESCENT LAMP WORK?"

LAURA CESKE
BLOOMINGTON, MN

A. A FLUORESCENT LAMP IS A GLASS TUBE FILLED WITH MERCURY VAPOR. WHEN ELECTRICITY PASSES THROUGH THE VAPOR, IT PRODUCES ULTRAVIOLET RAYS WHICH MAKE A PHOSPHOR MATERIAL INSIDE THE TUBE GLOW WITH A COOL, BRIGHT LIGHT

Fluorescent lamps are electric lights that are shaped like long glass tubes.

In ordinary electric light bulbs, there is a wire filament that must be heated to a high temperature in order to give off light. A fluourescent lamp has no filaments.

Instead, the fluorescent lamp is filled with a special kind of gas called mercury vapor. When the lamp is turned on, an electric current passes through the gas in the tube and causes the gas to give off an invisible ultraviolet light.

The inside wall of the glass tube is coated with a material called phosphors. When the invisible ultraviolet rays strike the phosphors, the phosphors glow with a cool, bright light that looks almost like daylight.

Fluorescent lamps are used to produce bright, low-cost lighting in factories, stores, offices and schools. They give more light for less electricity, produce less heat and last much longer than ordinary light bulbs.

Here's wonderful news! A pocket radio, camera, World Almanac globe or other fine prize will be awarded to the first youngster sending in a question used here. Send your question and your age to Johnny Wonder, (c/o this newspaper), Box 1335 (DA), Santa Cruz, CA 95061.

An interview with a Japanese gangster

TOKYO (AP) — "Who in this society is willing to give a fair chance to a teen-ager who has no education, no money, no family background? Nobody but us," said the middle-aged man in a pinstripe suit.

The man is a gangster, one of the bosses in a nationwide crime organization with 4,500 members. He was talking about the "opportunities" criminal organizations give to teenagers in Japan's world of crime.

Police statistics show there are about 110,000 gangsters in 2,650 known criminal organizations which in 1974 took in the equivalent in yen of $670 million, mostly through gambling, drug peddling, prostitution, pornography and blackmail.

In addition, police say, the mobsters are believed to have interests in 26,000 legal enterprises, such as restaurants, finance, real estate and entertainment places.

Japan generally is considered to have a well-policed, regulated society. The rate of violent crime is low, and much credit for this is given to tough gun control laws that prohibit private citizens from owning handguns. There also is a highly efficient police alarm box system in every neighborhood.

Nevertheless organized crime has been long accepted as part of the system. Because the activity does not generally involve street crimes of violence, there is little public outcry.

In some cases, a certain folk lore has grown around the "yakuza," or gansters of Japan.

"Yes, we do a lot of illegal things because we have to eat," said the gang leader, who agreed to talk with a reporter but declined to be identified. "We can't eat if we stick to a philosophy which is two centuries old. The world is changing, and ours is no exception."

The philosophy he referred to is called ninkyo-do," which includes the tenet of not bothering "citizens under the sun." This has meant self isolation by gang members and dealing only with people who seek what criminal organizations have to offer.

But the changing times and increased police crackdowns are reflected in more arrests in the shadowy world of the gangs. Police said they arrested 53,277 gangsters in 1974, an increase of 2.3 per cent from 1973. Charges included 269 for robbery, 348 for murder and 600 for rape. Others ranged from assault to blackmail and illegal possession of dangerous weapons and drugs.

The national police agency launches countrywide roundups of gansters periodically, hauling in an average of about 1,000 each time. Most are released in a short time "because their charges are minor," said Inspector Yoshio Nemoto, who is in charge of the agency's anticrime ring section.

"More than 90 per cent of our guys arrested usually come back in two or three days because the police cannot prove their charges," said the gang leader. "That means they cannot be proven to have violated laws. The police and press always try to harass us."

This is carried out by the national tax agency in cooperation with police. When gangland arrests are made, police work out estimated incomes based on statements from those arrested. They turn the information over to tax officials, who make allowances for "business expenses" and then set out to collect. This is made easier by the fact that many of the big gangs seek to operate under some sort of legal front.

Officials said that in 1974 tax authorities got more than $8 million from 139 cases — involving illegal income of racketeers. There now are seven big gangs that dominate in Japan, and about half the tax revenue came from those groups.

There also are efforts to hinder gang operations by denying them the use of hotels, entertainment sites and other facilities.

"But we are citizens who are paying taxes and are at large under the law," said the gang leader. "Yet we are refused these public facilities. It's a violation of human rights, but we don't make trouble because we know we can never win public support. We are outsiders."

He added that he got into the world of gangs because he was "broke and frustrated, exactly like the teen-agers who join us today."

Inspector Nemoto agreed that Japan's underworld does attract certain young people who feel unwanted in the more normal world, and he sees it as a problem for society itself.

"How to adopt these social outcasts, which is the essential issue in fighting crime rings, is what society has to think about, not police officers," he said.

"There was a big war with a rival ring 25 years ago that I missed. That was my biggest mistake.

"If I had been there and survived the war, I would have been sent to jail for five years and have been a much bigger boss.

"But I tell you one thing. The politicians encouraged us to grow before 1960 because they wanted us to balance off the radical leftists.... After that, their attitude changed and the police started to crack down."

The gang leader said he has a son in his early 20s who works for a stock company and a daughter in high school.

"I always tell them never to be ashamed of me because I am living a man's life," he said. "But you see, you can't expect much from kids if you are a bad father, and this is not a life for a family man.

"I've learned a lot in the past 30 years. If I had had my present experience and brains while I was in my 20s, I would never have become a gangster."

32,000 South Viets ordered into country

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — The South Vietnamese government ordered 32,000 more people to move from Saigon to the countryside last month, Radio Saigon said today.

The broadcast said that in the year following the Communist takeover of Saigon on April 30, 1975, about 400,000 people from the South Vietnamese capital were sent to "new economic areas" to take up farming.

The Vietnam war drove millions of refugees from the countryside into Saigon and other cities, creating acute housing, food and unemployment problems. The Communist regime has reversed the flow to increase agricultural production and reduce unemployment.

23 Ways (Count 'Em) to Save Money on Meat and Produce at FedMart®

There's no better way to give your food budget a real lift than to save money on meat and produce. And there's no better way to save than at FedMart. The 23 ways on this page are only the beginning. At FedMart you'll find low prices throughout the meat and produce departments week in and week out. The same thing applies to the entire food department.

And we don't skimp on quality. All of our steaks and roasts are strictly USDA Choice to assure you of tender, juicy, flavorful eating. And we're mighty fussy about the quality of our fruits and vegetables, too. But don't take our word. Come in and discover how well low prices and quality go together at FedMart.
